FESS CLASHES WITH M'KELVIE ON NORRIS AID

SUPPORT IS ASSURED BY COMMITTEE HEAD

CAMPAIGN INDICATED AGAINST NEBRASKAN

Senator May Spurn Favors From National Group If Foes Press Fight.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

A disagreement in the Republican camp developed openly yesterday on the question of its attitude toward Senator George W. Norris in the event he wins the Republican primary nomination in Nebraska today.

Just a few hours before former Gov. McKelvie, of Nebraska, was to go on the radio and say that, as a Republican, he did not intend to support the senator should he be victorious, Senator Fess, chairman of the Republican national committee, leaving the White House after a lengthy political conference, said it was his belief that when Republicans nominated a man the committee should support him.

Fess Set in Course.

There was no connection between the senator's belief and his White House conferences with the President and Walter Newton, political secretary, of course, but the White House is a good sounding board for public utterances. The senator was told of Mr. McKelvie's plan, but it did not change his opinion.

The matter would seem to be of some political moment. It is likely that Mr. McKelvie reflects the White House view more than does the senator, but then there is no question but that there are many of the Republican Old Guard who share Chairman Fess' view.

Lessens McKelvie's Effect.

In so far as the immediate effect is concerned, it is conceivable that Fess' statement, if it receives general publicity in Nebraska, would do Norris some good. To say the least, it should take some of the fire out of what Mr. McKelvie had intended to be a bombshell.

He was to take the radio in behalf of Morris' opponent, W. M. Stebbins, and just on the eve of the primary. Mr. McKelvie's detestation, political and perhaps personal, for Senator Norris is widely known. There has never been any secret about it at all. And Mr. McKelvie wields an influence in Nebraska.

McKelvie's Attitude Well Known.

The Nebraska voters fully understand the situation, but for Mr. McKelvie to make known over the radio from Washington, where he sits on the President's Farm Board, that his political opinion was so low of the Senator that he would not support him if nominated—that statement was designated to make the Nebraskan Republican realize the seriousness of their vote.

Then for Senator Fess to make his statement—why, it was disheartening, to say the least.

And in the light of Senator Fess' statement and the known view agreeing with it of other Old Guard Senators it will be interesting to see how the situation develops if Norris does win today.

Party Bolters Balance.

Even before Mr. McKelvie planned his radio utterance, it had been generally assumed that the hatred of the Nebraska regulars for Norris was so strong that they would vote for the Democratic nominee, probably former Senator Hitchcock, in November. By the same token it was realized that any number of Democrats would vote for Norris, as they have in the past.

The general belief, in fact, was that these Democratic Norris voters would offset the bolting Republicans.

But Mr. McKelvie's strong views against Norris, publicly announced, indicate that he and other Nebraska regulars are not to be content with bolting Norris in the event he wins the primary, but will carry a relentless campaign against him on up to November.

This being the case, the question is whether Norris, as the Republican primary nominee, would call on the national committee for assistance.

May Scorn National Aid.

It has been assumed heretofore that he would scorn any such aid, but it is reasonable to believe that should McKelvie and his followers continue to pursue him after tomorrow, and if the committee is willing to assist him he would not decline

Calvin Coolidge

Says: All of the central part of the United States, and especially that region east of the Mississippi of which Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia are the backbone, is suffering from lack of rain. The damage is very great and destitution is threatening some sections. Probably there will be considerable reduction in agricultural products.

The national and local governments are already moving to relieve present and future distress and prevent further loss so far as possible. As they always do in every emergency, those great public servants, the railroads, are responding to the resulting needs of the people. But there is yet no prospect of general food shortage or distress. This is a large country. When it is dry in one part, there is moisture in other parts. Seed time and harvest have never yet failed us.

This experience shows us that no one can foretell what crops the weather will produce in any specific season and clearly demonstrates that if acreage is reduced so that production is not excessive prices will be higher. A temporary surplus or temporary shortage that might then result can be remedied. It is the permanent surplus that becomes unmanageable.

MAN HELD IN DEATH OF FRIEND IS BAILED

NERVES FRAYED BY HEAT

Held for the grand jury yesterday by action of the coroner's jury investigating the death Saturday of Dr. George C. Pearson, veterinarian, John Patrick Quill later obtained his release by posting $1,000 bond.

Quill, who lives at 3643 Warder street, was arrested Saturday, after Pearson, 65 years old, a roomer at the house, was found dead. Quill, who is 71, admitted striking the younger man when he rushed at him with his cane upraised threateningly, according to police.

According to friends of the men's families, the two had been good friends for many years. When Pearson's daughter, with whom he usually makes his home, went away on a vacation the man went to stay with his friend, Quill.

The heat, however, wore upon both men's nerves, and they had been wrangling for several days before Pearson's death. On Saturday, Quill came in from work—he is a messenger in the Department of Agriculture—and made a remark which is said to have annoyed the other man. He rushed at Quill. After he struck Pearson, Quill said, the younger man fell and did not get up.

Dr. Thomas J. Kennedy was called and pronounced Pearson dead. Dr. Kennedy had been treating him for heart disease, and it was at first thought that he had died of that. Quill originally denied striking the other man, but later voluntarily confessed. An autopsy was ordered when blood stains were found on Pearson's face. It showed that the man died from the result of injuries to his head.

Tacoma-to-Tokyo Flight Abandoned

Plans Called Off When Plane Crashes at Field Near Vancouver.

Vancouver, British Columbia, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Plans of Bob Wark, of Seattle, and Eddie Brown, of Kansas City, for a Tacoma-Tokyo flight across the Pacific were definitely called off for this year when their plane crashed today at Ladner Airport, near here.

The fliers took off at 11:33 a. m. (P.S.T.), Sunday, from Tacoma Field, but air in the gas lines of their big Fokker biplane, Pacific Era, forced them to land at Vancouver Airport on Lulu Island about 2 p. m.

Vancouver is approximately 150 miles from Tacoma by air.

Wark said satisfactory repairs had been made and he and Brown had planned to take their plane from Lulu Island to Ladner Airport, because of the longer runway afforded.

OUT SEVEN MINUTES, JURY DOOMS KILLER

Fauquier County Man Who Slew Two Is Assessed Death Penalty.

ADMITS GUILT ON STAND

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., Aug. 11.—It took a Fauquier County jury exactly seven minutes after hearing the case of Commonwealth vs. Elwood Payne to bring in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree and fix his punishment at death.

Payne, a colored man, who killed Allie Corbin, aged farmer, and his daughter, Estelle Corbin, was indicted August 1 and his case set for hearing before Judge J. R. H. Alexander at Warrenton today. Only 35 of the panel of 60 were used in securing a jury. Commonwealth's Attorney C. W. Carter, of Fauquier, was assisted in the prosecution by John Gallaher, Commonwealth's attorney of Loudoun County. Walter H. Robertson and Charles G. Stone, of the local bar, were assigned by the court to defend the prisoner.

Sheriff W. S. Woolf testified as to Payne's confession of his guilt to him, and Payne later took the stand and admitted the killing. The court convened at 10:30 this morning, and the jury had returned its verdict at 3:30. Before sentencing Payne to be electrocuted on Friday, September 19, Judge Alexander asked him if he had anything to say before sentence was passed upon him. Payne shook his head.

He appeared to be unmoved throughout the trial and the recitations of the killing and sat near his counsel with his head bowed throughout the entire case.

Attempt Made on Life Of Roumanian Official

Vienna, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency reports an attempt was made in Roumania today to assassinate Victor Cadere, chief of secret police, assigned by King Carol to investigate the causes of the recent antisemitic agitation.

While Cadere was sitting in a railway dining car a government employe, named Junescu, fired several shots at him from a revolver. All the bullets missed him. Junescu was arrested.

New Parachute Record Thought Set in Leap

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Jimmy Donohue today made a parachute jump from what he believed an altitude of 28,000 feet, a new world record. A sealed barograph was carried and will be sent to Washington for calibration.

The former record, held by an Army flier, was 26,000 feet, Donohue said.

PLANE BOMBS TOWN TORN BY MINE TROUBLE

NINE MISSILES GREET MEN GOING TO WORK

FIELDS HAD REOPENED FOLLOWING STRIKES

U. S. Begins First Attempt to Penalize Use of Aircraft for Crime.

Providence, Ky., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A series of disorders in the Webster County coal fields culminated today in the bombing of mine properties from an airplane. The mines were reopened July 1 after a three-months' shutdown because of independent strikes over wages and working conditions.

Nine bombs were dropped from an orange-colored plane, believed to have carried two men, which flew over the town this morning as miners were going to work. Four bombs failed to explode. The five that did explode injured no one and damaged no property, but tore large holes in the ground. The bomber was described as a monoplane.

Taken by surprise by the sudden air attack, Providence and Webster County were thrown into a state of intense excitement. Only one of the 25 or 30 guards employed by the mines in the county had presence of mind to fire at the plane. He shot twice but without effect. The bomber departed in the direction of Illinois, from whence it came.

Governor Is Noncommittal.

All available deputy sheriffs patrolled the mine properties today, but there was little to be done unless the plane returned. All mines resumed operations as usual. Operators said they will continue to be operated as long as the situation permits.

Webster County officials requested Gov. Flem D. Sampson to send National Guardsmen here on three occasions after homes had been dynamited and miners shot from ambush. The governor replied he felt local authorities could handle the situation.

C. L. Walker, county attorney of Webster County, said Gov. Sampson was not asked today to send troops, his previous refusals having discouraged officials of hopes of any help from that quarter. There was no comment forthcoming from the governor's office at Frankfort when he was informed of the bombing.

Blast Heard for Miles.

A mass meeting was called here tonight to raise a fund for a reward for the arrest of the occupants of the plane. Plans to resist another air attack included issuance of extra ammunition to the regular mine guards and augmenting of the guards.

Citizens of Providence said they would permit no one at the meeting who was known to have fomented trouble at the mines. About 75 per

PESHAWAR CUT OFF AS REBELS SURROUND CITY

Rest of India Has Only Radio to Receive News of Khyber Pass.

GUARD MAINTAINED BY ROYAL AIR FORCE

BRITISH MAY WAGE FIGHT ON BIG SCALE

Hindu-Moslem Strife in Sind District Another Problem to Rulers.

London (Tuesday), Aug. 12 (A.P.).—Lahore dispatches this morning reported that all communications except wireless between Peshawar and the rest of India have been cut. The government at Simla now must rely entirely on the royal air force and the radio for information about the defense of the city against the Afridis.

The Daily Mail's correspondent at Lahore reported that the situation at Peshawar has grown so serious the British military authorities may have to undertake large scale operations against the Afridis.

Peshawar, India, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The guns of Peshawar fort today boomed intermittently against the Afridi tribesmen attacking Peshawar while British and Indian cavalrymen skirmished with isolated parties in the belt of gardens immediately surrounding the city.

Planes Ly About City.

Fighting occurred at several scattered points, but there were no signs of a major engagement. Airplanes of the Royal Air Force, the air scouts of the defending troops, reconnoitered throughout the day, watching for signs of a large concentration of Afridis.

Bombing operations also were carried out, but their effectiveness was not announced. The airplanes have proved invaluable in reporting the movements of the tribesmen. The city gates were kept shut all day, and a sharp watch was maintained.

Bombay, India, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The British administration of India tonight faced two problems of utmost gravity—incursions of wild tribesmen in the northwestern frontier province and Hindu-Moslem strife in the Sind district that caused troops to be rushed there today.

Censorship Hides News.

News from both areas was scanty because of censorship, but reports indicated that the guerilla warfare of 10,000 Afridis continued to menace Peshawar, far on the northwestern frontier, and that the trouble was spreading.

All the conquerors of India in centuries past, save only those who came by sea, have entered through the famous Khyber Pass. Peshawar is the key to this pass, and the British have mobilized all the forces of modern warfare to protect the strategic city.

Hence they do not believe that the Afridis, who are aggressive warriors

GOVERNORS' PARLEY DETAILS ARE MAPPED

SHORTAGE OF FEED IS ACUTE PROBLEM

(Associated Press.)

The seriousness of the drought situation in certain areas was emphasized to President Hoover yesterday by a long line of callers, including Chairman Payne, of the American Red Cross, while the Department of Agriculture reported crop prospects declined almost 7 per cent in July as a result of the protracted dry weather.

Meanwhile, the Government proceeded with plans to relieve farmers in distress and to insure against possible spread of disease. Railroad executives continued to offer aid through reduced freight rates and Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, called at the White House to determine the President's plans.

Secretary Hyde conferred with Mr. Hoover late in the day and went over details for the conference of governors of twelve States here Thursday. Replies of acceptance from all twelve governors to the Presidents invitation were on hand, that of Gov. Weaver of Nebraska being the last to arrive. Gov. Weaver had said he might not come, but informed the President yesterday he would be present.

Farm Leaders Are Called.

Samuel H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; C. E. Huff, president of the National Farmers Union, and Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, were called by the President to a White House conference Friday to discuss the situation. Chairman Legge, of the Farm Board, also will be present.

The Agricultural Department report said a rather wide belt from the Middle Atlantic States westward to the Mississippi Valley has experienced the driest growing season of record.

While the shortage is chiefly in feed crops, the report said, estimates of yields per acre on the basis of conditions August 1 were 5.5 per cent below last year, and 9.1 per cent under the last ten-year average. The corn crop is expected to be the smallest since 1901, with hay and grain sorghums likely to be reduced to the lowest yield in more than ten years.

Feed Shortage Acute.

The feed shortage was described as "accentuated by pastures far poorer than in any previous summer months for 50 years or more, with many farmers already compelled to feed hay and new corn." The report said the drought has been felt farther north as the season progressed and is now affecting even New York and Michigan.

"It is hurting most late fruits and vegetables, except where they are irrigated," it added. "It is daily reducing prospects for corn, flaxseed, peanuts, sweet potatoes, tobacco, Eastern beans, Arkansas rice, cotton west of Alabama, and various other crops."

Winter wheat was described as too far advanced to be hurt by the drought, while the "usual supply of food crops" was indicated.

The American Red Cross report to the President covered 12 States and said conditions were very bad in some States, not so serious in others, and

Morrow Quits Work On Orders of Doctor

Envoy Will Recuperate at Rural Home Near Mexico City.

Mexico City, Aug. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—By orders of Dr. William F. Shaw, specialist on tropical diseases, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow will drop work for ten days or two weeks and devote himself to improving his health. The American diplomat will recuperate at Cuernavaca, subtropical retreat 60 miles from Mexico City, where he has a home.

Arthur Bliss Lane, first secretary of the United States Embassy in the Mexican capital, today telegraphed Mrs. Morrow a detailed report on the ambassador's condition. Mrs. Morrow had previously sent a peremptory demand for the truth.

Secretary Lane stated this afternoon that the ambassador is suffering from an attack of acute indigestion and from dysentery. Indigestion was brought on by overwork. Secretary Lane added that attaches of the embassy, in cooperation with Dr. Shaw, are making every effort to keep Mr.

DWIGHT W. MORROW.

Morrow at Cuernavaca. Dr. Shaw said that, if his patient did not take a rest his condition might become serious.

T. F. RYAN 2D ENDS OWN DIVORCE SUIT

AUTO ACCIDENT IS CITED

Sheridan, Wyo., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The divorce suit of Thomas F. Ryan, 2d, which was filed in district court here Saturday, came to an abrupt end today, when a motion to dismiss the case without prejudice was filed by the plaintiff.

Mr. Ryan, scion of a wealthy New York family, in a statement, said the "charges brought against Mrs. Ryan were absolutely without foundation or justification."

The statement added that the plaintiff could offer no explanation for such action on his part, other than being directly attributable to injuries to his head suffered in a recent automobile accident which left him "in an impulsive mental condition."

Mr. Ryan is a grandson of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan.

Fascists Harass Berlin Paraders

Interference With City's Republican Celebration Is Frustrated.

Berlin, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Fascists tonight attempted to break up a huge torchlight parade by German Republican organizations, celebrating the eleventh anniversary of the constitution.

Many thousands were in line when the parade reached the square facing the former imperial castle. Suddenly a band of Fascists, carrying Republican flags as a disguise, tried to wedge themselves into the dense throng.

They raised their war cry, on partly succeeding in splitting the parade, but the angry Republicans speedily jostled them aside. The Fascists were rescued by police, who arrested fifteen of them. The parade then continued to the square in front of the Reichstag.

GEN. C. T. MENOHER, ONCE AIR HEAD, DIES

Illness Fatal to Superior of Brig. Gen. Mitchell in Memorable Break.

LED RAINBOW DIVISION

Maj. Gen. Charles T. Menoher, retired, former head of the Army Air Service, who participated in one of the most noted controversies within the ranks of the service, died early last night in St. Elizabeths Hospital after a brief illness. Death was caused by pneumonia.

Gen. Menoher became ill a month ago at his home. Three days ago he was taken to the hospital, where he died at 5:20 o'clock last night.

While the name of the officer was written indelibly into American military history as that of battle commander in France of the famous Rainbow Division, his name became more widely known after the war when, as chief of the Army air service, he came to an open break with his principal assistant, the then Brig. Gen. William Mitchell.

This clash, although temporarily smoothed over by John W. Weeks, the Secretary of War, was the first uproar in the air service controvery which was to develop about Mitchell. It lead to his arraignment before an Army court martial for a repetition of actions which had impelled Gen. Menoher to demand tha this subordinate be relieved from duty as a disciplinary measure.

Gen. Menoher became head of the air service soon after his return from France. At the time of the appointment Secretary Weeks said he had been selctd "bcause he was a man of fine fighting record in France, a man of good judgment and level head and a very capable executive."

Soon after he took charge of the service in January, 1919, he came to an open break with Mitchell and asked the Secretary of War to remove the officer. Shortly after this request had been presented, Secretary Weeks issud a formal statement stating that

Third Home Looted, Family on Vacation

J. M. Sternhagen, Member of U. S. Tax Board of Appeals, Finds Dwelling Visited by Thieves; Truck Load of Articles Taken.

Moving with a thoroughness that is disconcerting to police, the same band of burglars that recently raided the homes of two old Georgetown families while they were closed for the summer, added a third "job" to their list, it became known yesterday, when John M. Sternhagen, member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals, told police that thieves had literally carried away his home.

Mr. Sternhagen, one of the Government's experts on tax matters, discovered the robbery several days after it is believed to have occurred. With his family, he is staying at Dodge Farms, in Virginia, for the summer, and it was only a casual visit to his home that disclosed the robbery.

The Sternhagen home is at 3328 O street northwest. The rear door had been jimmied, and from that entrance enough loot was taken to completely fill a large sized motor truck. The total value was $4,000. Clothing, jewelry, rare books, a typewriter, phonograph and other objects were carted away.

A young white man, about 30 years old, is the only one noted as acting suspiciously in the vicinity. Police have stablished a search for him, but his general description would fit about four out of five men of that age.

Included in the list of stolen articles are the following:

One complete set of Dickens' books, about 35 volumes, cloth bound; one complete set of Thackery's books, cloth bound, about fifteen volumes; one complete set of Kipling's books, cloth bound, fifteen volumes; one complete set of Greek and Latin Classics, fifteen volumes; four volumes of Don Quovite, rare edition, year 1810, calf bound; Boswell's Johnson, four volumes, gray, rare edition; Durant's Story of Philosophy, hand-bound and tooled; Wells' oOtline of History; Galsworthy's Forsyto Saga; the following books by Conrad, in green limp leather; Lord Jim, Victory, Youth, Almeyas, Folly, Nigger of Narcissus; the following by Meredith; limp red leather, Egoist, Richard Jewel, Beauchamp's Career; Shaw's Plays; Ibsenism; Contemporary Dramatists; Victori Verse; Wordsworth's Poems; Dickens' Nickelby and Copperfield, very rare and old; Language of Flowers, very rare; Dictionary of Benjamin Franklin, rare; encyclo-

German Air Hero Injured As Car Hits Milk Wagon

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Unscathed in flights over half the world, Germany's 24-year-old aviation hero, Baron Friedrich Karl von Warthausen, was severely injured today in the collision of an automobile and a milk wagon.

Several hours after the accident he was still unconscious, suffering concussion of the brain and possible internal injuries. Physicians believed he would recover.

It was his second automobile accident in his few months in the United States. A taxicab crash in El Paso, Tex., last year put him in the hospital for three months and left him with a permanent memento, a large scar on his face.

Four friends who were in the automobile with the baron, returning from a week-end vacation trip, also were severely injured.

Baron von Warthausen first attracted attention in aviation a year ago when he flew from Berlin to Singapore in a little plane weighing only 350 pounds. He had started merely to fly to Moscow, but he liked that trip so well he decided to continue on over Asia.

Despite official orders from home to abandon the flight, he continued, shipped his plane across the Pacific and then flew it from Los Angeles to New York. Germany then hailed him as a national hero and he received the Von Hindenburg flying trophy.

The baron returned to this country in April and since that time has been attempting to interest American capital in a new, all-year, all-air route to the Far East.

Father Accused of Mixing Babies' Tags Deliberately

Chicago, Aug. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Charles F. Bamberger, father of one of the Watkins-Bamberger babies, blanched today under the dramatic accusation, in open court, that he deliberately switched the identification tags on the infants.

The accusation, made by Attorney Barratt O'Hara, counsel for Mrs. Margaret Watkins, mother of one of the disputed babies, electrified a large crowd in the court of Judge Sabath before whom a hearing on a habeas corpus writ and a writ of injunction against the Bambergers was being held.

The charge hurled against Bamberger so surprised and amazed his counsel, Attorney Joseph P. Power, that he moved at once for a continuance on the ground that he was unfamiliar with the case. After a wrangle between counsel, Judge Sabath allowed a continuance until August 15.

Bamberger sat beside his counsel, nervously fingering a buttonhole on his coat as the charge was made. His eyes fluttered and he was seen to gulp. A whispered ripple of comment swept round the courtroom.

O'Hara resumed:

"Bamberger has done something unnatural, strange, cruel. It baffles understanding, defies the law of nature; is perhaps unprecedented in the annals of paternal history."

hardly affecting some at all. The outlook in Virginia and Kentucky was reported the most alarming.

Unemployment was growing in some drought-stricken areas, Chairman Payne reported, with typhoid and pellagra on the increase in several Southern States. Crop damage ranged from 50 per cent to total loss in some areas.

The Weather Bureau clung to its earlier prediction of showers this week in some portions of the dry regions. If rain were not forthcoming soon, the Red Cross report said, distress would be more widespread.

11 Railroads Cut Hay Rates.

Representative Ludlow, of Indiana, informed President Hoover that 11 railroads had agreed to cut freight rates on hay to Indiana points, while Mr. Thom told newspapermen the railroads in general were ready to assist the farmers in every way possible.

Representatives Kendall, Newhall and Blackburn, of Kentucky, told the President conditions in their State are "deplorable." They were assured by the Executive that every agency will be utilized to help sufferers.

Representative Aswell, of Louisiana, another White House caller, recommended to the President that the public building program be speeded up as a means of relieving unemployment resulting from the drought.

The situation in his State was "very bad," he said, adding it had not rained there in three months. The corn and hay crops are destroyed, the sugar cane crop is six weeks behind and cotton is reduced from one-half to two-thirds.

Credit Needs Stressed.

Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, returned to the Capital yesterday to confer with Government and Red Cross officials. He said farmers will be chiefly affected through inability to plant crops for next year and urged that Government credit be extended without security.

Red Cross reports showed "serious conditions" in Illinois counties south of Springfield. Exhaustion of wells and other sources of drinking water is presenting a "serious problem and health hazard" there.

"Serious conditions will probably develop in southern Illinois during the winter," the report added. The situation also was described as serious in eastern Kansas, but with no unfavorable health conditions as yet.

Typhoid Fever Spreads.

A "great increase in typhoid" was reported in western Kentucky, and unemployment among farmers was described as acute in the southeast section of the State.

Conditions in Missouri were reported generally serious in the southern half, with all crops affected and indications of "extensive relief needs" in the fall and winter. Fifty per cent of the crops was estimated to have been destroyed in Montana, where a water shortage was presenting a serious cattle problem.

A hopeful outlook was reported for Nebraska as a result of recent heavy rains.

South Dakota Crop Halved.

Chapter chairmen in South Dakota estimated a crop one-half of normal and maintained hope for material improvement with rains during the next ten days.

Pastures are burned up and gardens are a "total loss," West Virginia reports said. They added the percentage of loss in various crops is: Hay, 75 per cent; corn and oats, 60 per cent, and wheat, 25 per cent. The City of Spencer, Roane County, was said to have only two weeks' water supply.

The crop reporting board, touching upon the general situation, said commercial vegetables, including cabbages, onions, tomatoes, melons, &c., will probably show a total somewhat above the five-year average, due to general acreage increases, that will offset partly the low production of many home gardens and truck grown for local market.

Fruits Below Average.

"The condition of fruit crops," the report continued, "including apples, peaches, pears, grapes, citrus fruits, prunes, &c., averages 18 per cent above conditions at this time last year, but nearly 10 per cent below the average during the previous ten years.

The board said: "The seriousness of the situation is not in the national total of current prospects, but in the critical condition prevailing in certain States, and in the fact that the drought is not as yet broken except in small areas.

"The damage from drought has been most serious in the drainage areas of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers, in the central and lower Mississippi Valley, and in parts of the northern great plains area.

70 Per Cent Output Seen.

"In West Virginia, Kentucky, Arkansas, Montana, southern Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, much of Missouri, and most of Virginia, yields per acre of all crops combined are expected to be below 70 per cent of average yields during the last ten years," it said.

"The only areas where crop yields are expected to be above average are outside the central drought areas. These include Wisconsin, New Jersey, New York, New England, the South Atlantic Coast, including eastern North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, and the western area, including New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, western Colorado, California and Oregon."

The opinion that States and counties will have to do the greater part of organization work in drought-stricken areas to enable farmers to obtain relief either locally or through the Federal Farm Board was expressed yesterday by J. C. Stone, vice chairman of the board. Mr. Stone said the board could advance money only to cooperatives under the terms of the agricultural marketing act.

Cool Weather to Last To Tomorrow At Least

The "cold wave" that brought respite from unseasonable heat Sunday will extend through tonight, and perhaps longer, the Weather Bureau announced yesterday. On the heels of stiff northwesterly breezes the temperature sank to 63 degrees at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, and the day's high was 80, as compared with Saturday's 102.

The 63-degree reading was the lowest level to which the mercury has dropped since July 16, when the minimum was 56. Although indications are somewhat uncertain, Forecaster R. H. Weightman said the bureau hopes for light rains around the end of the week. The highest reading recorded at the kiosk yesterday was 90, at 3 o'clock. The humidity at the same hour stood at 30, the lowest afternoon figure recorded in several weeks.

Capital Police Guard Arrested Then Freed

Marion, Ohio, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—M. R. Morgali, 30, member of the Capitol police force in Washington, D. C., was arrested on suspicion here today but was released a few hours later when Representative Grant E. Mouser, jr., assured authorities of his identification.

Morgali, police said, was taken into custody at Union Station. He displayed a badge to the officer, but was ordered held until Representative Mouser made the identification. Mouser said Morali was on a vacation at the time.

PRODUCE ADVANCING AS DROUGHT GOES ON

Canned Vegetables Already Have Been Increased Materially.

CORN AND POTATOES HIT

The drought that has shriveled crops about the country is beginning to expand local produce prices. Various canned vegetables have gone up materially in price, and, unless rains fall within the next week, fresh foodstuffs may go to record figures.

C. H. Wallace, superintendent of Center Market, said yesterday that while produce prices here have varied little in the past four weeks, he was convinced that they would take a sharp upward trend within the next few days if the drought continued. Even if rains should fall soon, he pointed out, so many crops have been damaged that price increases seem inevitable.

First quality vegetables are beginning to be scarce, and the drought has thus stimulated a market that has been somewhat sluggish during the early summer because of overproduction.

Among produce that is expected to reveal the most marked price increases soon are potatoes, corn, green peas, cucumbers, onions and lettuce. The corn crop in nearby communities hats suffered most severely from the dry period.

Associated Press dispatches from New York said that certain produce had increased from 20 to 25 per cent in price, and that commission men expected further increases within the week. As the price of milk in New York went up another cent a quart yesterday, the Socialist party committee delivered a broadside on the "milk interests."

Newark (N. J.) commission men predicted a fluctuation in prices, although little change was reported in carload shipments.

Gen. Patrick Back From Sickbed Visit

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, retired, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, returned to his desk today after a trip to the bedside of his son, Lieut. Breame C. Patrick, in Detroit.

Gen. Patrick learned of the illness of his son last week and because of the seriousness of his condition flew to Detroit by airplane. Gen. Patrick achieved wide notice when he learned to fly when he was appointed chief of the Air Service of the Army, although past 60 years old at the time. Lieut. Patrick is on the road to recovery.

Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer, returned to Washington yesterday from Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he underwent an operation. Dr. Edward J. Schwartz, assistant health officer, brought Dr. Fowler back to Washington in his automobile. Dr. Fowler is expected to pass several days at the seaside before resuming his work.

Man Escapes Alive As Car Is Crushed

Maj. W. Hardigg Suffers Abrasions as Concrete Mixer Capsizes.

Maj. William Hardigg, of 1831 Belmont street, narrowly escaped death yesterday, when a truck struck a large portable concrete mixer and turned it over on his car. Maj. Hardigg was extricated from the wreckage after twenty minutes, when firemen jacked up the bulk of the mixer and cut away the wreckage of his machine.

The accident happened at New Hampshire avenue and L street northwest, when a truck loaded with concrete slabs, crashed into one of the auto tanks which transport wet concrete, mixing it at the same time. The mixer slid into Maj. Hardigg's car and overturned. He had no time to start his car or to get out, but could only slide over to the right side of his car. The top of the sedan crumpled under the weight of the truck and pinned the Army man into his seat.

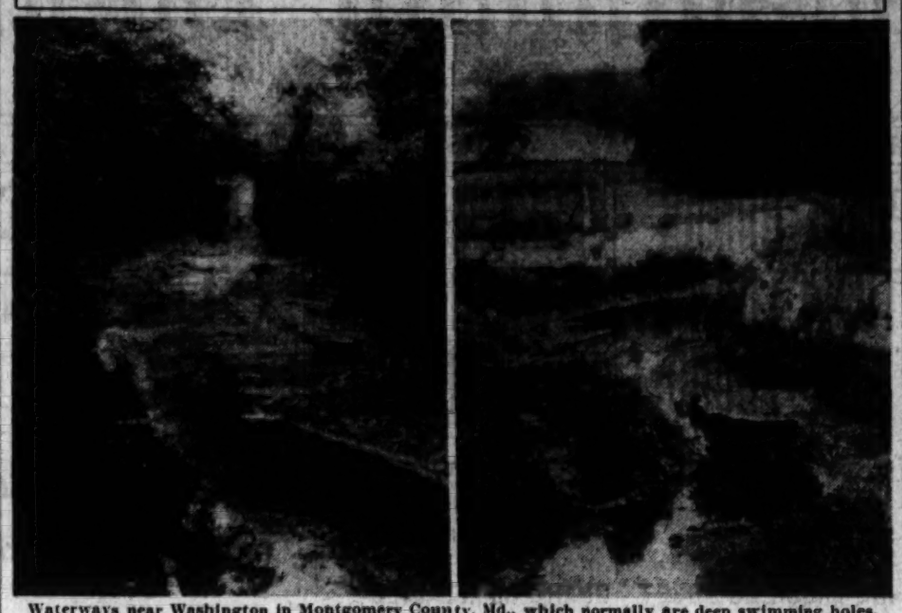

After being freed of the wreck, Maj. Hardigg went to Emergency Hospital, where cuts on his leg and arm were treated. The drivers of the commercial vehicles, Walter Douglas, colored, 932 Twenty-seventh street northwest, and N. A. Sydnor, of Falls Church, Va., were arrested and held at the Third Precinct station house while police investigated.

Policeman Will Join Force at White House

First Precinct Policeman Claude S. Weddle has tendered his resignation to the Police Department to accept a position August 15 with the White House police force.

Weddle is 35 years old and lives at 717 Tenth street northwest. He was sworn in on the force on July 23, 1929.

SWIMMING HOLES DRIED UP BY LONG DROUGHT

Waterways near Washington in Montgomery County, Md., which normally are deep swimming holes, have been transformed into arid sands dotted with shallow pools of stagnant water by the prolonged drought. On the left is a spot on the Seneca River near Seneca, Md., where the water ordinarily is reported to average about five feet in depth, but where wagon tracks now are seen as farmers of the vicinity use the river bed as a highway. On the right is a view of the dried-up Rock Creek just north of the District Line.

ANALYSIS OF CRIME STATISTICS PLANNED

U. S. SUPPORTING MOVE

Collation and analysis of crime statistics for the entire country will be undertaken by the Department of Justice beginning next month, J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department, reported to the annual convention of the International Association of Police chiefs in Duluth, Minn., last week.

That the department is ready to take over the work which heretofore has been done by the police chiefs association was disclosed here yesterday by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, who returned to his desk after attending the convention.

Success of the plan to develop uniform crime statistics will depend on the accuracy and fidelity with which the police departments throughout the country cooperate with the Department of Justice in forwarding information, Mr. Hoover warned the convention.

Handling of the crime statistics was undertaken by the Department of Justice at the instance of the police chiefs association, at the request of which Congress included in the annual appropriation bill for the current year authority and funds. Some time ago the department undertook to conduct a national identification bureau. This, too, was done at the request of the police chiefs.

Most of the important matters discussed at the convention and urged as adding to the efficiency of police departments already have been put in practice here, Maj. Pratt said.

These included a motor patrol supplementing foot patrolmen; police radio and teletype systems for instantaneous communication, and a women's bureau.

Driver Hit Three Cars Then Fled, Is Charge

Charges of driving while drunk and failing to stop after colliding were placed against Frank Mercer, 52 years old, of 1463 Columbia road northwest, yesterday after he is alleged to have struck three autos parked on Seaton place near Seventeenth street northwest.

It is said that after the collision, Mercer continued until stopped by a pedestrian, who jumped on his running board, and cut off the gas. He was arrested by Private G. F. Gitrington, of the Eighth Precinct.

Autoist Jailed 90 Days On Hit-and-Run Charge

Julius Shields, Negro, of N street northwest near Sixth street, was sentenced by Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court yesterday to serve 90 days in jail following conviction on a hit-and-run charge.

The Negro's automobile, according to testimony, struck and injured Mary Johnson, Negress, of 906 Euclid avenue northwest, Sunday night while she was standing on a street car loading platform at Rock Creek road and Georgia avenue northwest.

Man Hurt in Street Fall.

Henry Meyers, 51 years old, of 1343 Clifton street northwest, suffered lacerations of the forehead and right hand yesterday afternoon when he stumbled and fell to the sidewalk while walking at Pennsylvania avenue and Seventh street northwest. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Events of the War 13 Years Ago Today

'GREATER ST. LOUIS' NEARS NEW RECORD

HUNTERS WATCH FLIGHT

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 11 (A. P.).—Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine were counting off the hours tonight as they came nearer and nearer the 554-hour endurance flight mark held by the Hunter brothers of Sparta, Ill.

First it was weeks, then days, and now its only a matter of hours until the record taken to Chicago from St. Louis may be back here again. If the Greater St. Louis plane is still in the air at 9:52 a. m. (Central standard time), Wednesday, Jackson and O'Brine will have exceeded the Hunter brothers' mark by one hour, as required under rules governing endurance flights.

If the St. Louis airmen establish a new endurance record it probably will be witnessed by the fliers who are losing it, for the Hunter brothers arrived at Lambert-St. Louis Field today and expect to remain several days.

The Jackson-O'Brine flight has cost the Hunter brothers $100,000 in potential contracts, their manager, Harry Perkins, said; but they do not contemplate another endurance flight.

The Greater St. Louis plane had been aloft 513 hours at 4:11 p. m. today. "The engine is running fine," O'Brine said over the radio this morning. "We are having a lot of fun out of this flight. Just two more days and we will be sailing down hill."

The fliers intend to stay in the air eight days beyond the present mark, and to set a record of about 750 hours that will discourage rival endurance fliers.

Jackson and O'Brine were heartened today with the first prospects of financial returns for their venture. The oil company from which they are buying their oil announced it would give them $100 an hour for 70 hours after they break the existing record. A national radio chain is also negotiating for broadcasting rights.

Plans for a fireworks display at the flying field Wednesday night, if the record is broken, were completed today. The celebration will be financed by commercial flying concerns which have done a brisk business in sightseeing tours during the flight.

Sound motion picture photographs have established headquarters at the field to wait until Jackson and O'Brine come down.

Chesapeake Beach End of Ferry Line

Boats to Cross to Trippe's Bay on Eastern Shore Next Year.

A new ferry service will be inaugurated between Chesapeake Beach and Trippe's Bay, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, next year at a cost of $1,085,442, according to the terms of an application of the Chesapeake Beach Railroad Co., granted yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Two ferry boats, with a capacity of 95 vehicles and 1,800 passengers each, will be operated. The terminals, which will include 1,250 by 50 foot causeways and 750 by 40 foot wharves, are expected to be completed by the end of 1931.

The distance between Washington and Salisbury, on the Eastern Shore, will be shortened about 30 miles and that between the Capital and Cambridge by about 40 miles.

R-100 AT MONTREAL; CANADA CRUISE OVER

TO EUROPE THIS WEEK

St. Hubert Airport, Montreal, Quebec, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The British dirigible R-100, Leviathan of the skies, anchored to her mooring mast here at 6:40 o'clock (E. S. T.) tonight after a day and night's flight over part of eastern Canada and a bit of the United States.

Recently repaired after suffering a damaged fin on the England-to-Canada flight week before last, the big dirigible's trip answered the dual purpose of showing Canadians the latest aviation developments, and testing the work done at the airport here. Droning steadily along the airpaths in weather that varied from brilliant sunshine to rain squalls and gusty winds, she returned to the mooring mast in seemingly perfect condition.

The R-100 cruised over Montreal for half an hour before returning to the airport, where she appeared at 3:50 p. m. (E. S. T.) The officers, however, postponed anchoring until the air was cooler, with less wind.

Cruised Over Several Cities.

The dirigible left her mooring mast last night and cruised over Ottawa, Toronto, Lake Ontario and Niagara Falls, N. Y. At Niagara Falls the dirigible crossed the international border, flying over United States territory for the first time. She appeared over the American city twice, first at 5:40 a. m. and again at 8 a. m.

The big ship flew over Ottawa at 10 o'clock last night, cruised in the neighborhood for 45 minutes, and then headed for Toronto, where it arrived at 3:40 a. m. (E. S. T.). After circling the city it left for Niagara Falls, but revisited Toronto during the day.

Ottawa, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The possibility that growth of aerial communication between England and the Americas may necessitate erection of a second dirigible mooring mast in Canada, probably at Moncton, New Brunswick, was discussed at a conference yesterday between officers of the R-100 and government air officials.

St. Hubert Best Equipped.

St. Hubert is regarded here as the best-equipped airdrome in North America, and it was said it would continue to be the base of operations between England and Canada by dirigibles, but an auxiliary base nearer the Atlantic Coast is favored as a means of speeding up transoceanic dirigible trips, and the City of Moncton is regarded as the most favorable site.

Toronto, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The British dirigible R-100 flew over Canadian cities today and dipped twice into the United States, crossing the international border at Niagara Falls.

This morning the vessel passed over the government building at Ottawa, made three visits to Toronto, and swung around the western tip of Lake Ontario to Niagara Falls. Thousands saw the largest of all dirigibles as she flew at low altitude through a clear sky.

Today's flight served as a test for last week's repairs, and with favorable weather the airship will start back across the Atlantic some time this week.

Apartment Robbed of $70 Watch.

ARMY, NAVY RENEW COAST DEFENSE ROW

HOOVER ASKS CONCORD

The revived ten-year-old controversy over the dividing line between Army and Navy aerial defense of the coast is seething in the Capital.

Secretary of the Navy Adams was not disposed to comment upon the matter, but in reply to questions said the Navy had made every effort to observe the agreement worked out two years ago by the Army and Navy joint board, whose function is to pass upon questions of policy where differences develop between the two services.

At the same time Secretary of War Hurley took the position that in submitting the matter to Attorney General Mitchell for a legal ruling the Navy Department raised certain questions of vital importance to the Army. It was on this account that Mr. Hurley submitted the matter to President Hoover.

Secretaries Are Silent.

Since the matter is now before the President, neither Mr. Adams nor Mr. Hurley was disposed to go into the merits of the controversy. However, other spokesmen of both services did not hesitate to talk and left no room for doubt that there is a lot of feeling in Army and Navy circles.

The row is over the meaning of a provision of the Army appropriation act of 1920, reading:

"And provided further that hereafter the War Army Service (now Air Corps) shall control all aerial operations from land bases and Navy aviation shall have control of all aerial operations attached to a fleet, including shore stations whose maintenance is necessary for operations connected with the fleet, for construction and experimentation and for the training of personnel."

Navy Concedes Point.

The interpretation of the clause outlining naval aerial operations is the nub of the whole controversy.

The army insists that Congress in passing this provision clearly intended to give it exclusive control of all aerial operations in defense of the coast.

Curiously enough, the Navy concedes this, and goes even further, declaring that the right of the Army to defend the coast has always been recognized by the Navy.

But the Navy objects to the Army construing to its own advantage the latter part of the provision relating to naval aerial operations and allowable shore bases.

In 1926 and 1928 the Army and Navy Joint Board worked out agreements which were approved by the two secretaries that were designed to settle the controversy. The Navy insists it has lived up to both these agreements, and that its operation of planes from shore bases is purely for the purpose of protecting sea lanes of commerce and communication, not the coast line.

The President apparently did not welcome the placing of this particular controversy on the White House doorstep and has told Messrs. Adams and Hurley to tackle the problem all over again and seek a solution that can be made to stick.

Body of Drowned Man Recovered From River

The body of George P. Odquist, 23 years old, connected with the advertising detail desk of The Washington Post, was recovered yesterday from the Bush River at Otter Point Station, near Belair, Md. He drowned there early Sunday morning while in swimming with several companions.

Funeral arrangements await the arrival of his father from Hutchinson, Minn. Odquist attended the United States Naval Academy for two years, leaving there in the spring of 1929 in conformity with an entrance proviso which declared that he would withdraw if he had not grown to the stipulated minimum height of midshipmen.

Schreiner's Career In U. S. Work Ends

Executive in Treasury Department Was 67 Years in Service.

Edmund E. Schreiner, 83, the oldest employe of the Treasury Department, retired as superintendent of the Comptroller of Currency's Office yesterday after 67 years of Government service. He was eligible for retirement in 1920, but was granted five extensions.

Mr. Schreiner was born in Gettysburg, Pa., but has lived in Washington since he was 1 year of age. He entered the commissary division of the War Department in 1863, later entering the Treasury Department as messenger and office boy.

During his service with the Comptroller of Currency's Office he destroyed more than $13,000,000,000 in frayed or torn bank notes. When he retired yesterday, with many tributes from his fellow workers, he was the oldest employe of the department both in years and point of service. Mr. Schreiner lives with his daughter and sister-in-law at the Balfour Apartments, Sixteenth and U streets northwest.

Theodosia Haine, Sunshine Dispenser to Shut-Ins, Dies

Invalid for 47 Years, Ohio Woman Brought Cheer to Thousands Housebound Like Herself, as Well as to Prisoners.

Warren, Ohio, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The sun still shines through the windows of "Sunshine Corner" today, but the source of the light which went from for years to cheer the unhappy world over has gone.

Miss Theodosia Haine, 67 years old, is dead.

At the age of 20 she developed disease and was unable to walk. Confined to her room, Miss Haine joined the Shut-in Society of New York and began correspondence with shut-ins like herself.

She soon conceived the idea of writing to prisoners, to give them advice and encouragement. Her correspondence grew to such an extent that it became out of hand, and she organized a committee on prison letters of which she was national chairman.

The world went to her. Prisoners, after they had been released, paid her numerous visits. Hundreds of persons from many parts of the world wore down a path to her door, and brought her gifts and curios with which she lined her room. They named her room "Sunshine Corner."

By means of correspondence she sold bookmarks containing cheery poems and verses from the scriptures. With the proceeds she supported three Methodist missionaries in China.

For ten years, prior to her death yesterday, she was secretary of the extension membership committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and under her leadership the number of members increased more than tenfold.

Her death was due to a complication of diseases. She leaves two sisters, Mary and Grace, of Warren, and three brothers, Jay and Clarence, of Warren, and Austin Haine, of Cleveland. Burial will be at Bloomfield, her birthplace, near here.

WILL DURANT URGES POLITICAL REFORMS

HAS GRADED MAYOR PLAN

University, Va., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Will Durant, New York author, told the Virginia Institute of Public Affairs here today that there was no way out of the domination of political life in the United States by men of third-rate ability except to make education a qualification for public office.

In his address on "Is Democracy a Failure?" Mr. Durant asserted the final "breakdown of democracy appeared in the increasing insecurity of life in our cities, where political machines were in league with the world of crime and in the inability of Congress to face the complex economic problems confronting it every day."

"I should like to see in all our great universities, schools of public administration in which students would be prepared as specifically and technically for the tasks of government as they are now prepared for medicine, for engineering and law, and no one should be eligible to municipal office unless he had received such training," he said.

Would Graduate Mayors.

Besides higher educational training, the speaker proposed a graduation of public office, giving as an example the suggestion that the mayor of a first-class city should first be mayor of a second-class city, and the mayor of a second-class city should first be a mayor of a third-class city.

Education, he said, was his suggestion for salvaging democracy.

Under his plan, he cotninued, every adult would vote, but no one could vote for an unqualified candidate; "democracy would be made fool proof."

There is now way, short of dictatorship, he said, to escape from the clutches of the political machines, except education.

Monroe Doctrine Proposal.

He held that democracy had become unreal because of the decay of the economic basis on which it once rested in America—"free land, free competition, national isolation and the comparative self-emficiency, or economic indepndence, of the individual homestead."

The speaker opened his address by asserting that democracy has given neither government by the people, nor government by the best, and that the path of office lay now not in honest service to the people, bu in dishonest service to the machine.

A suggestion to Latin-American republics that they declare Monroe Doctrines of their own was made by James Brown Scott, international lawyer and secretary of the Carnegie Foundation for International eace, in an address before the institute today.

Badge of Humiliation.

Admitting that the United States doctrnie is of benefit both to this country and to the other republics of the Western Hemisphere, he said it was nevertheless "a badge of humiliation to our Southern friends."

"It is because," he said, "the doctrine is of the United States and not of the American republics, in the sense that it is proclaimed by the United States, interpreted by the United States, and applied by the United States in their own interests, however much it may affect the other American republics."

To relieve the stigma of the United States policy, then, he asserted, each of the 21 free and independent American States could declare the doctrine in its own self-defense, on the same principles set forth by Monroe.

The effect would be to make it a doctrine of the entire continent, he said.

Man Who Came to Get Collateral Is Jailed

Benjamin E. Smithison, who boasted in Police Court yesterday that he had come down merely to recover the $10 collateral he posted Sunday on an assault charge, lost the money and in addition received a straight 60-day jail sentence.

Smithison and Charlie Gross were alleged by police to have assaulted Eva Stone, of Four-and-One-Half street southwest near M street. Gross was sentenced to serve 90 days in jail on the same charge. Smithison told the court that he intended to appear only to get back his collateral.

WALKER SUBPENAED IN JOB BARTER CASE

Mayor Must Testify Before Grand Jury on Alleged Judgship Sale.

OLVANY ALSO IS CALLED

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Mayor Walker, George W. Olvany, former head of Tammany Hall, and Emerich Bocsor, once secretary to former city Magistrate George F. Ewald, were subpenaed today to appear before a county grand jury and tell what they knew, if anything, concerning allegations that Ewald paid $12,000 for his appointment.

Bocsor, a lifelong friend of Ewald, was named today by United States Attorney Tuttle as the "mysterious witness" who told a Federal grand jury that Ewald told him he paid $12,000 for his job.

The mayor and Judge Olvany are to be asked to tell of the circumstances of Ewald's appointment, who recommended him and what arguments were put forward in his behalf.

It already has been established by Mr. Tuttle and Mr. Crain that Mrs. Ewald loaned Thomas T. Tommaney, chief clerk to Sheriff Farley, $10,000 which he in turn gave to Martin Healey, Tammaney leader of the Nineteenth District and suspended deputy commissioner of plant and structures.

Healey, suspended by the mayor when he refused to testify regarding the loan before a Federal grand jury, had a long talk today with District Attorney Crain, in which he admitted receiving $10,000 from Tammaney but denied it was in payment for his support of Ewald for the magistrate's bench.

Chemical Explosion Kills Man in New York

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—One person was killed, two were injured and twelve others were buried in debris for more than an hour late today after a chemist in experimenting caused an explosion which wrecked a downtown building.

The body of Erke Malino, 19, a press feeder, was dug out of the wreckage hours after the blast. Mrs. Lillian Deff, 40, suffering from severe contusions and abrasions, and Domidick Signorelli, 20, with a dislocated hip, were taken to a hospital. The others returned to their homes after first-aid treatment.

Representative's Suite At Hotel Ransacked

A bedroom in the seventh-floor apartment of Representative Luther A. Johnson, of Texas, at the Wardman Park Hotel, has been ransacked and an undetermined amount of loot taken during the absence of Representative Johnson, his wife and their son at their home in Corsicana, Tex.

Fourteenth Precinct police said that employes, upon entering the apartment yesterday for the first time since the departure of the Johnson family on August 8, found the bedroom in disorder. Entry was believed to have been effected by the use of a duplicate key.

ALABAMA TO NAME HEFLIN'S OPPONENT

Voters to Select Nominees Today for Offices From Sheriff to Senator.

TOTAL BALLOTS FACTOR

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Alabama Democrats tomorrow will select their nominees for every office from United States senator to constable under conditions which make the size of the vote as much of a focus of general interest as the division in any one race.

The situation was created by the independent campaign of J. Thomas Heflin, senior United States senator, for renomination, and Hugh A. Locke, of Birmingham, candidates for governor, who have stumped the State asking their supporters to stay out of the Democratic primary. Both were barred from participating as candidates in the primary on account of their opposition in 1928 to Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee. Tomorrow will see Alabama's first State-wide primary since the State came within 7,000 votes of going for Hoover.

Estimates of the number of ballots to be cast in tomorrow's primary ranged from 165,000 to 200,000, depending on the view of the observer as to the proportion of the 75,000 Democratic deflectors of 1928 who return to the party.

Some political leaders expressed the belief that a vote of 200,000 in tomorrow's primary would all but end the hopes of the independents, or "Jeffersonian Democrats," headed by Senator Heflin, for a successful race against the Democratic ticket.

More than 1,000 candidates are to be voted on tomorrow, listing Federal, State, district and county offices, but only the senatorial and gubernatorial races have drawn general interest.

John H. Bankhead, Jasper attorney, and Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher, are contesting for the senatorial nomination and the winner will run against Senator Heflin, for 34 years an office-holder, as a member of the party.

In the senatorial campaign "big business," monopolies, the Alabama Power Co., development of inland waterways and disposition of Muscle Shoals, have been issues.

While Democrats are casting their ballots in the primaries, the "Jeffersonian Democrats" will hold mass meetings in county seats to nominate county tickets in some instances and in others choose delegates to the State convention to be held here September 1.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

ONE can not forgive Former Commissioner Fenning for one thing and that is the way in which he disillusioned us about the Emergency Hospital ambulance.

One had been taught since early childhood to respect this vehicle, to step quickly aside when its horn roared, because it was rushing on an errand of mercy, bearing the ill, the diseased and the maimed.

It was with a cheerfulness that one did this, too. The vehicle was a fascinating thing as it sped past, an alleviator of distress.

* * * *

ONE'S mind raced back to the childhood picture of 1898 of trains of sleeping cars bearing the mosquito-ridden soldiers of the Spanish-American War. "Sh, a soldier hospital train," an elder would say, and our eyes would pop out of our heads in reverent awe, never thinking, of course, that another decade or so would give us an opportunity to ride in one of the things.

But what does Commissioner Fenning do to these illusions born of youth and developed on through manhood? What pronouncement does he make concerning Emergency's ambulance to precipitate it to the class of a mere noisy wagon on four wheels?

He investigated it one day when it went roaring through the town, its siren commanding the respect of the populace.

Was it going after mankind's broken bones?

Was it hastening to the hospital with some poor soul drawing his last breath, a casualty of the tumult of life? No, indeed; it was scurrying back with a bag of laundry.

* * * *

NOW there is nothing gripping or heart-beating about a bag of laundry. It is one of the most prosaic—would you say — articles, commodities or things in the world.

Millions of housewives every Monday make up one of the things and neither they nor the country in general has ever considered it a heroic business, something to command one's awe or admiration.

We think Mr. Fenning should have kept this find to himself. The knowledge of it has done us no good. It has destroyed or at least seriously detracted from another illusion and without illusions life seems a futile thing.

We hear that ambulance coming down the street now, its siren sounding the weird call or the plaintive cry of the distressed. Involuntarily we jump and suffer a heart pang and then comes that question of doubt:

"Has the darned thing just got a bag of laundry now?"

OHIO PRIMARY TODAY CENTERS ON SENATE

LIGHT VOTE EXPECTED

Columbus, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A primary campaign marked by the bringing to the fore of the prohibition issue will end in Ohio tomorrow when Democrats and Republicans say it with ballots in choosing their standard bearers for the November election.

A light vote was anticipated in the nominating election for senatorial, State, congressional and county offices.

The "wet and dry" question was injected into the contest between five men for the Democratic senatorial nomination, one of whom has advocated repeal of the eighteenth amendment, another taking a stand for modification, two candidates remaining silent and another considered dry.

Few G. O. P. Contests.

The Republicans have few contests on their State tickets, and, as a result, are expected to poll only a light vote, but on the Democratic side the competition of five men for the senatorial choice has aroused considerable interest.

Robert J. Bulkley, former representative, of Cleveland, is the repeal candidate, with George S. Myers, Clevelatnd attorney, and lieutenant governor nominee two years ago, the modificationist. John McSweeney, former representative, of Wooster, is classed as dry, while William W. Durbin, Kenton, former chairman of the State executive committee, and Charles V. Truax, Bucyrus, former State director of agriculture, have not made known their views on the liquor question.

Farm Relief Platform.

Durbin and Truax have conducted their campaigns principally on platforms for farm relief, and readjustment of the tariff. Roscoe C. McCulloch, Canton, is unopposed for the Republican senatorial nomination.

In the gubernatorial race, Gov. Cooper has no opposition on the Republican ticket while George White, Marietta banker, and Stephen S. Young, Cleveland attorney, are candidates on the Democratic ballot.

Republicans have three entries for State treasurer and Democrats have four for the office. Several contests appear over the State on both tickets for congressional nominations.

FESS AND M'KELVIE CLASH ON NORRIS AID

to be assisted. The assistance could take on no more helpful form, for example, than more statements from high party men, like Fess, that Republicans should support a Republican nominee.

One gets the impression that Senator George Moses, chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, would not hesitate to give such a statement.

The whole business in intriguing, because it was around Senator Norris that the President has made his one and only primary campaign utterance. Representative Reece got into trouble down in the First District of Tennessee because he supported the President's Muscle Shoals plan as opposed to that of Senator Norris. Mr. Hoover went to his rescue with a letter in which he denounced the Norris plan.

BACKING OF HOOVER ISSUE IN NEBRASKA

Stebbins, Opponent of Norris in Republican Primary, Pledges Regularity.

WOMAN DEMOCRAT DRY

Lincoln, Nebr., Aug. 12 (A.P.).—"For Hoover or not for Hoovre" was the cry which reverberated across the plains of Nebraska tonight as the State's most bitterly fought senatorial primary campaign came to a close.

Political observers saw in tomorrow's primary a test of the Hoover administration strength in the farm belt and predicted a record vote.

George W. Norris, senior Nebraska senator and veteran campaigner, seeking the Republican nomination, stumped the State denouncing the tariff, assailing what he termed the "power trust" and criticizing administration farm relief measures.

Stebbins Pledges Regularity.

His opponent, W. M. Stebbins, pleaded with equal vigor for a return to a "two-party system," attacked Norris for failure to cooperate with the Hoover administration and pledged himself to party regularity.

Conservative Republicans, backing Stebbins, have charged that because Norris supported Al Smith two years ago he had ostracized himself from the Republican ranks. In reply, Norris declared he believed it better to follow conscience than party and that he could defend every vote in which he opposed the administration.

The prohibition issue was injected by Aaron Read, 84 years old, who has campaigned for the Republican senatorial nomination, advocating a repeal of dry laws.

Dry on Democratic Ticket.

On the Democratic senatorial ticket is Dr. Jennie M. Callfas, a prohibitionist and former Democratic national committeewoman, who in 1928 deserted her party to support Herbert Hoover in the presidential campaign. She is opposed by Gilbert M. Hitchcock, former United States senator from Nebraska.

Two candidates who were foes in the 1928 general election are entered in the gubernatorial race. Gov. Arthur J. Weaver, Republican, seeks a second term. He is opposed by Harry O. Palmer, an Omaha attorney.

Weaver's opponent in 1928, Charles W. Bryan, brother of the late William Jennings Bryan and Democratic nominee for Vice President in 1924, seeks the Democratic nomination. He is opposed by Anton H. Jensen, of Lincoln.

Capone Linked As Raid Looms

Judge Orders Police Foray on Offices Believed Set Up by Gang Chief.

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The North Side gang headquarters supposedly set up by Al Capone to take over Bugs Moran's liquor and vice business was ordered raided today by Judge John H. Lyle.

Judge Lyle, having read newspaper stories in which Capone was said to have installed Ted Newberry as his North Side chief, ordered Newberry's cabaret raided and offered to issue the necessary warrants.

The newspapers published stories which said Bugs Moran had been forced out by the slaying of his chief operator, Jack Zuta, whose killing in a Wisconsin summer resort eleven days ago came as a sequel to the assassination of Jake Lingle, Tribune crime reporter. Capone was purported to have usurped Moran's business by taking advantage of his rival's absence from the city since the Lingle and Zuta killings.

Six Die as Flames Destroy Cottage

Stored Fireworks Suspected After Tennessee Home Is Burned.

Johnson City, Tenn., Aug. 11 (A.P.). Charles Witt, 50, died in a hospital this afternoon, the sixth victim of a fire that destroyed a cottage in an amusement park near here early today. His son, Hugh Lee Witt, 25, remained in a serious condition.

Hugh Lee Witt's wife, Mrs. Hugh Lee Witt, 25, their two children, Hugh Lee Witt, jr., 2, and Marie Witt, 3; Iva Witt, 16; Mrs. Witt's brother-in-law, and Paul Reeder, 25, an employe at the park, perished in the flames.

Charles Witt had concessions at the park, known as Cox's Lake, and Hugh Lee Witt had charge of fireworks displays. Police investigated to determine whether fireworks had been stored in the cottage.

The fire occurred about daylight and the victims were burned in their beds.

CAMPAIGN OF SLURS ENDS IN OKLAHOMA

OIL BARONS CANDIDATES

Oklahoma City, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Oklahoma Democrats emerged from a brief campaign of biting personal attacks tonight to ponder their choice at the run-off primary tomorrow of nominees for governor and United States senator.

Seeking the gubernatorial nomination are Frank Buttram, Oklahoma City oil millionaire, who campaigned for a "sane" business administration and free text books for school children, and William Henry (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, stormy petrel of politics since Indian Territory days, who says he would aid the drought-ridden farmer by increasing the tax on the rich.

In the contest for the Democratic senatorial nomination, another oil millionaire, E. J. Wrightsman, of Tulsa, opposes Thomas P. Gore, who, although sightless, sat in the United States Senate for 13 years.

Murray Led in First Primary.

In the first primary, July 29, Murray, recently returned from an unsuccessful attempt to establish a colony of American farmers in Bolivia, led Buttram by 65,000 votes and since has gained the support of several defeated candidates. Gore had a small margin over Wrightsman.

The contest for the governor's nomination—and Oklahoma always has chosen Democrats for that post—has bee nby far the most vituperative. Buttram's followers attacked even their opponent's table manners, and Murray retaliated with the assertion that he was "common" and that he is like "common folks." The Oklahoma City oil man was called a "tool of the interests" and a "millionaire tax dodger" by Murray men. The opposition countered with a charge that Murray was dominated by "asphalt interests and the oil trust."

Tax Proposal Is Attacked.

A picture of closed factories and unemployment was painted by the Buttram supporters in the event Murray's gross income tax proposal goes into effect and the foes of the moustached author of the State constitution pointed suggestingly to impeachment and ouster of Henry S. Johnston and J. C. (Jack) Walton, the last two chief executives elected. They challenged Murray's eligibility to hold office on the ground that he has been a resident of Bolivia for most of the last three years and declared the Republicans, who have nominated Ira Hill, will take the eligibility question into court if Murray receives the nomination.

Proposing to "fire undercierks" and live in the executive garage while renting out the mansion, Murray dared his rivals to try ouster proceedings when and if he is governor. Later he amended the garage decision, saying he decided it was "too little to turn around in, even if it did cost Oklahoma $39,000."

Bolivian Expedition Ridiculed.

Murray's unsuccessful Bolivian expedition has been held up to view by his opponents as significant of the candidate's "incompetence." The Tishomingo man answered that Buttram and Herbert Hoover were "successful business men, but Hoover is the worst failure as President the country has ever had."

The senatorial race has been only slightly less bitter. The winner must oppose Senator W. B. Pine, Republican, and several Independents, including Walton, the ousted governor.

Democrats have eleven other Statewide contests and the Republicans six. There are three Democratic congressional contests and in two districts—First and Fifth—the party hopes to recoup from defeats in the Hoover landslide.

Norris, Nebraska Grocer, Tool in Plot, Nye Claims

A promise to reveal the influences back of the abortive senatorial candidacy of George W. Norris, grocery clerk of Broken Bow, Nebr., against the veteran senator of the same name, was made yesterday by Chairman Nye (Republican), North Dakota, of the Senate campaign investigating committee.

Nye is now in the West conducting further investigations concerning the Norris-Norris episode. In a telegram to his office here yesterday the chairman announced that he will reopen hearings in Nebraska on September 1, and that "the committee will be able as a result of the scheduled hearing to demonstrate that it is not true that George W. Norris, of Broken Bow, was a candidate as a result of his own or lone choosing and will be able to prove that others were instrumental in causing him to announce himself as a candidate for the Senate and that his candidacy was not one in good faith."

Chairman Nye's promise foreshadows a showdown on the assertions of friends of Senator Norris, who blamed the Nebraska power interests and other public utilities for the attempt to force the Senator off the primary ballot by adding another identical name.

After the Nebraska hearings, Nye also announced, the committee will reassemble in Chicago for a continuation of its inquiry into the Illinois senatorial primary. He expects the Illinois hearings to get under way about September 8, he said.

Suicide Seen in Burning Of Father, Three Minors

Kinsley, Kans., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A father and his three children were found dead today in the ruins of their home, which was destroyed by fire. They are Albert Watkins, Erine Elizabeth, 9; Margaret Alberta, 6, and Charles Albert, 2.

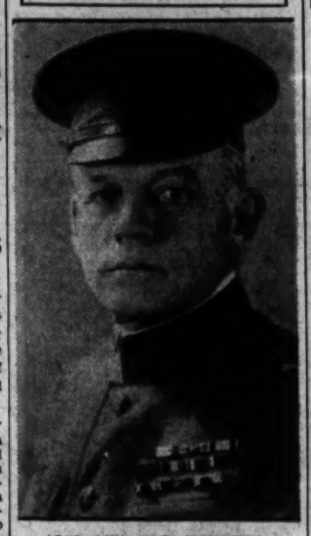

Firemen, after extinguishing the blaze, found the bodies in an upstairs room and a five-gallon can which had contained gasoline was nearby. Blood near the bodies led ahorities to believe the victims may have been shot before the fire started. Mrs. Neva Watkins, the wife and mother, was at work in a restaurant at the time of the fire. The father was not employed. A filling station attendant reported he had sold Watkins some gasoline just before the blaze.

Former Capital Man Will Wed in New York

New York, Aug. 11.—Philip Woskoff, 25, an engineering assistant, the son of Harris and Annie Kahn Woskoff, of Washington, where he was born, and Miss Sally Saffron, 25, of 96 Avenue C, this city, obtained a marriage license here today. The couple said they would be married sometime this month, but did not reveal where the ceremony would be performed.

Mr. Woskoff gave his present address as 1116 Fifty-fourth street, Brooklyn. Miss Saffron was born in this city, the daughter of Harris and Rose Schein Saffron.

DEMOCRATS TO VOTE IN ARKANSAS TODAY

DEFENDS DRY RECORD

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Attempt to unseat the veteran congressional leader, Senator Joe T. Robinson, and a four-cornered gubernatorial contest featured the campaign which closed tonight for Democratic nomination in tomorrow's biennial State primary.

Voters are to select nominees for senator, governor, seven congressional places and nearly all State, district and county offices. The total vote is expected to be more than 225,000. The Democratic nomination is considered equivalent to election in State, district and nearly all county races.

The senatorial race between the Senate minority leader and 1928 vice presidential candidate, and his first primary opponent in twelve years, Tom W. Campbell, Little Rock lawyer, developed into a heated affair during the last two weeks.

Robinson Defends Dry Record.

Campbell attacked Robinson's record on prohibition, power legislation and farm relief. Robinson countered with a vigorous defense of his record as a "dry," denied he had favored the so-called "power trust" while in Congress, and defended his record on farm legislation.

The State Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League actively supported Campbell and the Arkansas grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, J. A. Comer, a Republican, was censured both by Robinson and the Pulaski County (Little Rock) Democratic central committee, for his activity in behalf of Campbell.

Several county central committees indorsed Senator Robinson's candidacy for renomination, some of them predicting he would be the 1932 presidential nominee.

Highways Chief Issue.

Gov. Harvey Parnell, seeking a second elective term, has three opponents, Brooks Hays, Little Rock lawyer; County Judge John C. Shemeld, of Helena, and Thornberry Gray, State legislator, of Batesville.

The $72,000,000 highway-building program and its administration formed the principal issues, with the governor's opponents attacking the State highway commission.

Four of the seven representatives are unopposed. Six candidates are seeking the nomination in the second district, to succeed Mrs. Pearl Peden Oldfield; Representative D. D. Glover, of the Sixth District, has one opponent, Sam D. Carson, and Representative Heartsill Ragon, of the Fifth, has two opponents, Sam Wassell and Oscar Winn.

MENOHER, FORMER AIR CHIEF, IS DEAD

CLASHED WITH MITCHELL

Gen. Menoher had withdrawn his request for the removal of Mitchell at the request of the Secretary of War. The dispute centerd principally about th adequacy and conduct of the Army air service.

Mr. Weeks said that the reasons submitted by Gen. Menoher justified his action, but "the Secretary believed that in the interest of the air service and he Government itself such action would be undesirable and unfortunate at this time."

The temporary adjustment of the dispte proved but fleeting. Almost at once the dispute between Mitchell and his superior officer flared again over the competency of the administration of the air service. In deference to Mr. Weeks' wishes, Gen. Menoher withheld action for a while, and then tendered his resignation from that position.

World War Record.

Assigned to command the Hawaiian department, he again came into conflict with Mitchell's views. The general, himself, however, refrained from public discussion of his differences with his former subordnate.

At the entrance of the United States into the World War he was an artillery colonel. He was sent to France as a brigadier general. Then he was assigned to command the famous Rainbow Division as major general.

To recount the work of Gen. Menoher in France is to review the history of the renowned Rainbow Division, composed of National Guard units from all States of the Union. It was composed of the first units to reach France. Its history under Gen. Menoher constitutes one of the most vivid chapters in the annals of the American Expeditionary Force.

Had Many Citations.

He directed the division in active fighting in the Luneville and accarat sectors in 1918, in the Champagne-Marne offensive in July and August of that year, the attack on St. Mihiel in September, and then in the Argonne attack just prior to the armistice.

For his service he was promoted to the command of the Sixth Corps. He has among his citations the Distinguished Service Cross and was decorated by the French, Belgian and Italian governments.

To Rest in Arlington.

He was born in Pennsylvania March 20, 1862. He was graduated from the Military Academy in 1886. He saw service in the Philippines during the insurrection in 1906 and 1907 and also in the Spanish American War. Gen. Menoher retired in 1928. He made his home at 2227 Twentieth street northwest. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth P. Menoher, and three sons, Maj. Pearson Menoher, an instructor at the General Service School, Fort Leavenworth; Capt. Darrow Menoher, of the Twelfth Cavalry at Fort Brown, Tex., and Cadet William Menoher, who is in his second year at the Military Academy.

Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery. Arrangements have not been completed.

1902 Message Found in Bottle Asks for Aid, Baldwin Points Out.

(Associated Press.)

Informed yesterday that a bottle contaiining a message he wrote in 1902 had been found near Franz Joseph Land, Evelyn Briggs Baldwin said it proved the expedition returned because of low fuel supplies and not because of disputes between Norwegian and American members.

Mr. Baldwin, now a worker in the historical section of the Navy Department, was the leader of the party which established a base in Franz Joseph Land for an attempt to reach the North Pole. The note, found in a bottle by a Soviet Arctic expedition, asked for fuel, sleds, dogs and food.

"At all times the Norwegian men were most loyal," Mr. Baldwin said. "Reports that the expedition had returned because of trouble with the crews are absolutely unfounded."

Three Movie Stars Will Go on Stage

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Mary Pickford, Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque, motion picture stars, will appear in Broadway stage plays this fall, an announcement by Arch Selwyn, theatrical producer, today said.

Miss Banky and Mr. La Rocque, her husband, will be costarred in a play being adapted from the Hungarian by John Emerson and Anita Loos. Miss Banky is now in Paris conferring with Miss Loos.

It has not been decided in what play Miss Pickford will appear, but it is considered possible she will be starred with another film actor with whom Mr. Selwyn is negotiating. Miss Pickford has not appeared on the legitimate stage since 1908, when she had a role in David Belasco's production of "The Warrens of Virginia."

Leading manufacturers have arranged for 105 exhibits of their wares in the grand ballroom of the hotel.

Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderefer will deliver an address of welcome at this morning's assembly, after the convention has been called to order by K. C. Eldridge, jr., of Portland, Oreg., the president. The response to this address will be made by J. L. Schumaker, of Philadelphia, second vice president. Then follows another address by C. P. McCormick, president of the American Mayonnaise Association.

Reports are to be given by Secretary E. J. Martin and Treasurer Albert A. Kirchhoff, both of Chicago.

After luncheon the members will again assemble in the garden of the Mayflower to hear speeches by Hugh P. Baker, head of the trade association department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Herman A. Baker, leading food distributor of Pittsburgh. The late afternoon and evening will be spent at a social meeting of the exhibitors and distributors in the ballroom.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, whose profession as a physician has acquainted him with many phases of the food industry, will speak at a special session tomorrow morning in the United States Chamber of Commerce building. The convention members are to spend the afternoon in a sight-seeing tour, which will include a boat trip to Mount Vernon. Tomorrow evening the members are to hold a stag party, while the accompanying family members are conducted on a theater party.

The convention banquet will be held Thursday evening. Business sessions are scheduled for Thursday and Friday. Harry L. Carpel and Herman Norwood are two Washingtonians active in the convention.

"Ducky" Yates, Golfer, Accused of Larceny

New York, Aug. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Arthur P. "Ducky" Yates, of Rochester, N. Y., crack amateur golfer, appeared before Judge William A. Allen in general sessions today charged with grand larceny and was held in $2,500 bail, after pleading not guilty.

Yates, arrested last Friday on the links of the Lakeville Golf and Country Club at Great Neck, Long Island, is charged by Madeline McKay with taking $2,500 with which to purchase stock in a railway signal company. Miss McKay alleges that she has received neither the stock nor the money. Yates is at present a contestant in the New York State amateur golf championship tournament.

Runaway Girl Is Found On Floor, Gas Jet Open

Frightened at her own audacity in running away from home and staying two days, and fearful of the disciplinary action her father might take, Minerva May Michael, 15 years old, yesterday attempted suicide, according to police. She went into the bathroom at 214 Fourth street northeast, and turned on the gas.

Other occupants of the house smelled gas and forced open the door, finding her unconscious upon the floor. Casualty Hospital ambulance was called, as was the Fire Rescue Squad. Both of these gave her first aid, and said her condition was not serious.

35 Hurt When Balcony In Memphis Store Falls

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Thirty-five persons were taken to hospitals today after the collapse of a balcony in a furniture store where a sale of dishes was being held.

The balcony, crowded with shoppers, mostly women and children, fell 10 feet and many of the victims were buried in the debris, from which they were extricated by firemen. One woman sustained a broken leg. As far as police have been able to determine, all other victims suffered only minor injuries. Water that sprayed the throng from a broken fire extinguisher added to the confusion.

WOUNDS FATAL

SWEETHEART KILLER DIES OF GUN WOUNDS

BODY LIES UNCLAIMED

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 11.—Earl G. Turner, 42-year-old construction worker, who killed his sweetheart, Miss Margaret Limerick, 20, last Friday morning and then tried to end his own life by firing two bullets into his head, died at Mary Washington Hospital here this morning.

Turner, who came here from Philadelphia, had been living for several months at a rooming house where the girl was employed as a waitress. They went riding together frequently and Turner had made numerous offers of marriage which had been refused.

After shooting the pretty young girl to death as she sat beside him in his car, Turner used the last two bullets in his .25-caliber automatic pistol in the hope of killing himself but failed. When picked up in the roadway he said he killed the girl because he could not live without her.

Although it is understood here that Turner has a wife and child in Philadelphia, no one has claimed his body.

The dead are Harold Waldon, 25, Clearmont, Ind., and Harold Goss, 27, Indianapolis. Bruce Russell, 24, of Littleton, Ala., brother of the foreman of the job, saved himself.

The three men were working on a crescent-shaped movable platform, held by three ropes. One of the end supports slipped, tilting the platform.

ST. LOUIS ARREST PAIR

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—With the slaying of Jerry Buckley, radio political commentator, as its focal point, the entire crime situation of Detroit and Wayne County will be laid before a 23-man grand jury starting next Monday.

The jury investigation, formally ordered today by the circuit court, will be conducted under the personal direction of Attorney General Wilber M. Brucker, assisted by Prosecutor James E. Chenot and Special Assistant Prosecutor Paul W. Voorheis.

Judges Draw Plans.

The announcement of the procedure to be followed in the investigation was made today after a four-hour conference between judge of the Wayne Circuit Court, Brucker and Chenot.

While the machinery for a grand jury was going into motion detectives were busy seeking witnesses from whom they could obtain affidavits with which to back up their claims for the extradition from New York of Ted Pizzino, named by Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox, as one of the "trigger men" in the Buckley killing. Pizzino was arrested in New York Saturday and the extradition hearing is set for Thursday.

The State administrative board meeting in Lansing today authorized $1,000 reward for the capture of Buckley's slayers. The total reward now offered for the killers totals more than $13,000.

Two Held in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Police here announced today they were holding Tony Fritano, 28, and Sam Zerilli, 36, arrested yesterday, for Detroit, Mich., police, in connection with the investigation into the slaying July 23 of Gerald E. Buckley, Detroit radio announcer. Both Fritano and Zerilli gave St. Louis addresses, but told detectives they had come here recently from Detroit.

In Fritano's possession police found a letter from a girl advising him, "Don't worry, but wath out for the brass buttons."

INDIAN REBEL BANDS ISOLATE PESHAWAR

of the fierce Pathan Tribe, will attempt a mass attack because of the danger of airplanes.

The hillmen are cunning, however, and are giving trouble all around the city, and they have found one trick that deceives the bombers. When they hear planes approaching they lay their brilliantly-colored turbans and gowns on the ground, then flee to caves. The airplanes shower down bombs, thinking they are obliterating a force in the open, while the Afridis chuckle in their underground recesses.

Casualties Are Small.

So far the Afridis have attacked in small parties, ambushing British patrols or sniping from the wilderness. Casualties have not been heavy on either side, although six Indian troopers are slain in one engagement in an orchard.

A report of a battle on Saturday gave the indication that the warfare is spreading from Peshawar and immediate vicinity. A party of Afridis attacked Badama post, southeast of Parachinar in the northwestern frontier province. Parachinar is nearly 100 miles west of Peshawar. The assailants were beaten off by Kurram militia.

Meanwhile, the tense feeling between Hindus and Moslems has caused troops to be rushed to the wide expanses of the Sind, a province of the Bombay Presidency. In this region along the Indus River has occurred much fighting in the last two weeks. The trouble began in Sukkur August 5, 12 persons being killed and 150 injured, but that city was quiet today.

Now the trouble is centering in the districts remote from large cities. Troops will be posted in the villages of Pamo, Akil, Sultanpur, Ghotki and Dubar, while armed police have been sent to Khanpur, Mirpur, Mathelo and other talukas (revenue) districts on the left bank of the Indus.

Charges Hold Soviet Breaks Dumping Law

Formal charges that the Soviet government of Russia is violating the antidumping act of 1921 by selling manganese ore to American consumers at less than the cost of production were filed with the Treasury Department yesterday by the American Manganeze Producers Association.

J. Carson Arkerson, president of the association, in a letter to Secretary Mellon requested that the department suspend liquidation of manganese ore shipments from Russia pending an investigation to determine the punitive duties provided by law for such contingencies. He cites a survey made by a Department of Commerce expert, E. C. Ropers, chief of the Russian section, division of regional information, to sustain the domestic producers' contention.

Bank Would Withdraw As F. H. Smith Trustee

The District Supreme Court yesterday was petitioned by the Central Maryland Trust Co., of Frederick, Md., to remove that firm as trustee of the first mortgage bonds on the F. H. Smith Co. Building, at 185 Fifteenth street northwest. The bonds secure a mortgage of $1,135,000.

The company tells the court that pending litigation in the District of Columbia together with the action of the court in appointing collectors for the building has rendered the duties imposed on it under the deed of trust of a burdensome nature. Attorneys Charles S. Baker and Marvin Farrington appear for the company, which recently was named defendant in a suit filed in the court by bondholders in which a receivership was sought. The court, pending hearing of the petition for receivership, appointed a collector to take care of rentals of the building.

ROVER TO COOPERATE IN CLEARING DOCKET

BAKER CASE ON HIS LIST

Returning yesterday frmo a 10-day vacation, United States Attorney Leo A. Rover expressed satisfaction at learning Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat had announced that three of the nine courts of the District Supreme Court would be devoted to criminal matters.

"It is a hard matter to guarantee to keep three criminal courts going at one time," said Mr. Rover, "but with a full staff of assistants I believe that it can be accomplished. At any rate, my office will cooperate to the limit."

Several vacancies in Mr. Rover's staff recently have been filled, permitting Mr. Rover to draw veterans from Police Court work to duty in the "big court." The staff was depleted during most of the six months of this year, but has now been brought up to strength commensurate with the added duties supposed to fall on the prosecutor's office as the result of the creation of two new judgeships.

Mr. Rover passed his vacation at Point Lookout, Md., and enjoyed golf practically every day. During his absence the Mary Baker murder case was brought into jurisdiction of his office, and it was announced that William H. Collins, the assistant who filled in for Mr. Rover, would continue to handle the case for the office.

It was to Mr. Collins that Virginia authorities appealed when it was decided that the former Navy Department worker had been slain in the District and not in ViVrginia, and it was at his suggestion that the warrant charging Herbert M. Campbell, Arlington County real estate man, with the murder was issued by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage. Campbell is fighting removal to the District and the commissioner at Alexandria is expected to pass on the case at a date to be set in the near future.

Schneider has 275 hours of day and 88 hours of night flying to his credit. He did not announce the route he will take across the country, saying it would depend upon weather conditions.

Meat Prices Fall; Drought Blamed

Livestock Thrown on Mar and Dollar's Purchasing Power Goes Up.

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—E. W. Sheets, of Washington, chief of animal husbandry, United States Department of Agriculture, said today that the drought has resulted in so much live stock being thrown on the market for slaughter that the American dollar buys more meat now than at any time during the past twelve years.

In making the statement Mr. Sheets was summing up the first day's findings of the annual conference of 25 State agricultural experimental stations, the United States Department of Agriculture, the American Institute of Meat Packers and the National Live Stock Meat Board.

Mr. Sheets said that the farmer is getting 36 per cent less for his meat this year than last. For 35 cents today the housewife can get a steak for which she paid 55 cents last year, he said.

PLANE BOMB RAID TERRORIZES TOWN

MINE TROUBLES BLAMED

cent of the miners returned to work when the mines reopened July 1, and the remaining 25 per cent have been attempting to persuade the workers to lay down their tools again. Nineteen striking miners are under indictment here for bandying and confederating to intimidate workinm miners. Seventeen have been apprehended and are out on bond.

The bombing plane appeared from the direction of Harrisburg, Ill., at about 6 a. m. It dropped the first missile at an abandoned mine near Clay, a few miles north of here. It exploded with a detonation heard for miles and sent clouds of dust and gravel into the air. The plane was flying at an altitude of 2,000 feet.

Several Fail to Explode.

The plane then dived toward the city and dropped two more bombs near the outskirts. They had the same effect as the first one. After circling the town the plane dived at the entrance of the Ruckman Mine and dropped another bomb, which failed to explode. A guard fired two shots at the plane, which was then at an altitude of 600 feet, but with no visible effect.

The plane started climbing at the edge of the city and five more bombs were dropped, only two of which exploded. They fell near the mines of the Meador, Young & Holt Coal Co. and the Diamond Coal Mining Co. The plane then flew off in the direction of Harrisburg.

Examination of the dud bombs revealed that they were made of dynamite wrapped with tape, with fuses attached.

Long Standing Trouble.

Trouble in the western Kentucky coal fields started last December, when miners demanded better working conditions and some asked a return to the 1917 basic wage scale of $4.50 a day. A strike vote was taken in the entire western Kentucky field by the United Mine Workers of America. The strike was overwhelmingly voted, but the vote was never approved by officials of the union at Indianapolis.

Meanwhile mines began closing because of independent strikes and economic conditions, and soon thousands of workers weer idle. In the Webster County field 75 per cent of the workers later signed a petition that the mines reopen, since their families were in distress because of lack of employment. The operators agreed to reopen July 1.

Past Major Disorders.

In other parts of the western Kentucky field some of the mines have continued closed and others have reopened, but disorders have been few anywhere except in Webster County and Hopkins County, adjoining.

The first major disorder was the dynamiting of two miners' homes at Nortonville, Hopkins County. One family was away at the time. The other was caught under falling debris, but no one was injured. On the same day dynamite was found on the porch of County Judge J. D. Shain at Madisonville, wrapped in a letter threatening death if he pressed charges against miners arrested for bandying and confederating.

(Associated Press.)

Agencies of the Federal Government's service for regular civil aeronautics undertook yesterday their first official attempt to penalize the use of an airplane for an interstate criminal purpose.

Pessimism Over Task.

The reports conveyed to Clarence M. Young, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, concerning an orange-colored monoplane which dropped bombs on coal mines near Providence and Clay City, Ky., where a miners' strike has been in progress, presented the incident.

The first endeavor of the Government agencies was to search the airplane registration list to determine whether the numbers attached to the airplane, which were variously reported by different observers, might correspond with those upon any of the licenses regularly issued to aircraft.

The prospects of this inquiry were not rated very bright by Mr. Young or his assistants, on the ground that the pilot of a plane engaged upon an unlawful bomb-dropping mission would disguise the machine license number as quickly as would a bank bandit dealing with the tags on an automobile used for criminal purposes.

Many Violations Cited.

The Assistant Secretary added that the operators of the plan indulging in the Kentucky exploit violated several sections of the Federal statutes regulating aeronautics. These were listed as transporting explosives without special license, deliberately dropping dangerous objects from aircraft and, presumably, tampering with their license labels.

Orders were issued for a check by the continenal inspectors on the recent movements of several suspected planes, though it was deemed inadvisable to disclose all the details of the counteraction, Mr. Young ordered.

Past Infractions Trivial.

He added that since the institution of the Government's aircraft control system in 1927 there had been one or two reports of the criminal use of airplanes, but that nothing of sufficient importance had developed to engage seriously the punitive action of the Government inspection force.

The pilots hitherto arraigned all have been guilty of no more than infraction of the various details of the air traffic code and yesterday's was the first charge implying deliberate use of a plane to damage persons or property with felonious intent.

Heat Leaves Maryland But Wood Blazes Rage

Baltimore, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Baltimore and Maryland enjoyed low temperatures today, but fires in woods and fields menaced in several sections, with the drought in its forty-sixth day.

Careless motorists are blamed for an outbreak of fires in and adjoining Baltimore which kept municipal and county apparatus busy yesterday. The county fire department alone answered alarms to 28 field and woods fires. The Meyersdale fire department was paid by a potato grower, Urban Blocher, at Grantsville, to pump approximately 100,000 gallons of water from a near-by mill dam on his potato field.

DEATH OF GIRL LAID TO LOVERS' QUARREL

Body Found Near Memphis Not Clara Patterson, Says Finger Expert.

BOOTLEG KILLING DENIED

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A lovers' quarrel instead of bootleggers' vengeance was blamed officially tonight for the death of a young woman whose decomposed, partly clothed body was found on a lonely road near here Saturday.

Sheriff Will Knight announced deputies were searching for a man they believed was involved in a quarrel on the road last month. The sheriff abandoned the theory of his chief deputy, Charles Garibaldi, that bootleggers killed the woman because they believed she was an informer.

Denial of her tentative identification as Miss Clara Patterson, 31, of Little Rock, Ark., was made by Paul Waggener, fingerprint expert. Waggener made five new prints and said they did not compare with those he made of Miss Patterson while she was a hotel cafe cashier here. The hotel recently had all its employes fingerprinted.

Finis E. Wilson, deputy prohibition administrator, said the woman could not have been killed as an informer.

"We know nothing of this woman and never use women for such work," Wilson said. He and another agent revealed that the Patterson girl's rooming house frequently was the scene of liquor arrests.

"We knew that liquor was delivered there frequently," Wilson said. "Sometimes we called bootleggers there and arrested them."

Waggener and authorities hoped to identify her by means of her teeth.

An Evening Appeal dispatch quoted Miss Patterson's mother at Little Rock as saying a letter from her was written in another city on July 26. The mother also said measurements of the dead woman's feet did not coincide with her daughter's. Miss Patterson "got in bad" here and left the hotel, her mother is quoted as saying.

4,500 Congregate And Pray for Rain

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 11.—Forty-five hundred persons attended the rain prayer services held here today in front of the Frederick County courthouse. Dr. S. L. Flickinger, pastor of the Centenary Reformed Church, presided over the assembly, and Dr. Murray D. Mitchell, of the Southern Methodist Church, made the principal address, stating that "repentance of sin" was the need of the hour.

Every minister in Winchester took part in the services, and during the course of the prayer meeting the congregation sang the following hymns: "Sweet Hour of Prayer," "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

All business houses were closed during the service and hundreds of farmers were present.

Report of Water Use On Links Arouses Ire

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 11.—Reports that the Cumberland Country Club had been using water—thousands of gallons—all night on its golf greens in recent weeks, with half a dozen employes engaged in the work, and had ignored the requests of the city council for water conservation and the city ordinance as well, caused considerable indignation at a conference of the council after its session this morning.

Mayor Thomas W. Koon ordered the police to visit the club property tonight and following nights and to arrest any one found using city water for the purpose. In addition to this the meter on the country club line is to be checked, and if there is found to be any unwarranted consumption the service is to be cut off at once.

MAN WHO CLAIMED ROBBERY SHOT DEAD

WAS MARRIED JULY 1

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 11.—Clifford Borneman, 30-year-old farmer, of Arnold, whose tory of being attacked by three men and robbed during a two-day disappearance in early July aroused considerable interest in this section, was found dead close to his home yesterday with a wound in his chest and a discharged shotgun nearby.

Although a belief of suicide was expressed by Justice of the Peace John W. Anderson, acting coroner, he announced that an inquest will be held here Wednesday at the request of State's Attorney A. Theodore Brady, of Anne Arundel County, who will be in attendance.

Married July 1, Borneman disappeared July 5 while driving his automobile to Baltimore on the Annapolis-Baltimore boulevard. The car was found the next morning in a swamp near the Bagothy River, and he was found unconscious several hours later near his home. He told the authorities three men had stopped him near Pasadena, struck him on the head, and robbed him of approximately $340. Three men were arrested by Anne Arundel authorities, but were released after questioning. Sheriff Michael C. Carter said the case was dropped because of a number of conflicting stories.

Glenn W. Noble, register of titles in the office of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles and a neighbor of Borneman, said the young farmer complained of pains in his head since the alleegd attack and had been melancholy. Borneman, however, seemed in a fairly good humor on arising Sunday and before breakfast told his wife and his uncle, Henry Hirsch, that he was going to the barn, Noble explained.

He was said to have stopped at the home of a Negro farmhand and asked a small Negro boy for Hirsch's double-barreled shotgun and two shells so he could shoot squirels. After the report of a shot was heard, an investigation led to the finding of the body.

Highwaymen Fail in Attack.

Stopped by a man who asked him for a cigarette, Joseph Salvo, of 1322 Twelfth street northwest, told police that he was knocked down by another man and an attempt was made to rob him. The attack occurred at Thirteenth and H streets northwest, he said. Both of the men were frightened away before they stole anything from him, according to Salvo's report to police.

DROUGHT RELIEF.

Response to President Hoover's appeal for cooperation in the relief of suffering and distress caused by the drought is most gratifying. Everywhere there is a keen realization that no one is responsible for the situation that has arisen. In spite of their losses the people are not disgruntled, and every one is ready to extend aid where it is needed.

With this spirit prevailing, with promises of showers in some of the areas affected, and with cooler temperatures in other areas, the situation looks considerably brighter. It appears certain that everything within the range of human possibility is being done to relieve conditions, and anything beyond that must be left to Providence.

Conditions are acute in some areas. Crops have been wilted and burned. Live stock, in some instances, has perished for want of water. Some metropolitan areas have suffered from water shortages, but every precaution against disease and wholesale loss from fire seems to have been taken. Each community in the drought area has its own problems, and is attempting to work them out in its own way. The situation does not yet amount to a national calamity, and there seems to be ample ground for hope that it will not reach those proportions.

Governors of all the States seriously affected will meet with President Hoover on Thursday to work out a definite program of relief. A rehabilitation committee with a representative of each of the drought States will be formed. This body will be so constituted as to give attention to both local and national needs. It will work in harmony with the States, the Government, the railroads and the Red Cross.

The railroads have likewise responded to the invitation of the Interstate Commerce Commission to reduce rates to and from the dry areas on live stock as well as on feed and water for live stock. The Red Cross is on the job, having just completed a survey of 18 drought-stricken States. This organization is well known for its efficiency in an emergency of this kind, and can be counted on to give relief wherever there is actual suffering.

Danger that the drought will result in a shortage of food is negligible. The August crop report of the Department of Agriculture shows that crop prospects for the country as a whole declined 7 per cent during the month, but since a normal crop yields a surplus the reduction in volume may not be noticed. It is estimated that the yield per acre will be only 5.5 per cent below last year's figures, but since last year was subnormal, this would reduce the yield to 9.1 per cent below the average during the previous ten years. But due to an increased acreage planted to some crops this year, indications point to about the usual supply of food crops, but a shortage of feed for live stock.

In view of these conditions there is no excuse for drastic increases in food prices. Some profiteers are always on the outlook for occasions of this kind to make money at the expense of the public, but indications are that the administration is preparing to deal a severe blow to any such schemes. The situation is not one to cause widespread alarm. People can serve their own interests best by maintaining their equanimity. A psychology that assumes impending disaster can only make the situation worse, and give unscrupulous dealers a chance to take advantage of it.

In taking every step possible to meet the situation before a crisis is reached President Hoover has earned the commendation of the entire country. He is giving virtually his full time to problems arising out of the drought with the characteristic efficiency that first brought him public recognition. The dry spell may be ended shortly, but should it continue the country will witness whole-hearted cooperation to relieve distress wherever it becomes acute.

DRY FORCE IDENTIFICATION.

Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, is interested in providing a means of identification for dry agents who halt motorists on highways. Recently, two overzealous agents made the mistake of firing on an automobile occupied by an official of the State of Maryland, as a result of which the old hue and cry for a uniformed dry army has been revived. Col. Woodcock is represented as doubting the wisdom of putting prohibition agents in uniform, but he seeks some means of identification that will enable the agent to introduce himself officially whenever the occasion requires.

The trouble with a uniform or any other scheme of identification is that it is easily duplicated by unauthorized persons. Dry agents would be handicapped in their duties if they were required to make their presence known at all times, but the more serious opposition to the uniform lies in the fact that it might be duplicated by a thug or highwayman, enabling him to halt victims in lonely stretches of road and prey upon them with impunity. A motorist would be fully justified if he were to ignore the command to halt issued by a tough-looking individual, uniformed or bearing credentials or not, who leaped out upon him from the underbrush. Would his refusal to halt be the signal for a fusillade?

The problem of enforcing the prohibition laws upon public highway is involved. There are bound to be misunderstandings and mistakes, some of them fatal, so long as the prohibition bureau permits its agents to try to halt and search any machine that is suspected of being operated in violation of the law. To prevent misunderstandings, the only logical course is to order an end to such tactics, authorizing agents to halt only such cars as beyond all possibility of doubt are being operated in violation of the law.

SEA SAFETY.

The Vestris tragedy, with its appalling loss of life, resulted in a general demand that the rules for safety at sea be tightened. The Vestris went down off the Virginia Capes. The fact that the tragedy occurred comparatively close to shore and in an established sea lane emphasized its horror. Subsequent inquiries proved conclusively that the Vestris crew was inexperienced in handling lifeboats and that the life-saving equipment itself was not in proper order. The recently revised sea safety rules are designed specifically with the lesson of the Vestris tragedy in mind to enable the Government to maintain a watchful eye over life-saving equipment and the training of ship crews in its use.

Dickerson N. Hoover, supervising inspector-general of the Steamboat Inspection Service, recently said in the course of a radio address: "The mere placing of lifeboats upon a ship is not enough." These boats, he added, must be in a condition to be used in the event of an emergency, lowering gear must be in proper working order and the crew must know how to do its job. To this end, the new rules specify that once every three months, or oftener, the master of an inspected vessel must drill and exercise every member of his crew in pulling oars in ship's lifeboats and crews of motor-propelled boats must at the same time demonstrate their ability in working the engine and handling the boat under power. The new rules specify further that three reinspections be made of each American and each foreign passenger vessel, whether under reciprocity or not, each year in addition to the annual inspection. To make possible rigid enforcement of the new regulations, the personnel of the inspection service has been augmented.

It is the Government's duty to insist upon the highest safety standards for vessels operating out of American ports. The public places implicit trust in the certificate of inspection posted by the steamboat service. It has no way of ascertaining for itself whether or not the life-saving equipment of a vessel is in first class order and whether the crew is experienced in handling it. Quarterly drills in the operation of lifeboats and quarterly inspections of live-saving equipment should result in a higher standard of sea safety and should go a long way toward preventing another terrible tragedy such as befell the Vestris.

EDUCATING THE INDIAN.

The Indian Bureau was reorganized a year ago, and assigned the task of undoing much of what had been done by the bureau prior to that time. Secretary Wilbur is committed to the idea that the Indian should be made "a self-respecting, self-sustaining American citizen just as rapidly as this can be brought about." The major work of the bureau during the last year has been chiefly directed toward this end.

To change the underlying purpose of the Indian service from the maintenance of peaceful wards of the Government to education for independent citizenship, is no small undertaking. The special report transmitted to President Hoover by Charles J. Rhoads, director of the Indian Bureau, indicates that only a beginning has been made. The bureau has undertaken an ambitious program, and it will no doubt require years for its achievement.

Summarizing the aims of the Indian Bureau, Mr. Rhoads said: "We propose to give the Indian a practical education, along vocational lines whenever possible, to make better provisions for his medical needs, to provide for the indigent, to assist him in finding and keeping a job, to increase the productivity of his land, to give him the advantages of modern organization and business methods to the end that we may hasten the day when he will be able to assume entire responsibility for caring for himself and his problems just as does his white neighbor." Notice is served to the Indians that they are expected to quit making a show of themselves through participation in rodeos, circuses, &c., and settle down to the business of making a living. The glamour of the old days has passed, and ought to be laid aside. The place of the painted warrior is to be taken by the quiet, industrious workman.

The expense of this transformation will be considerable. The Government is improving conditions at the Indian schools, and extending instruction into vocational fields. Indian handicraft is being promoted, hospital facilities increased, and an employment service provided. The bureau must extend its activities now to permit curtailment later on when the Indian has been merged into the white man's civilization. In spite of these increased expenditures, the bureau's policy holds promise of ultimate economy, and the outlook of the Indian is better than it has been since the Government started herding these native Americans onto reservations.

PAYING BY CHECK.

The recent pay roll and bank runner robberies in Washington center attention upon a study of such crimes recently completed by a special committee of the National Law Enforcement Commission. The committee checked more than 1,000 newspaper accounts of more than 200 pay-roll robberies in the year ended September 30, 1929, and in an appendix to its report it says that between January 1 and June 1, 1930, 19 persons were reported as having been murdered in pay-roll holdups, 32 injured and losses aggregating more than $1,000,000 incurred. The committee believes that ordinary processes of law enforcement are insufficient to cope with pay-roll banditry. "The prizes are too tempting," it says, "and the daring of professional criminals too great. It is obvious that pay-roll robberies are directly invited by the practice of carrying cash." It should be added that the temptation to such crime is not lessened by the practice of many executives of entrusting large sums to young women and boys for transportation through the streets.

The simple and logical solution to the pay-roll robbery problem lies in universal adoption of the practice of paying wages by check. This is the committee's recommendation. "It is clear," it says, "that a workable system of payment by check is the most efficient, economical and safe method of disbursing money to employes." But there are practicable difficulties that stand in the way of universal adoption of the practice. For one thing, it is a far larger task to write and have signed checks for a large number of employes than it is to count out their wages in cash. Moreover, there exists opposition on the part of many workers against receiving their pay by check. Many workmen do not have bank connections. Aside from the fact that they like the feel of cash, they are inclined to oppose being paid by check because of the difficulties of cashing. In some of the States the law specifies that wages must be paid in cash.

The committee asserts that opposition to payment by check is declining. If this be true, the chief stumbling block to the innovation will have been removed. Executives would be willing to go to the greater bother of writing and signing checks, and banks would be glad to cooperate to the extent of making it comparatively easy for workmen to cash checks, if by so doing pay-roll banditry could be stamped out.

Six chicks were hatched by the heat in Illinois. That's nothing compared with some of the things that have been hatched out on Capitol Hill on hot days.

DANGERS OF METAPHOR

From the London Times.

In a recent speech an eminent statesman twitted previous speakers on his subject with having put both feet in it up to the hilt. After making every allowance for the martial associations of his topic, the iron and steel trade, it may be doubted whether he would have imputed this difficult feat of arms to any one if he had himself been in the habit of wielding a sword. The thought raises the interesting question of the persistence of metaphors and picture phrases long after the conditions out of which they sprang have passed away. For instance, in these days of the incontestable supremacy of mechanical transport, will people go on locking the stable door after the horse is stolen? In that particular case there may be an easy transition to garage and motor-car. But how long will putting the cart before the horse represent the height of stupidity to generations which rarely see a horse and hardly ever in conjunction with a cart? Perhaps the phrase has acquired a prescriptive right to artificial existence even when its roots in reality have withered away.

There certainly are remarkable instances of that form of survival. Take, for example, what would seem from political speeches to be two of the favorite occupations of politicians, exploring avenues and drawing red herrings across trails. The modern avenue is generally a busy thoroughfare, so far from needing exploration that it is pathetically eager to force all it has to show upon the attention of the passer-by. And it must be many a long year since the red herring was actually a popular article of traction.

It is noticeable that it is mainly in the world of politics that such metaphors go on leading a ghostly life long after they are really dead. Possibly the special need of that world for vivid and impressive speech accounts for the tendency to cling to the once-telling phrase to the bitter end. It is many, many centuries since the death of the goose that laid the golden eggs was first announced. Fortunately for orators, the bird threatens to be immortal. Robbing hen roosts, if not so hallowed by age and use, can on the other hand still claim to have some ground in contemporary fact. It is no doubt significant of the earlier preponderance of country over town that so many of these metaphors have a rural flavor. To that class, too, belongs the familiar reproach of failing to see the wood for the trees, coupled, for the unduly and unwisely laborious politician, with the added charge of barking up the wrong one. The occasional appearance of "backwoodsmen" seems not unnatural in that setting.

Second only to country life, the art of war contributes a solid quota of well-worn terms. Maneuvers, slogans, banners, campaigns, crusades and headquarters are the commonplaces of political speaking, not always with full appreciation of the original meanings of the words. For the danger is that, divorced from the realities in which they took their rise, these picturesque words and phrases are drained of the vital juices which once gave them force and color, and tend to become lifeless counters of thought and speech. In using such token currency, as if it were full legal tender, it is all too easy to slip into incongruities and absurdities of juxtaposition. The stock warning against that pitfall in the path of metaphor is the impassioned orator who was convinced that he smelt a rat. The gulf of time had separated him from the genuine odor of the creature, or he would hardly have imagined that he saw it floating in the air before him, and he would never have proposed to nip it in the bud.

PROTECT MOUNT VERNON.

Is the hand of the political spoiler to be laid upon Mount Vernon? asks the New York World. Such seems to be the threat. We are told that influences are at work which are not unlikely to result in the introduction of a bill at the next session of Congress for the transformation of that shrine of patriotism into a public park and picnic ground. Such a performance would be of doubtful legality, ethically of undoubted injustice, and patriotically of potential and quite probable indecency; as a brief analysis of its conditions will make clear.

There is, in the first place, not the slightest good reason for changing the status of Mount Vernon, or the slightest good purpose to be served by a change. In all the years during which the place has been under its present ownership and control there has been occasion for not one single complaint of its management. Indeed, the skillful and reverent manner in which it has been restored and preserved, and the courteous hospitality which has been shown to all visitors, have met with universal admiration and commendation.

MEMORIES.

The little place of rest and play
Grows dearer to us, day by day.
As first the tender leaf and shoot.
Then early bud, and flower and fruit,
So memory blossoms from the tears
And smiles of all the bygone years.

From what has been and passed away
Comes all that long with us can stay.
Not in itself the place is fair
But by the friends who gather there.
What value has this ocean shell?
Once lived a child who loved it well.

These walls once heard her laughter sweet;
These floors, the patter of her feet.
The garden knew her; all we keep
Has seen us smile and seen us weep.
By every care and joy we've known
This little place has dearer grown.

Not hastily are memories made.
The charms they cling to first must fade;
Trinkets at which we scarcely glanced
As keepsakes, find their worth enhanced.
Thus with the beauty Time bestows

Men Go Around a Mountain If a Tunnel Costs More Than It's Worth.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ALMOST everybody knows some quiet, gentle and infinitely patient woman who rules a household and perhaps a neighborhood by the simple process of refusing to discuss or consider any plan except her own.

She takes her stand and there she abides, sweetly and patiently until the opposition wears itself out and surrenders.

It is a form of strategy that never fails.

Do you know why men who are fighting for their homes or their liberty prevail against great odds?

It isn't because their cause is righteous or because Heaven is on their side.

It is because they are desperate men, determined to win or die.

It is their state of mind that wins.

They will die but they will not retreat or surrender.

Where they take their stand, there they will fight until the last man falls; and usually they win a decision without great sacrifice; for the men who oppose them have less to gain and will not pay so great a price for victory.

Seldom in history—so seldom that each event is celebrated by the poets—has any group of patriots stood fast in the face of certain death where retreat was possible.

Discipline and physical courage will endure great punishment, but the moment comes when furter resistance seems madness and then the retreat is sounded.

Only those who are steeled by desperation or frenzied by some spiritual ecstasy will scorn retreat or surrender while they have strength to stand.

Yet some do stand thus, and their cause eventually triumphs because the opposition falters and breaks in the face of such determination.

Always and everywhere, in peace or war, in great matters or small, the opposition falters in the face of a determination that will not quit or compromise.

Victory goes to the highest bidder.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE MAUD MULLER OF HENRY FORD.

(Mr. Ford has stated that Maud Muller is his favorite poem.)

Maud Muller on a summer's day
Raked the meadow, sweet with hay.
Beneath the torn hat glowed the wealth
Of simple beauty and rustic health.
Singing, she wrought, and her merry glee
The mock-bird echoed from his tree;
But when she glanced to the far-off town,
White from its hillside looking down,
The sweet song died and a vague unrest
And a nameless longing filled her breast,
A wish that she hardly dared to own
For something better than she had known.

* * * *

The Judge rode slowly down the lane,
Tooting his horn with slight disdain;
He steered his flivver in the shade
Of the apple trees to greet the maid,
And water sought from the spring that flowed
Through the meadow across the road;
She stooped by the spring and, cup by cup,
She filled his radiator up,
And blushed as she did it, looking down
On her feet so bare and her tattered gown.
"Thanks," said the Judge, "my pretty lass,
I wish I were out of oil and gas."
He spoke of the grass, the flowers and trees,
And told her what made the motor wheeze;
And Maud forgot the brier-torn gown
And her graceful ankles, bare and brown,
And listened with new interest born
As the Judge then worked the musical horn.
At last he murmured: "Well, go I must"—
And he rode away in a cloud of dust.
Maud Muller looked and sighed: "Ah, me!
That I might ride in his Model T—
He would dress me up in silks so rare
And we'd drive around for the change of air;
My father should wear some goggles blue
And maybe a linen duster, too.
I'd dress my mother so grand and neat
And let her ride in the rumble seat;
And we'd all take trips in the manner grand
From tintype gallery to hot dog stand—
There wouldn't be much I'd miss, O Lord,
As bride of a judge with a hard-up Ford!"

* * * *

The Judge looked back as he climbed the hill
(In high, of course, as a flivver will).
"A form so fair, a face so sweet,"
He said, "I never hope to meet;
Would she were mine and I today
Like her a harvester—Hey! Hey!"
But he thought of his sisters, proud and cold,
And his mother, vain of her rank and gold,
So, giving the gas, the Judge rode on
He wedded a wife of richest dower
Who lived for fashion, as he for power;
She married a man of a lowly strain
Who walked to his work and home again;
They lived a life of the drabbest sort
And never were fined in a traffic court;
And oft when the summer sun shone hot
She thought of the Judge and the open lot;
In the shade of the apple tree once more
She heard the Judge's motor roar.
Sometimes she pictured a trip through life
On macadam roads as the Judge's wife;
His manly form at her side she saw
As they passed red lights and broke the law;
Then she took up her burden of life again
Saying only: "It might have been!"

* * * *

Alas for Maud and alas for Judge,
For rich repiner and household drudge;
God pity them both! and pity us all
Who vainly the dreams of youth recall.
For of all sad words the saddest are
"She married a fellow without a car!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Bandits and District Commissionerships Discussed by Correspondent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With rookie bandits developing in our midst, it is interesting to recall that when Gen. Crosby was nominated for the District Commissionership which he now holds, it was considered a strong argument in his favor that, as a seasoned cavalryman, long in active service, he would know how to handle the roughneck element and curb the activities of the underworld. Some of our local tenderfeet even mentally pictured the new Commissioner on horseback, rounding up the bootleggers and other bad men of the Potomac in approved movie style.

It was suggested that a weak administration of local affairs had prevented Washington from becoming a model town and that the firm hand of a trained disciplinarian would turn the trick.

Some, on the other hand, maintained that the amount of lawbreaking in Washington was exaggerated and that ours was, and had been for years, a model city.

Washington today, as far as defiance of the law is concerned, stands about where it did when Commissioner Crosby took control of the Police Department. His administration has won the praise of all good citizens, and he is not necessarily to blame if daylight bandits have recently become more contemptuous of the law than ever.

What the situation should teach us is that in the functioning of the local government the competent executive will not in every case be a man picked from a special class. It is hard to tell where the thoroughly efficient civil administrator may come from. One of the most successful and popular Commissioners the District ever had was a journalist. The man mentally and by temperament best fitted to deal with the problem of law and order may be some mild-mannered minister of the Gospel who would otherwise never be heard of beyond the confines of his pulpit.

CORRESPONDENT.

A Taxpayer's Lament.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Governments are costly things, and the cost is annually increasing at a rapid rate. Take our own District as an example. It covers less than ten miles square of territory. It has a population of only about half a million, yet its operation costs the tax payers about $80 per capita. The cost of operating the District government has increased at a much greater rate than its population.

Many have predicted that within a comparatively short time the population of the District will reach a million. If the ratio of increase in operating costs continues to that time the per capita cost of operation will be about $300. When Mr. Coolidge was President he spoke up for economy. Still, the annual cost of running the District government steadily increased and that increase yet continues.

We have spent enough money on the streets to have almost paved them with gold, yet they are constantly out of repair. There is every indication that the tax rate will have to be largely increased within the next two years. The additional revenue will give added opportunity to increase the cost of operation. Will we be compelled to adopt the city manager plan? A radical reform is needed, but how to reach that reform is the puzzling question.

There are States containing six or seven times the population of the District of Columbia, which maintain prisons, colleges and normal schools, all on less than half of what is expended here. Where the remedy is to found I do not know, but one should be found, and found speedily.

Pete McGee Explains How to Keep a House Cool—If There Is Enough Water to Go 'Round.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After the sun goes down close the windows in the back and front of the house. Play the hose on the glass and bricks until they are thoroughly cooled. Then throw water on the high side of the tin roof and let it run down the gutter until the metal is chilled. Sprinkle the lawn. The bricks, window glass and tin roof will absorb the heat and hold it all during the night. When these materials once become heated it will require several cool nights before they will reach the temperature of the night air. They should be cooled every night to afford comfort.

When the home becomes hot do not suppose that it can be cooled by just squirting a little water on the bricks, roof and windows, for this is a mistake. To treat the home in this mild manner will only create a vapor and make the house hotter inside.

Sapped Hydrogen and Disturbed Oxygen Cause Drought, Mr. Norton Believes, Giving Reasons Therefor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We are striving to learn something apart from the realm of commercialism. I am commenting upon an editorial that recently appeared in a local paper under the caption, "Cause of the Drought," and an article in another local sheet headed, "Science Kills Notion Radio Waves Cause Drought."

A Federal Radio Commission engineer and leading authority on radio science explains: "There is no disturbance in the air as the result of the passage of radio waves," but he does not explain whence radio gets its power.

Since a few months past I have advanced the theory that the development of radio saps the strength of hydrogen and that the throwing off of carbon monoxide by automobiles and flying machines disturbs the oxygen. These agencies working in conjunction, make a disproportion between the atomical component gases—argon, helium, neon, kripton and carbon dioxide—which cause a lack of ether, lessen the precipitation of water and produce dry heat.

Misses Davis May Study In Michigan

Army Colonel's Daughters Have Been Popular in Washington.

THE transfer of Col. Edward Davis, U. S. Cavalry, to East Lansing, Mich., as professor of the Michigan State Agricultural College, probably will alter the plans of his two daughters to return to Washington for the winter. Passing the summer with their parents, Col. and Mrs. Davis at Gull Lake, Mich., Miss Lawrason Davis and Miss Elizabeth Davis, had expected a revival of gay life in the Capital where they have a circle of friends formed while attending Miss Madeira's School. They passed the late winter and spring here but both were engrossed in their studies, Miss Davis completing one of the Red Cross courses, and her sister continuing studies in poster and fashion design.

Both girls have spent much of their time abroad where Col. Davis has been attached to various embassies as military attache. In Belgrade, Athens, Berlin, The Hague and Mexico City the girls joined the gayety of the diplomatic sets, incidentally developing into excellent linguists.

Although scarcely out of their teens, both girls have viewed a part of the panorama that marks the picturesque record of Col. Davis; at least they are privileged to hear at first hand thrilling tales of the days when he rode with Col. Allenby's crusaders straight through the gates of Jerusalem.

Some of the high lights of his adventurious life include fighting the Spaniards at San Juan, trailing Aguinaldo across the mountain ranges of Luzon, exploring the heart of the Igorrote country, captain of cavalry along the Mexican border, military attache during and since the World War, serving with the Allied forces on the Macedonian front, in the Sinai Desert and in Mesopotamia. He was with Dunsterville's famous "Hush-Hush" brigade in Persia and was in charge of American secret service in Holland.

But the climax of adventure came when he was detailed as the only American military observer with Allenby's forces and they tell you, in Washington, that he is the only American cavalry officer actually to have taken part in modern cavalry warfare. For Col. Davis was lucky enough to gain the consent of the British to join their cavalry attacks on the Turks.

And so, when Allenby entered Jerusalem on that historic day, Col. Davis, as the only American officer attached to his staff, marched within the ancient walls of the Holy City with him.

From the Vale of Ajalon to the Turf Club of Cairo and from El Mughar to the Philippines the colonel is famous for his wit. He is a raconteur than whom the Army boasts none better. Col. Davis will go to Chicago with the organized reserves of the Sixty-fifth Cavalry Division of the Sixth Corps Area.

Representative Ruth Bryan Owen will reach New York onthe Europa this morning from Europe, where she attended the Interparliamentary Union in London. With Fannie Hurst, Mrs. Owen went to Dublin, where they were literally "given the keys of the city" during their visit in the Irish capital. Mrs. Owen will leave soon for the West, where she will visit Yellowstone Park, accompanied by her son and daughters.

CAROL AND HIS WIFE NEARING AGREEMENT

VIENNA DOUBTS STORY

Vienna, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Reconciliation between King Carol and Queen Helen of Roumania was reported to be only a matter of hours in messages received here today from the royal summer palace at Sinaia, where the king is staying. The messages said the queen now had been persuaded of the correctness of the king's view that their divorce never had been legal.

If the reports are accurate, nothing appears to stand in the way of the royal couple in September or October. King Carol is said to be very eager to hold the coronation this fall.

Public announcement of a reconciliation between the couple has long been awaited and frequently rumored, but has never yet materialized.

In well-informed quarters in Vienna doubts were expressed today that the reconciliation had been completely achieved. It was felt it could scarcely have been reached with such apparent ease.

Premier Maniu recently stayed three full days in Sinaia without being received at all by the king. During that time the Roumanian minister to London, M. Titulescu, alone was in attendance on his majesty.

Premier Maniu was said to have threatened to resign if King Carol carried out his reported intention of being crowned alone this fall, while M. Titulescu apparently encouraged the king in this desire.

Both statesmen, however, dined yesterday with the king, and from this meeting arose reports that Premier Maniu was prepared to draft the program of the coronation ceremony and its attendant festivities.

President Found Dead; Indiana Bank Is Closed

Gary, Ind., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The American State Bank, of Gary, was closed by its directors today after the body of its president, Albert De Fries, 42, was found in his home. Authorities believed his death by gas was a suicide.

The directors decided to close pending an audit by Thomas Barr, chief of State bank examiners. Mr. Barr said he believed the bank was in satisfactory condition with the possible exception of its cash on hand. The American State Bank had total resources of $886,000 on July 1.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

A BULLETIN of the National Better Business Bureau, Inc., located in the Chrysler Building, New York City, dated August 8, and just to hand, is self-explanatory, to wit:

"An order requiring Congo Pictures, Ltd.; and William Alexander, producers of the motion picture 'Ingagi' to show cause why they should not be enjoined during the pendency of the action from exhibiting or distributing the picture, was signed on July 24 by Federal Judge William Bondy on motion of Louis Nizer, attorney for Byron P. MacKenzie, son of Lady MacKenzie, the African game hunter.

"Byron P. MacKenzie, owner of the photoplay, 'The Heart of Africa,' a film record of the Lady MacKenzie expedition to British East Africa in 1914, charges in his affidavit that more than half 'Ingagi' is composed of 'Heart of Africa' scenes. In at least five scenes in 'Ingagi,' Mr. MacKenzie alleges, his mother, Lady MacKenzie, can be seen.

"The defendants, Congo Pictures, Ltd., and William Alexander, also are ordered to show cause why the film, 'Ingagi,' should not be impounded during the pendency of this action, and why an order of the court should not be made restraining and enjoining Congo Pictures, Ltd., and William Alexander from disposing of any of the assets of the defendant company, and more particularly, any and all sums received or to be received from the rental, lease or sale of 'Ingagi.'

"NATIONAL BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU, INC.

"Commercial Department."

In view of the many subsequent developments that have harassed the career of this particular bit of clever fakery, it is gratifying to recall that this department was the only one in Washington that declined to keep secret the obvious deceptions embodied in the film during its sensational successful local engagement. It was pointed out at the time that those familiar with Paul Rainey's African jungle picture of "The Water Hole" and Ben Burbage's "The Gorilla Hunt," would discern in "Ingagi" many scenes that would greet the eye as old friends.

It just happens that Mr. McKenzie recognized some that we didn't.

It is unfortunate that Frankie Jenks' introduction to Washington as new master of ceremonies at the Fox should be so precipitately interrupted by an acute, but not critical, physical ailment requiring immediate surgical attention. After having appeared as per schedule at the Friday and Saturday performances, Mr. Jenks was compelled to undergo the ministrations of a skilled vivisectionist and as a result, will be prevented from pursuing his professional activities for a period of two or three days.

Masters of ceremonies, it seems, are not the only cut-ups.

The following sterling example of the movies' vaunted courtesy was overheard in one of the downtown first-run houses where the price scale had just changed last Friday.

An unaccompanied middle-aged reviewer for one of the local papers whose official critic's pass had not been received in time for use at the first performance was passed along from the helpful doorman to an austere young Swiss admiral at the head of the first aisle with the request that he be conducted to a seat in the loge—the orchestra being filled to overflowing—despite the fact that the prices were different.

Unable to catch the attention of the haughty young field marshal at the head of the next aisle, the austere young Swiss admiral snarled, "That guy's so dumb he don't know what it's all about!" but spying another house attache, not in uniform, summoned him and explained gracefully, "This fella wantsa seat in the lowdge. Takum up there, will ya?"

"Yeah." And the fella was took!

Atta gent! Every patron a guest!

If you think that isn't a circus picture they are showing for the second week at the RKO-Keith Theater, stroll by some morning and get a load of the clown out in front with his menagerie wagon and everything.

You'll expect the calliope to burst into tune any minute, "Rain or Shine."

Speaking of service, as we were, inferentially, a paragraph or two back, Jack Hurford, remembered by many as the efficient former chief of service at the Fox Theater in this city, is now manager of the Fox Strand in Niagara Falls, N. Y.

The lobby display at the Fox this week, by the way, discloses the inner workings of the Census Bureau. The tabulating machines that are used to count you, with complete description of how they operate, are on view in the inner lobby. This is the second of a series of "Know Your Government" exhibitions arranged by Hardie Meakin, managing director—of the Fox, not the census!

Bobby Gillette, m. c. at the Palace with the "Get Happy" unit, is playing the banjo with vastly greater artistry and musicianship than upon the occasion of his last visit, but I still do not see why, if he was after those effects in the first place, he didn't take up the harp to begin with—unless he likes to play in a rumble seat!

I told you you'd be chily if this ever happened.

Engineer Kills Self After Death of Wife

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 11 (A.P.). A telegram from Nidaros, Sweden, today said Julius Konkoly-Thege, whose American bride, Dorothy Arents, of New York, died from poisoning last month, had killed himself in that city. Young Konkoly-Thege was to have accompanied Mr. and Mrs. George Arents, of New York, parents of his bride, to America today.

The girl, who was 23 years old, died in a Budapest hospital on July 7. Her husband was a Hungarian engineer, whom she married in America. The death of the former Miss Arents was investigated by both the Budapest police prefect and public prosecutor. Both officials concluded the girl was the victim of a mistake, in which she had taken the poison thinking it a medicine. They decided against a postmortem examination.

Cool Breezes Dispel New York Heat Wave

New York, Aug. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The great heat wave, which has had New York gasping for breath in the last ten days, finally took its departure today, just when it began to look like a permanent thing. The city enjoyed what has been a rarity this summer—temperature readings in the sixties for most of the day.

The weather came close to contributing a casualty in spite of its mildness. A diminutive whirlwind, sweeping on to Roosevelt Field in the afternoon, lifted an airplane six feet in the air and deposited it several yards away without hurting any of the bystanders. The only damage to the plane was a slightly scratched wing tip.

Convicts Who Rescued Four Are Commended

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Special commendation was bestowed today on the four Sing Sing convicts who rescued Chief of Police J. D. Roosa, of the New York Central Lines, and three other persons from possible drowning in the Hudson off the prison dock Sunday morning.

The four men, all serving long terms, who received the commendations are Irving Brown, Anthony Triano, David Weller and Joseph Oates, all of New York City. The warden said that he did not intend to ask executive clemency for the men but would reward them in some fashion inside the prison walls.

Man Arrested on Four Grand Larceny Charges

Four charges of grand larceny were placed against James B. Cerreta, 24 years old, of Third street near E street northwest, yesterday when he was booked at police headquarters. A downtown department store was complainant in three of the cases, and a jewerly concern in the fourth.

It is said that the man would go into a store and ask to look at watches. He would then ask the clerk to show him some more, and pocket one of the timepieces when the clerk's back was turned. Officers who arrested him said that the man had previously served two years here and one year in Baltimore on like charges.

Shopping With Bab

DEAREST GENEVIEVE: This is a good time for you to browse around the shops and find out for yourself what they contain of interest to you particularly. You will be surprised to learn of new shops contemplating opening in the early fall, and also of changes which established shops are to make.

Iced Desserts For Your Picnics

—are a happy thought. Call Avignone Freres, 1777 Columbia road, and ask what they can do about it. Avignone Freres have a well - deserved fame for delicious ice creams and frozen delicacies of all kinds. Have you ever visited their place? It will be an education to you to see how beautifully everything is managed. The neatness and immaculateness of the entire place is a joy to see.

Take the Children To the Vanity

—to have their hair cut. This clean, cool, sanitary establishment, meticulously neat, is a delight to enter. To be able to park your car with some degree of security is another nice feature about going to the Vanity Beauty Shop, 1348 Connecticut avenue.

The barbers are especially skilled in cutting children's hair and in keeping them happy while doing so. Of course, they are clever cutting grown-ups, too. A complete beauty service is always available here, as you know. The Vanity Beauty Shop is one of the most popular places in Washington.

The Gorgeous Pictures Of Lovely Children

—made by Underwood & Underwood's patented double camera, are the joy of all beholders. This marvelous camera catches the most fleeting expression, so that the finished results are truly speaking likenesses. A window of these pictures is on exhibit this week and it would pay you to stop by and see them. They are too perfect to describe.

The 25 per cent discount is still available, and when you stop to consider what this means on an order of any size, you will realize that you simply can not afford to miss this opportunity. Just think, a studio portrait, which is usually $40 the dozen, is now only $30, and the cabinet size, which we both like so much, priced at $20 a dozen, you may now buy for only $15.

HIDE IN THE DARK

By FRANCES NOYES HART
Author of "The Bellamy Trial"

Time: All-Hallows Eve.
Cast of Characters.

Trudi, wise, witty and chic, with all the ease of manner of a grand duchess and the lack of manners of a fishwife.

Gavin Dart, a rather tired and immensely successful business man of 50, with shrewd, dark eyes and steel-gray hair.

Kay Hardy, the youngest member of the party, and long married and overbelievingly in love with

Joel Hardy, her charming and irresponsible husband, who has not grown five minutes older in the last ten years.

Jill Leighton, graceful and gracious, stepsister of that legendary dummy, the beloved girl whose strange death ten years ago still lay like a shadow over the gay group.

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Thirteen gay revelers, calling themselves the March Hares, have gathered on Halloween at Lady Court, an old manor house. As the party gets under way, some one starts a game of charades. The word is "Underneath the Stars," Sunny's June. Sunny herself, whom every one loved, having been drowned in Washington.

Kit entertains with a few songs. Lindy then tells him why she arranged the party. She confesses her love for him. Presently, while in another part of the house Larry proclaims his love for Jill. Outside a storm is raging, but the March Hares continue to make merry. Kit and Doug, however, quarrel when Lindy objects (for the moment) to dancing with King. The situation is saved when Lindy relates a murder story concerning early relatives who occupied Lady Court.

Chatty and Trudi review events since the last party. Lindy corners Kit again and learns why about being jealous of Doug King. Later as she chants "Mirror, mirror, dark and bright . . ." Kit's face appears in the glass. The mirror is broken. Doug is furious. Kit discovers that the party is marooned—a bridge over a creek has been washed out.

Halloween games continue until some one suggests cards and dice until midnight. Kit makes a big winning at poker. Doug is the victim. Comes midnight and time for "Hide in the Dark." Lights go out; everybody scampers to different parts of the house. Doug (who is to hide) is found by Jill on the sofa, dead—murdered—and the house is in confusion.

Lights go on and the party reassembles in the living room.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

A small, clear voice said from the threshold: "Can I come in? It's me, Ray. They said you wanted me."

Lindy turned toward her swiftly.

"Oh, Ray, what a good child you are! Of course we want you. See there's nothing to be frightened of now, nothing at all."

Ray said simply, "I'm not frightened—not now that the wind's gone What's happened to the sofa?"

Lindy, scrutinizing the little face, wan and peaceful as a tired child's under its tear stains, asked gently "Ray, haven't they told you what has happened?"

Searching for Knife.

"You mean that some one murdered Doug King? Oh, yes, they told me that. Was that why they were moving the sofa?"

"Yes. He was murdered on the sofa. Where are the others?"

Ray, standing with hands linked before her, docile as a small school girl, cast a speculative eye toward the hall.

"I expect they're looking for the knife. Joel went into a perfect passion because Trudi said that of course some of the people downstairs would probably say that I'd had plenty of time to hide anything while I was up there and he said that she shouldn't set her foot out of the room until she'd examined every square inch of it and Trudi said not to be such an awful jackass, and my head started to ache again, so I came downstairs."

Lindy asked incredulously: "You mean they're actually searching your room for a knife? Oh, good heavens, has every one gone absolutely out of his mind? . . . Trudi! Tru-di!"

"What do you want?"

"I want you and Joel to come down here. We're all waiting for you."

"Well, we'll be down in a minute. Joel's mixing me some aromatic spirits of ammonia. Any one down there want any?"

Trudi's voice was hoarse with exhaustion, but it came as steadily as ever: "No—no—just hurry, will you?"

The rueful incredulity still edged Lindy's lips, twisted her brows as she turned to the men coming slowly back through the narrow door.

Gavin Dart glanced up from a fastidious inspection of something on his cuff, caught the look and went beyond it to the now scattered group.

"Where are the others?"

"Oh, Gavin, according to that poor child they're tearing her room to pieces looking for a knife. I do—I do wish that you or some one else would go up there and stop them."

"He can spare himself the trouble," remarked Trudi from the hallway. "We've stopped ourselves. We've been sitting up there on the edge of the bed taking turns holding our heads and administering rounds of ammonia. It doesn't strike me that a good rousing dose of it would do some of you any harm. How about it, Sherry?"

"Lord, no! Thanks just the same, though, of course. Lindy, do you think that it would be—oh, you know—disrespectful or—or callous or anything if I mixed up a drink? I'm darn near all in and it doesn't make much difference to me who knows it."

Lindy, the shadowed ghost of a smile touching her lips, murmured: "It doesn't seem to me such a very dreadful thing to do. Wait, and I'll get more ice. Some one will have to come with me, won't they? You, Trudi?"

Suggestions From Kit.

But Sherry was waiting for no ice. He drank in great gulps, the glass clicking against his teeth. He put it down as though he were loath to relinquish it even for a moment.

"Lord, I've been craving that! Only I didn't want to do anything that didn't look exactly respectful to Doug—I'm shot to pieces and that's the truth. He was the best pal I ever expect to have."

Gavin Dart, inspecting the two inches that he had poured in the bottom of his glass, glanced up swiftly. "I don't believe we're going to need the ice, Lindy. Fix you up one, Larry?"

"Thanks; there isn't enough whisky in the world to do me any good. Where are we now?"

Gavin Dart replied thoughtfully, "Just precisely where we were, as far as I personally am concerned. Still totally and absolutely in the dark."

Kit inquired equably, "Has any one any particular objection to making at least a gesture toward the light? No? Then I have two or three suggestions, to which you're all naturally at liberty to give short shrift. The first is that we turn out these abominable lights, sit down quietly and try to forget for a few moments that the furies are at our backs."

"Good lord," said Trudi, collapsing into the nearest chair with complete and unqualified abandon. "I was just beginning to think that any one with a grain of sense in their makeups must have died ten years before I was born. Kit, I'm your slave from now on. What's the next move?"

"The next move," said the red-headed young man kneeling purposefully on the hearth, "is that I make a fire and that the rest of you pull up around it. I've noticed before this that the mind and the marrow are prone to become chilled at one and the same time. You take the trivet, Ray, and here's a chair waiting for Jill, that's almost in the cinders."

"Not near the fire," said the dreadful, polite little voice. "I'd rather not come near the fire."

"Jill," said the red-headed young man in a voice that would have lured the children from Hamelin, "there's nothing near the fire but a lot of poor devils who love you and want to help you. Give us a chance, won't you? Here's Larry and Lindy—and that chair all waiting. You aren't going to keep us waiting?"

Law and Order.

She rose, slowly and mechanically, with the eyes of a sleep-walker fixed on her goal and halting feet following the compelling charm of that voice as though it were a cord stretched for her to walk across the abyss of madness itself. Past the winged chair, past the satinwood table, past the little flower-sprigged tabouret, past the dreadful gap that had been the sofa—she caught frantically at the outstretched hand and felt it draw her, strongly and swiftly, to safety and the shelter of Larry's arms.

"And that makes all of us," said Kit. "Well, that brings us down to my last suggestion, doesn't it? Rather the most important of the lot, so you'd better get rather more alert and agog before you either accept or decline it. Just suppose we try looking this thing in the face, instead of crawling all around it. Within the last half-hour a murder has been committed in this room. Naturally, each and every one of us is under suspicion. And equally naturally, the ordinary procedure would be to get in touch with the police, in order to establish the other fellow's guilt and our own innocence. But as that happens to be impossible, for the present at least, it seems moderately essential to me to get at whatever facts are available in as decent and orderly fashion as possible—essential, that is, if some of us aren't to wind up in a madhouse. Dart, you profess to have a fairly extensive knowledge of police methods and the majestic process of the law, don't you?"

"It's been my chief interest for some years, yes."

"Then my final suggestion is that for the time being you represent the forces of law and order and that we all agree to abide by your decisions as to the best way to get at the discovery of the guilty one amongst us. Naturally, this suggestion isn't going to be particularly popular with one of us, but it should be enthusiastically received by the other eleven, unless an accomplice is involved. Suppose we put it to a vote?"

"That's hardly necessary, is it?" asked Tom Ross, his haggard face relaxing to something like a smile. "You're actually serving notice on us, Kit, that a negative vote is tantamount to a confession. It seems to me that common prudence suggests that we elect Dart by acclaim. Well, as far as the Ross family is concerned he may consider himself elected."

"Do I hear any dissenting voices?" inquired the red-headed young man blandly. "Not a discordant note, apparently! Dart, from now on you may consider yourself law, order, science, public opinion, judge, jury and everything but executioner. I doubt whether so much authority was ever vested in one man before! At your service."

The Probe Begins.

Gavin Dart said quietly, "Thanks, I'm entertaining no flattering illusions as to my status. I'm in exactly the same boat as the rest of you, naturally. But I'll accept your proposition for one very excellent reason." He leaned forward, the firelight carving grim shadows along the lean cheeks and lighting dark fires of prophecy in the narrowed eyes. "There have been very few important trials here, in England, or on the Continent that I haven't followed in the last 20 years. I know precisely what it means to be involved in one. I know what it means to be caught in the path of the great machinery of the press and the law that in these days constitutes a murder trial. It makes no difference whatever how innocent of the crime itself you may be, if you stand in the path of Juggernaut, you're doomed. If we can't hand over the murderer of Douglas King to the police before they take this case in hand—if this case comes to trial without a confession—every last one of us will be on trial for our lives as much as the prisoner at the bar."

Lindy, her dark eyes darker, said softly, "Gavin, I'm very stupid, but I simply don't understand. How can a person who is perfectly innocent be subjected to that? How is it possible?"

"It is not possible. It is certain. Have you ever followed a trial, Lindy? Have you seen what happens to the witness on the stand? We will be witnesses, every last one of us—material witnesses, and I'll be willing to wager that precious few of us who crawl out from under those wheels will find much sweetness or savor left in life."

Kit eyed him with neatly tempered irony. "Surely you're not suggesting that even the blameless and the stainless will find the witness chair a seat of judgment? Some of us must have lives that are an open book for any runner to read."

"Whose life, Baird?" There was steel in the voice that turned back the light shafts of many. "Yours? Mine? Hardy's wife?' Larry's sweetheart? Find me the book that has in it no pages better left unread, no pages too sacred or too terrible for the eager breakfast table consumption of tens of millions in letters three inches high. 'Clubman under cross-examination admits youthful escapade ending in expulsion from college.' 'Young society matron under merciless grilling confesses unrequited love for murdered man'—I tell you that simply you don't know what you're in for; I do."

Good health engenders confidence

today business demands healthy men and women—and more than ever it is the survival of the fittest . . .

POOR health is a distinct drawback to progress in business or social life. Underweight, lack of appetite, sluggishness, a dull mentality, nervousness and even skin disorders—boils and pimples—show their mark on the body, face and mind when the red-cells are deficient in number. (See enlarged blood picture above.) Moreover a low red-blood-cell condition makes the system an easy prey to disease. When your red-blood-cells are only 80% you are NOT yourself—60% is dangerous.

The way to correct this condition is to take S.S.S.—the tonic that will help Nature build up and enrich your blood. Millions of people have found it the easiest and surest way to keep themselves "fit." If your vitality is slipping away from you, do try S.S.S.. Take it before each meal. Get the large size. WHEN THE CONOCO MAN ASKS "ETHYL?" . . . . say yes! . . . . . and you'll say it again

THE next time you drive into a CONOCO station, the man at the pump will ask you a one-word question. "Ethyl?", will be his query.

And in justice to yourself and the car you drive, we urge you to answer, "Yes!"

For Ethyl, added to CONOCO, the gasoline we're proud of, is like seasoning added to food. As seasoning brings out taste and deliciousness, so Ethyl brings out the qualities which have made CONOCO Gasoline famous.

Ethyl stops the knock that makes the foot retreat from the accelerator when you would rather "bear down" harder. Ethyl stops the knock that forces you to shift gears on hills. Ethyl stops the knock that embarrasses you when you let in the clutch in traffic.

So when the CONOCO salesman asks, "Ethyl?" . . . Say, "Yes!" . . . and you'll say it again.

COULD YOU HAVE DONE BETTER?

Playing with the above hand at either Auction or Contract and South No Trump Declarer, an interesting situation would arise. West would start by leading his fourth best Spade; East would win, return the suit and (supposing that West won the second Spade, which was what happened when the hand was played) West would lead a third Spade to clear the suit. Declarer then would be put upon his mettle.

What happened in actual play was that the Declarer led four rounds of Clubs (tricks 4-7), and then a Diamond in an attempt to establish that suit. West won and cashed his two long Spades, thus saving game.

Could you have done better?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The Declarer, after winning trick 3, should have appreciated that West had two Spades remaining and East one, and that the Ace of Diamonds was adversely held. Two tricks already had been won by the enemy. If a Diamond were led before Declarer took nine tricks, the enemy by winning with the Ace of Diamonds and cashing the two long Spades would save game; so Declarer must take nine tricks before the Diamond suit is touched. Can he do it?

He already has won a Spade and four Clubs are assured, so to get his game he must take four Hearts; and to accomplish that he must find the King of Hearts in the East hand and the six adverse Hearts evenly divided. The odds are even on the King location and long against the combination. However, it is Declarer's only chance for game and he should try for it.

The play should be as follows: Trick 4, South should lead the Ace of Clubs; trick 5, the Eight of Clubs taken with dummy's Jack; trick 6, a Heart from dummy and a finesse; trick 7 (only one adverse Club outstanding), South's Queen of Clubs won by dummy's King; trick 8, a second Heart from dummy; trick 9, South's Ace of Hearts dropping East's King; trick 10, dummy put in with the Four of Clubs; trick 11, dummy cashes his thirteenth Heart.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

BRIOCHE.

(Department of Agriculture.)

City people can sometimes buy from French pastry shops the delicious muffin-like rolls called brioche, but they are hard to find outside of large centers. There's no reason, however, why brioche can not be made at home anywhere, anytime. They are little, if any, more bother than other yeast-raised rolls, but they do call for a number of eggs and a generous quantity of fat. Brioche, in fact, are so nearly like cake that they are often served with the dessert course. The following recipe for brioche has been very satisfactory.

4 cups sifted flour.
1 tablespoon sugar.
1¼ teaspoon salt.
4 eggs.
1 cup salted fat, half butter if possible.

Soften the yeast in the lukewarm water. Stir into this 1 cup of the flour, cover, and put in a warm place to rise. When light add the eggs unbeaten, the melted fat and the remaining flour sifted with the sugar and salt, and beat for 2 or 3 minutes. Cover and allow to rise until double in bulk. Beat again for a few minutes. Grease the surface of the dough, cover, and put in a refrigerator for overnight or two to three hours before baking, pinch off portions of the dough, put in greased muffin pans and let rise at room temperature. When light, brush with melted butter or milk, bake in a moderately hot oven (about 400 degrees F.) for 25 to 30 minutes or until golden brown, and brush again with melted butter.

Dan Cupid Interprets the Mode

Paris, Aug. 11.

WHY do people put off trips to Europe until they can, as they so quaintly put it, "go right?"

If you are one of those misguided individuals who is saving or even plans to save "at least $10,000 before you go to Europe, listen to me: You can go from New York to Paris, visit Berlin, Belgium, Holland, Switzerland, Italy and possibly Spain and Portugal, return to New York, and have eaten and slept for the entire month in which it would take you to do this—for $1,000.

* * * *

Don't howl at me—it can be done. Anyone with any imagination whatsoever should have sufficient with which to appreciate the fact that a harum-scarum, touristy-third and altogether gorgeous month's tour, punctuated with second and even third class railroad tickets, small hotels and pensions, etcetera, will be ten times the fun when one is young, that a de luxe tour will be when one is older than middle age.

* * * *

Well, you ought to have one real gorgeous and expensive nightgown in your life, now shouldn't you? And if you came to Paris for the first time or even the second or the fifth time, that is the first thing you'll buy, I'll just bet you anything.

So just for that I designed the loveliest one you could buy in or out of Paris, and you don't have to come all the way over here to get it either—all you've got to do is sit down to your writing desk and make out a stamped, self-addressed envelope and send it to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for an illustrated leaflet telling you how to make a gorgeous satin and lace-trimmed nightgown, and adorable dishabille to go with it. If you could just see mine in rose satin and ecru lace, or Alana's in yellow satin, you would just find you couldn't live another minute without one!

* * * *

Evening dresses fasten their bodices under the arm, and what in the heck can anybody do about it? For the line is still too anug to admit of slipping the bodices on over the head without any fastening, and back fastenings—well, ask any husband what he thinks about them!

* * * *

Can't you just see the lovely suit I sketched for you today on the right type of a demure little person with bright blue eyes? For the suit itself is a bright blue, the cut of it is demure and the lace and embroidered blouse is adorable! And then the way that the sleeves of the blouse show under the cape-like top of the coat is altogether too cunning. This is Blanche Lebouvier in her whimsical mood, and we think her whimsical is her best.

Ford's Norfolk Plant Again Is in Operation

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Ford Motor Co.'s Norfolk plant resumed operations today on a four-day week schedule, working 1,900 men.

Production outlined for the remainder of August is 271 cars daily, and this volume was necessary, officials said, to replete stocks of dealers in the territory while the plant was closed down for the usual summer inventory.

What Today Means to You

"LEO."

IF August 12th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 6 p. m. to 9:30 p. m., and 10:30 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7 a. m., and 1 p. m. to 2 p. m.

An unfortunate morning is predicted for this date, time will be wasted, and energies used wrongly. Quarrels, contention and misunderstandings. Do not act in haste! Do not look for trouble unless you know what to do with it, when you find it.

Children born on this August-12th will have considerable natural refinement, will be given a great amount of imitativeness, and a desire to study. They will have keen perceptive faculties and will be cheerful and sociable. They will be in sympathy with family and relatives.

You possess many of the finer attributes given to persons born under the above sign. You love the things of daylight, and you scorn small and puny actions. You have a very open, frank and noble spirit. You have a quick temper when provoked, but your anger does not last long, and if you do not completely forego your revenge, you take it in a generous and open way. You may possibly get angry over trifles, but you never hold grudges—you sett your stores at once and that ends them as far as you are concerned.

You have an abundance of energy and an all consuming desire to do something, and to do it now—that is your complex. Your mind is never at rest except during your hours of sleep, and even then you have interesting and sometimes worrying dreams. Whatever you do, you do well, although you have a rapid mind and rapid fingers. Your very walk indicates that you are an energetic and ambitious person. You carry undertakings to their end, even at great personal risks. Wealth will come to you by personal merit and work, and also by relation, or by favor of rich patrons. Losses may occur through bad health or family troubles. You have the capacity of making friend easily, and you seldom feel alone, even in strange lands or with strange peoples. You have strong passions, well under control. Your enemies will have slight powers to hurt you.

A MILITARY preparatory school that really prepares a boy, not only to enter college, but with training that equips him to STAY there. Consult reports of Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools (copies in hands of public school superintendents). Note the college success of Staunton graduates. Examine reports for several years and observe our consistent leadership among preparatory schools that are essentially military.

Do not misinterpret the term "Honor Military School." IT HAS NO ACADEMIC SIGNIFICANCE. Staunton Military Academy was the first military school from the Potomac to the Rio Grande to receive this War Department rating; for several years the only Honor Military School in the South. CROWDER HURLS NATS TO 9-2 VICTORY OVER TRIBE

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Complaint has been made to the Governor of New York that games of chance are running quite openly in the roadhouses and casinos in and around Saratoga, where the race meeting is now being run off with considerable commercial benefit to the local citizens. The law forbids roulette, faro, craps and all such highly speculative diversons, so it goes without saying that some of the officials of the region must be grafting.

It is impossible to run a gambling house openly and frankly unless the law officers are induced not to bear down, and any one who is disinclined to believed this cynical view of the situation can test the accuracy of the same by renting some holse or stole premises, moving in the regulation equipment and setting up in the gambling business without consulting the local officials. The furniture can be obtained from dealers in New York, Chicago, or Kansas City, and the personnel to run the wheels and tables can be picked up very readily upon inquiry at any race track.

Business has not been exactly booming in the gambling line since last fall when most of the casual money went back to work, and there are nowadays about ten experienced spinners for every spinning wheel in this country.

Gambling Houses Can't Crash.

But if any one should casually move into such a place as Saratoga or Miami and set up such an establishment without first conducting negotiations with the proper authorities, the police and sheriffs would descend upon the house within one hour and they would not only bat the proprietor hither and yon with their blackjacks as a preliminary to arresting him on charges of the utmost gravity, but they would destroy his expensive furniture with axes and then call in the newspaper photographers to blow flash bombs amid the confusion.

Still, the grafting system of regulation appears to be the only feasible method of controlling the gambling business in those hypocritical American communities, of which there are several, where there is no productive local industry and the populations pursue a parasitical existence, living off the people drawn to their midst by the attractions of climate, scenery and privilege.

If the local officials did not impose some fee upon the gambling operators, there would be no limiting the number of gambling houses, and yet if they refused to permit gambling at all the visitors would go elsewhere and the local citizens, after a meager season, would express their indignation by voting them out of office at the next regular election, if, indeed, they did not hold a recall election to put them out sooner.

In Miami the grafting system has

French's Arm and Bat Spell Defeat for Giants

Pittsburgh, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Knocked out by the Giants in the first inning last Saturday, Larry French came back to beat the Giants today by a score of 8 to 5, the Pirate southpaw not only pitching a fine game, but contributing three hits—two of them very useful—to his team's attack. Clarence Mitchell, who started for the Giants, was taken out for a pinch hitter in the fifth inning and was followed by Jim Chaplin, who was knocked out in the seventh inning, Hub Pruett coming in to finish the game.

Home runs were made by Adam Comorosky and Bill Terry. Terry's homer coming with two on base in the sixth inning, brought the Giants up from the rear to tie the score, but the Pirates forged ahead once more in the seventh inning.

An error by Lindstrom aided the Pirates in their scoring in the fourth inning, while one by Terry figured in a run that came in the eighth.

About 3,000 saw the game.

D. C. Youths Win in U. S. Net Play

McLean Takes First 2 Tests in National Boys' Tourney.

Special to The Washington Post.

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 11.—Jock McLean, Washington, D. C., boy tennis champion, entered the third round of the national boys' singles championships here today after two impressive straight set victories. Donald Morrison, Washington entry in the junior division, went into the third round of the junior singles also without the loss of a set.

Young McLean stroked beautifully from the back court to rush through Robert Nikolich, Gary, Ind., 6—2, 6—1 in his first match, encountering but slight opposition. John Shostrom, leading boy player, of Chicago, gave the Washington lad a bit more of a game, but lacked both the punch and finesse in his shots, dropping the match 6—1, 6—3.

McLean to Play Winner.

McLean will play the winner of the Juan Sabates, Cuba, vs. William Glover, Glencoe, Ill., match tomorrow, and should have no difficulty in defeating either of them handily.

Morrison, seeded eighth in the draw, had his left-handed drives very much in control, waltzing through R. Weise, St. Louis, 6—0, 6—3, and then took the court a few moments later to trim John Bauman, one of Chicago's leading junior players, 6—4, 6—3. The summary:

JUNIOR SINGLES.

Convention Hall Scene Of 1931 Pin Congress

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 11.—The representatives of members of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress, at their fourth annual meeting held tonight at the Press Club here, elected officers and named Convention Hall, in Washington, as the site for the next tournament. Previous events were held in Baltimore, Richmond and Waterbury.

C. J. Dalquist, registered from New Haven, was elected president when E. L. Dunnock, of this city, resigned that post. Dunnock was elected to life membership. George L. Isemann was reelected as secretary for the fourth time. Louis Porter and Carl Eiselle, of this city, were named members of the board of governors. The gatehring included representatives from a number of cities along the Eastern Seaboard, from New England to the South.

Following the meeting, tentative plans were laid for the organization of a Men's Duckpin Association here.

Kolp's Pitching Gives Reds Win Over Phils

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Ray Kolp held Philadelphia to six hits today and won a 4-to-2 pitchers' battle from Ray Benge. The Phillies did not secure a hit until the sixth inning. After scoring a run in the first inning, the Reds sewed up the game in the third, scoring twice on doubles by Callaghan and Stripp, Cuccinello's sacrifice, which put Stripp on third, and a double steal by Stripp and Hellmann, who had walked.

ROBINS LOSE, FALL FROM LEAD

Succumb to Cards' 3-Run Rally in Ninth; Errors Pave Way.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Robins, cracking in the ninth inning, dropped a dramatic game to the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 6, today and fell from the lead in the National League that had been theirs with but two short breaks since early June.

With the game apparently safely stowed away and Hollis Thurston pitching nicely, the Robins took a two-run lead into the ninth, but two errors by Del Bissonette, Brooklyn first baseman, his late throw to third, and three hits, the last a single by Frankie Frisch, up-ended the battle and gave the Cardinals their fourth straight victory of the series. By beating the Boston Braves again, Chicago climbed into the lead by the small margin of one percentage point.

Gilbert's Error Starts First Card Rally.

Gilbert's fumble in the second led to Thurston's only bad inning up to the ninth. Bottomley's triple, doubles by Gelbert and Douthit, Johnson's single and a wild pitch gave the Cards four runs. Aided by homers by Frederick and Herman, the Robins pecked at Johnson and Grabowski for an apparent safe lead going into the ninth.

After Hafey and Watkins singled to start the ninth, Bissonette bounced

Lehigh Lost $10,346 In Spring Athletics

Special to The Washington Post.

Bethlehem, Pa., Aug. 11.—It cost the board of control of athletics at Lehigh University $10,346.79 to maintain the four varsity and two freshman teams during the past spring season, according to a preliminary report issued by Walter R. Okeson, treasurer. This amount represents the loss incurred in these sports or the difference between the gross expenses of $43,896.04 and the gate receipts and guarantees received, which amounted to $33,549.25. The budget provided for a loss of $8,800, the loss exceeding this amount by $1,546.79.

The total gate receipts at home games were $1,319.25, all of which were received from baseball and lacrosse, no admission being charged to track meets and tennis matches. No admission was charged for freshman events except in cases of doubleheaders with varsity games. Guarantees received for events away from home amounted to $2,230, making the total income $3,549.25.

"Noise Curfew" Rings On Baby Golf Courses

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A "noise curfew" was clamped on the miniature golf courses of New York City by Health Commissioner Wynne today.

"I have no objection," he said, "if the courses remain open until 3 a. m., but all noise must cease at 11 at night."

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Playing on miniature golf courses in the early hours of the morning is not golf—it's disorderly conduct, Judge John H. Lyle ruled today.

Judge Lyle fined Leo Harrington $200 and costs for allowing persons to play on his putting course during the hours when neighbors were endeavoring to sleep. Harrington appealed.

QUARTER TALENT LIGHT.

Philadelphia.—Temple University's three quarter back candidates total less than 450 pounds in weight. Nick Caterina is the heaviest of the trio, weighing 151 pounds, while Chet Zareck scales 146 and Leon Whittock, 141, an aggregate of 438 pounds. Besides that, the entire group average less than 5 feet 6 inches in height.

YANKS LOSE; GOSLIN HITS 2 HOMERS

Browns Win, 10 to 5, Snapping New York Streak at Six.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Yankee winning streak of six straight was shattered today by Rip Collins and George Blaeholder, who pitched the browns to a 10-to-5 victory in the final St. Louis appearance of the season at the Stadium. While the Yanks were struggling to get five hits, the Browns clouted twelve, four of them homers. Goose Goslin got a pair, Blue and O'Rourke one apiece.

Goslin got a double and a single in addition to the pair of four-baggers and drove in half the Browns's runs. Goslin hit his first homer off Roy Sherid, Yankee starting pitcher, and the second off Ownie Carroll, who replaced McEvoy in the seventh, with two aboard the bases in the eighth. McEvoy replaced Sherid in the fifth.

Rip Collins, former Yankee, gave eight passes but was supreme in the

Nats Release Jake Powell To Chattanooga on Option

IN the hope of giving Outfielder Alvin (Jake) Powell, the former Takoma Tiger Bearcat, an opportunity for further development, President Clark Griffith of the Nationals last night decided to send the young fly-chaser to the Chattanooga Lookouts, of the Southern Association. The lad goes on 24-hour option, so that it will be possible to bring him back here on short notice if needed.

Powell was sent to Joe Engel's club earlier this season, but was not given much of a chance to show his wares and was returned, later being sent to New Haven. With the Eastern Leaguers, he began clouting the ball and was topping the regulars of the circuit when the New Haven Club went on the rocks financially. At that time "Jake" had a stick mark of .372, his hits including twenty doubles, five triples and eleven homers.

In view of this showing, Engel was glad to grab the youngster this time and Powell is scheduled to leave for Chattanooga this afternoon.

White Sox Here for Three-Game Series.

Donie Bush and his Chicago White Sox will be in our midst today when they open a three-game set. Manager Walter Johnson expects to use Southpaw Lloyd Brown on the rubber. Mrs. Moody Abandons Net Title

Six-Time Winner Not to Defend National Tennis Crown.

Wishes to Remain on Coast After Months of Travel, Play.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Helen Wills Moody, six times winner of the national women's tennis championship, said tonight she will not defend her title this year at Forest Hills.

Mrs. Moody, although she still has a keen desire to engage in competitive tennis, said she wishes to remain in San Francisco with her husband and relatives after many months of travel.

"I have been away from home so long it simply wouldn't be right to go away so soon," she added.

During the last two months Mrs. Moody won the French and English championships, returning to her home here about three weeks ago.

In 1926 Mrs. Moody withdrew from the national championships because of illness. Excepting that year, she has won the women's single title successively from 1923.

Molla Mallory Absent After 15 Years' Play.

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The name of that great campaigner, Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, is missing from the list of entrants for the national women's tennis championship for the first time since she rose to fame fifteen years ago.

The one-time queen of the courts was seized with a serious illness early in the year and has not yet recovered sufficiently to take up her racquet. In fact, it is considered doubtful whether she ever again will engage in important tournament play.

In this year's tournament, beginning next Monday at Forest Hills, younger players will compete for the title won eight times by the indomitable Norsewoman. Nine of the country's first ten ranking feminine players entered, headed by Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, champion for the last three years.

Because of ill health Miss Helen Jacobs, No. 2 in the list, will not compete.

Faber Baffles Macks, Chisox Winning, 8-3

Philadelphia, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Urban Faber's spit ball had the slugging Athletics rolling out to the infield for the most part today and the Chicago White Sox won, 8 to 3. The victory was Fabers sixth of the season. Rube Walberg, who started in the box for the Mackmen, left after being slapped for five runs in the third inning. Cissell climaxed the attack on the southpaw by hitting a home run with two on base. By their defeat the Athletics' lead over the second-place Washington Club to 8½ games.

HELD TO SEVEN HITS, INDIANS' LOOSE PLAY IS FACTOR IN DEFEAT

NOT MUCH HARDER

Nats Benefit From 8 Walks, 4 Errors, 2 Wild Pitches.

Harder Leaves Game in 5th; Miller Is No Puzzle.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

SOME one once remarked that the only good Indians are dead Indians, and this was the case at Griffith Stadium yesterday in the final game of the series between the Nationals and Cleveland Indians. While the latter were not exactly dead, they were dead enough to be good to the Johnsons, the result being a 9-to-2 victory which enabled the home gang to step out a game ahead of the third-place Yankees and to cut down the Mackmen's league lead to eight and one-half games, for both the New York and Philadelphia teams were beaten.

Before the fourth frame started it could be seen that in the absence of a miracle the Nationals would win handily. They cracked out only ten hits off of the combined offerings of Mel Harder and Walter Miller, but benefited from no less than eight bases on balls and two wild pitches, most of these being charged to Harder, while the Indians kicked in with four errors, which figured in the making of nearly half of the native runs. Four of the strollers also became scorers.

Crowder Has Few Troubles.

While the Indians were looking like anything but a big league team, "General" Alvin Crowder was having little pitching troubles. He issued more passes than is his habit, walking four, but he struck out five and granted but seven hits, which were scattered in as many different innings. One of these was Ed Morgan's twenty-third homer of the year, a drive to the stands in left center, opening the eighth session.

Harder walked the first two Nats to face him and Manush's sacrifice and Cronin's useful out gave the Nats their first run without the need of a hit. In the second inning the Tribe knotted the string, the result of a base on balls, Hodapp's double, and J. Sewell's air sacrifice. Then the Nats scored four times in the fourth, and to all intents and purposes, this rally ended the game, for what happened thereafter meant little.

Only 2 Hits Figure In Big Rally.

Only two hits were used in this attack in the fourth, both of these starting the inning. They came from the bats of Rice and Manush. A walk to Cronin filled the bases and then

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

MANAGER ROGER PECKINPAUGH made several changes in his line-up yesterday, putting Ed Morgan in the clean-up position, moving Averill up to third place and dropping Hoadap down to fifth.

The pitchers exchanged courtesies in the second and third sessions, each granting the other a double. Harder opened round 3 and Crowder did some good flinging to pull out of this hole, fanning both Porter and Averill to end the inning following Montague's suicide.

Charley Jamieson's judgment was mighty bad when he caught Bluege's foul fly in the third, as this enabled Kuhel to score and Manush to go from first to second after the catch, turning the looper into a sacrifice fly.

Rice backed up against the right-field fence for Jamieson's loft in the fourth. The veteran fly-hawk then ended the frame by coming in fast for J. Sewell's short foul.

Myer went over behind Kuhel to make a pretty stop and peg on Averill's roller ending the fifth.

Montague raced over toward third to take Spencer's liner with his gloved back hand to rob the Nat catcher of a hit in the sixth. Bluege would have scored had this drive gotten past the Indian shortstop.

Spencer rushed to the base of a field-box wall back of the plate to make a nice grab of Montague's pop foul in round 7.

Three Hits for Tigers As Red Sox Win, 5 to 1

Boston, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Red Sox won the last of their four-game series with the Detroit Tigers here today, 5 to 1, thereby splitting even on the series. Danny MacFayden held the Tigers to three hits, two of them by Paul Easterling. The visitors' only run was forced in by MacFayden's wildness in the fourth.

Webb made a peculiar homer in the third on a long drive to deep center. Centerfielder Funk ran in toward second base when the ball was hit and it passed far over his head. Webb had circled the bases before Funk could retrieve it. It should have been an easy out.

PETO, ABEL UP, WINS CATSKILL CLAIMING STAKE

Buddy Bauer Beaten Out By Head

Peto Takes Command When Field Enters Stretch Drive.

SARATOGA RACE TRACK, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Belair Stud's Peto, with "Whitey" Abel in the saddle, scored in a drive in winning the twenty-eighth running of the Catskill Claiming Stake here today. E. R. Bradley's Buddy Bauer was second and the Sagamore Stable's Coin Collector, third. The race was worth $4,025.

Black Watch and Angry, two very fast horses, went to the front and stepped along at a terrific pace. Their mad attempt to gain the lead proved their undoing for, when the real race began, they both stopped and finished outside the money.

Peto, who raced in third position to the stretch, took command when the field straightened out in the final furlong and, though driven hard, held on to win by a head from Buddy Bauer, who in turn beat Coin Collector a length and a half for the place. The time was 1:25 3-5.

Baroni Scores Double At Hawthorne.

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—A. A. Baroni's 3-year-old Calome captured the Del Prado Purse, Hawthorne's featured number on today's card. Flat Iron, from S. Peabody's Stable, was second and Sweet Verbena, from T. T. Pendleton's string, was third.

The race was an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward over the mile and 70 yards distance and carried a net value of $1,100 to the winner. The Gnome colt covered the distance in 1:43 3-5.

The scratching of Gracious Gift and Sweeping Willow narrowed the field to five starters. While the start was a good one, Calome was last to leave the barrier. He was rated along under restraint to the stretch, where he was given his head and taken to the outside. After going into the lead, however, he crossed again to the rail and in so doing interfered with Flat Iron, causing the latter to take up. Calome kept on to win easily by three lengths. Flat Iron, the pacemaker to the stretch, came again after being interfered with by the winner and finished second by half a length over Sweet Verbena.

The A. A. Baroni Stable scored a double when in the next number Zida, a 3-year-old bay filly by Zev—Royalite was home first over her field of ten starters.

Clark, Sports Head, Resigns at Butler U.

Indianapolis, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The resignation of George (Potsy) Clark as athletic director at Butler University was tendered today to the athletic committee and was accepted.

Adjustment was made of a three-year contract which was to become effective September 1 and which called for an annual salary of $10,000. Clark is to be succeeded by Harry Bell, former athletic director at Lombard College, Galesburg, Ill.

A shake-up in the Butler athletic department was indicated several months ago when the North Central Association of Colleges expelled Butler. The association complained that Butler's expenditures for athletics were out of proportion to its endowment.

Franklin-Marshall Grid Prospects Good

Special to The Washington Post.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 11.—According to recent word that has been heard here frequently on College Hill during the summer months, the majority of the candidates for Coach Miller's Franklin and Marshall Eleven are in excellent physical condition and ready to report for the first day of practice here next month. As a matter of fact, no exceptions have been reported and a full crew of veterans and freshmen candidates from last year is expected to be on hand when the day arrives.

Saltzman, Britton, Mazloff and Allen, mainstays from Philadelphia, are reported to be rounding into excellent condition after a summer spent entirely in the open, and rumor has it that this quartet of Quakers is yearning for the opening practice. Glenn Horst and Harry Smoker, two local stars, have been playing baseball throughout the summer with one of the outstanding teams in this vicinity, and it is more than likely that Smoker, upon his graduation at F. and M., will receive a tryout with one of the top International League teams.

New Orleans-St. Louis Boat Record Broken

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The outboard motor boat And How III, piloted by Claude M. Mickler, of New Orleans, passed under Eads Bridge at 4:12 p. m. today, establishing a new record of 78 hours and 51 minutes for a trip up the Mississippi River from New Orleans.

Only survivor of five outboard motor boats to finish a race which started at New Orleans Friday morning, the And How III beat both the record of 87 hours and 31 minutes set by Dr. Louis LeRoy, of Memphis, last year in The Bogie and the time of the Robert E. Lee, famed Mississippi River packet, which was about 4 hours more than The Bogie's record.

Mickler said on arrival here he had not changed motors at Memphis, as had been reported. He therefore is not disqualified and becomes the winner of the Koenig Cup, donated by Edwin C. Koenig, commodore of the St. Louis Yacht Club. He also will be presented with a silver trophy offered by the river committee of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce to the winner of the second annual St. Louis-New Orleans outboard motor boat race. All four other entrants dropped out before reaching Memphis.

The trip up the river, the pilot said, was uneventful and made without mishap, although he suffered from hunger and lack of sleep. Mickler was delayed by a legal attachment at Natchez, Miss., and the dodging of driftwood which prevented him from making the 1,153-mile trip in about 50 hours, as he had planned.

BROWN TRAP, away well in his stride, was rated to stretch, where he came to the outside and, closing gamely under the whip, was up to win in last stride. HIGH STEP, outpaced in the early part, closed with a rush in final furlong and would have won in a few more strides. MEMORIES DEAR had plenty of early speed and rushed right to the front, but weakened in last sixteenth. SCATTER, well up for five furlongs, quit badly. OJIBWA is worth remembering.

SECOND RACE—About two miles. Purse, $1,200; conditions. The Sandhurst Steeplechase. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:36½. Off at 3:38. Winner, Walter J. Salmon's b. g. (4), by Friar Rock—Kathryn Harlan. Trained by J. T. Kermath. Value to winner, $900; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 4:22.

HERMITAGE was much the best. He was poorly handled, being eased back and sent up several times, finally took lead in last quarter mile and won easily. VAN DIKE, a good jumper, showed plenty of speed and ran a good race. FLYING SWEEP had no contention for the show position. FRIAR M'GEE was kept right with the pace all the way, but ran out of the course in the last half mile and his rider finally fell off.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; conditions. For 2-year-olds. Start bad. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:06½. Off at 4:09½. Winner, A. C. Bostwick's ch. c. The latter broke fast, showed some speed and was next best. MORONGE had no mishaps. BAROMETER showed a flash of speed. KNOWLTON was left.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,500 added; claiming. The Catskill For 3-year-olds and upward. Start fair. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:38½. PETO, under good handling, was allowed to rate off the fast early pace, came around BLACK WATCH in stretch and drew out, but tired and had to be hard ridden to stall off the determined rush of BUDDY BAUER. The latter was taken wide all the way and finished gamely; under better handling he might have won. COIN COLLECTOR was never able to get to the front. BLACK WATCH was used up racing ANGRY into submission and stopped badly. CHARON made a bid in the stretch, but weakened at the end. ANGRY was used up racing with the early pace.

No Hit, No Run Game For Illinois Semi-Pro

not been successful either, because there has been no dominant authority or boss to whom the fix was payable and from whom reliable privileges could be purchased. Last winter the gambling operators, a remarkably trustful group considering the vicissitudes of their business and the dishonesty of humankind, proceeded to Miami and opened their stores serene in the belief that having paid the stipulated fix beforehand they would be allowed to pursue their calling without molestation. But they had not been operating long before there ensued a series of raids, some of them attended by the most wanton destruction and personal violence.

It was then discovered that another source of authority had not been consulted in the original arrangements. There was a demand for further inducements and while some of the operators were willing to pay any reasonable price for peace, some others merely called up the sheriff of another jurisdiction, close at hand, and arranged to transfer their business to his county. He bade them welcome because his county had always been overshadowed by Miami and legitimate business and unofficial pickings were poor.

Miami Is Forced To Reconsider.

This would have meant that much revenue would leave Miami, for the people who frequent gambling houses are not habitual gamblers in the main but citizens of good quality who spend, in the aggregate, a large amount of money for food, hotel accommodations, taxi hire and sports attire. But Miami then reconsidered, an adjustment was effected and the gambling houses which so lately had been attacked as a moral blight upon the city were permitted to do business without further difficulty until the end of the season.

Gambling and grafting from the gamblers have been recognized pursuits in Saratoga for 80 years. John Morrissey, the heavyweight prize fighter who became a member of Congress for a time, ran one of the earliest, if not the first gambling house there, and Richard Canfield later conducted another palace of chance in a mansion in the heart of the town, set within a park which subsequently passed to the city.

Roadhouses Now Called Clubs.

In recent years the games have been conducted in roadhouses, called clubs, some of which have contrived an appearance and reputation of genteel refinement. Certain of the aristocrats of the horse business, or distinguished turfmen, as they are called, delight to live, dance, drink and speculate in the more exclusive houses, and it can hardly be contended that any of the road houses are disorderly resorts, for, aside from the music in the cafe rooms and the subdued click of the chips on the tables in the gambling rooms, there is very little sound.

The public official in such a resort confronts a problem in popular hypocrisy which permits of no honest solution compatible with political success. The citizens of Miami, for instance, are dry and moral for political purposes, rejecting all candidates for public office who would candidly admit the necessity for liquo rand gambling in Miami's business.

Saratoga's local population is of similar character, and any official who would close the town in accordance with those statutes and amendments which are held sacred above all others would be condemned by his electorate as an enemy to local prosperity. Politicians are pretty much alike everyhere and in such places as these they adjust their conceptions of law enforcement to the desires of their constituents, reflecting, probably, that the people are the responsible hypocrites after all.

Professional Gamblers The Most Hhonest.

Of all concerned, the more honest are the professional gamblers who, among themselves, at least, maintain a remarkably scrupulous and simple system of credit and moral rating. A gambler who pays off is all right, but a welcher is a zebra, and these two classes are all there are. In this migratory trade, changes of reputation are posted from one end of the country to the other in very little time. Sentimental about their loyalties and cynical about the morals of the public, they stake their sick, bury their dead and recognize no honest man in public life with the exception of lfred E. Smith. There is a great social and ethical distinction between the professional gambler and a racketeer.

Once, at a roadside restaurant in the piney woods near Shreveport, La., I came upon an old faro dealer with reminiscences of gambling houses in Denver, Chicago, Butte, San Francisco, New Orleans, Hot Springs and St. Louis. After 40 years of it he was frying chickens, in person, for a small and not at all sportive clientele and serving them in person, too.

"My old mother,' 'he said, "she got to aging about five years ago, so I thought I'd come home and find some way to make a living so I could stay with her. These she sets, as healthy as ever and good for ten years if she's good for a day. But she needs me and I suppose the long and short of it will be that I'll be out here in the woods cooking chickens the rest of my life. It gets lonesome at night sometimes."

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Saratoga Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Harry Payne Whitney's WHICHONE, with his engagement with Gallant Fox in the Travers Saturday impending, will start in the Miller, the forty-first running of which will take place tomorrow, making his third race of the meeting, and the Travers will make four races in ten days, which is a strenuous campaign for a horse that has been on the shelf with injuries since June 7 until his start in the Saranac here last Wednesday. He has had no dangerous opposition in his previous races here and will not have in the Miller.

The last named race, being at a mile and three-sixteenths, will give the best test he has had, for it is a mile and three-sixteenths, little short of his coming contest with Gallant Fox. There are horsemen of the opinion that WHICHONE ran about as fast as he can in the Whitney Memorial Saturday. That was a mile and a quarter in 2:04, a good race, but he will have to improve over that to beat Gallant Fox. The race was more impressive for the manner in which he ran than the speed, for he had his old "glide" motion that carried him to the top of the heap last year.

The interest in Saturday next race is so keen that anything that happens in the Miller will be of interest, chiefly as it reflects on the Travers. WHICHONE, it appears, will win the Miller without question. But his move will be compared with the workout of Gallant Fox, which will be several hours in advance of the running of the Miller. There will be hundreds of early risers out to see the Woodward champion work.

In the Miller are SPINACH and GONE AWAY, the Zeigler entry, of which SPINACH is considered the better, forgetting about his bad races at Empire City. It is said Garner will ride SPINACH. That indicates a healing of the breach between Zeigler and his former jockey. GONE AWAY has not run a bad race this year, but both the Zeigler horses are outclassed by WHICHONE. The finish of the Miller should be WHICHONE, SPINACH, GONE AWAY. There are four other 3-year-olds in the Miller.

FIRST RACE—ALL HAIL is regarded much the best in the first for 2-year-olds on recent workout moves and the public has caught on and will make the price short. JOLLY KING and UPSWEEP should furnish the contention.

SECOND RACE—There is no steeplechase scheduled, but instead a mile race for 3-year-olds, with CAPSTONE chosen to win. CHATOVER will be favorite, probably, and is a dangerous contender, with BYRD and MILKMAN next in the order named. MILKMAN was a maiden until last week when he defeated a good field in impressive style. He was said to be the best 3-year-old maiden in the country and his race proved it.

THIRD RACE—The field of eleven mares which will compete in the Sylvan Belle Handicap is the most evenly balanced on the card, with much speed engaged. THE BEASEL must be selected, for her race last week was new proof that few of her age and sex can run faster. Six furlongs is her distance. She beat the swift-running Judge Schilling by lengths. Her closest rival probably will be LADY CAPULET, next in weight. ERIN, which has been racing in the West, but not quite up to her standard, seems next best. DINAH DID UPSET may improve. ERIN would be more formidable at a longer route.

FIFTH RACE—FLECHE D'ARGENT, which was believed good enough to have a chance in the Alabama, and ran creditably in that stake, looks like the best, at least on class of the fifth race. She is in light and can go the route of a mile and a quarter. CHICATIE has had a rest and is very dangerous. SPANISH, which showed good form last week, may be the show horse.

SIXTH RACE—PHANTASIME is picked to lead the 2-year-olds home in the sixth event. Sixteen maiden fillies start in the race. ZAIDER and WHISKER both worked impressively and should make the issue doubtful to the last step and hold the others safe.

FINAL TRIAL TODAY FOR WHICHONE

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Making his last public trial before matching strides with Gallant Fox in the Travers Saturday, Harry Payne Whitney's Whichone tomorrow answers the bulge call for the third time in a week at Saratoga when he goes forth in quest of the Miller Stakes and its purse of $3,500 added.

Although the ace of the Whitney stables will not be called on to meet horses of the caliber of Gallant Fox, he will be facing the largest field with which he has had to contend this year. Six 3-year-olds have dared to throw down the gauntlet to the horse, which many say will lift the 3-year-old championship crown from the head of the William Woodward star on next Saturday.

Certain to Be Odds-On.

Facing a much larger field than when he won the Whitney last Saturday, Whichone probably will be offered at more liberal odds than 1 to 10, although it is almost certain he will go to the post the odds-on favorite. Even though he will be packing the top weight of 126 pounds and giving away five to his nearest rival, Chaffee Earl's Western-owned Jim Dandy, it is difficult to pick out a horse that will so much as offer the son of Chicle a stern battle over the mile and three-sixteenths.

Packing three pounds less than Jim Dandy will be W. R. Coe's Desire, while Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Falcon, the Howe Stable's Goldbrook and William Ziegler, jr.'s, Gone Away and Spinach get in with 113 pounds.

Peto Winner by Head Over Buddy Bauer.

Balking Texas Rookie Decides to Join Chisox

Dallas, ex., Aug. 11 (A.P.)—Victor FTrasier, young righthanded pitcher bought by the Chicago White Sox from Dallas, of the Texas League, at the end of last season, left tonight for Chicago.

The action apparently ended a long period of bickering between Frasier and the White Sox management during which the pitcher refused to report for duty. It came after a conference between Frasier and President Sol Dreyfuss, of the Dallas Club. Dreyfuss and he told Frasier he was

Argentine Ring Hero Fights in N. Y. Tonight

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Justo Suarez, whose fighting prowess thrills his countrymen in Argentine as the hairy fists of Luis Firpo once did, will make his second American appearance in a campaign for lightweight title honors tomorrow night against Herman Perlick, of the Kalamazoo (Mich.) Perlicks. They will meet in the ten-round main go at the Queensboro Stadium.

In his first American bout Suarez, a rough and tumble fighter, whipped tough Joe Glick in a ten-round bout that followed the Al Singer-Sammy Mandell lightweight title tilt. Although not yet recognized here as the star the Argentine believes him to be, Suarez is regarded as a husky puncher, game and durable, and likely to cause much discomfort among the ranking 135-pounders. Suarez is a slight favorite over Perlick, more experienced of a pair of fighting twins. Herman recently fought a close match with Jackie (Kid) Berg, conquerer of Kid Chocolate.

So interested are the faithful of South America in the welfare of Suarez that arrangements for running accounts of the match have exceeded anything ever attempted before by Argentine newspapers, including the Firpo-Dempsey battle. Radio, long distance telephone covering 6,000 miles, and a half dozen cable wires will carry descriptions of the bout to South America.

PRINTERS DEFEAT NAVY YARD IN LEAGUE GAME, 11-8

Government League Battle Decided by Blow in 6th.

Naval Hospital Plays Typos Today, Yard Tomorrow.

HOLBROOK greeted Lefty Kuhnert, essaying a relief pitching role, with a triple yesterday afternoon and three runners touched the well-worn plate on the South Ellipse diamond to give the Union Printers an 11-8 decision over the Navy Yard club and further complicated the race for the second series honors in the Government League.

With only two games remaining on the schedule, the Union Printers meeting Naval Hospital today and Navy Yard facing Naval Hospital tomorrow, a play-off may be necessary. Should Naval Hospital win both games it will take the league championship, having previously won the first series. However, should the Printers beat the Sailors, Navy Yard could take the second series honors by a victory in the final game, or Naval Hospital by winning could tie the race.

See-Saw Battle Fought.

Yesterday's game was a seesaw affair. Navy Yard pushed two runs over in the first, but the Printers counted three in the second only to have their opponents tie the game in their half. The Typos went in front again, 4-3, in the third, but Navy Yard scored four times in the fourth and once in the fifth to make it 8-6.

It was at this point that Swygert, the Navy Yard pitcher, got in trouble. He left the bases filled and Holbrook up. Kuhnert was pressed into service here with the result aforementioned.

Week-Day Leagues Hope To Start Series Monday

Unless the championship of the governmental league is decided by tomorrow, the opening of the series to determine the champion of the week-day baseball teams will not start until August 21, it was decided at a meeting of officials of the six leagues last night in the Terminal Y. M. C. A.

Three teams—Naval Hospital, Union Printers, and Navy Yard—still have a chance at the title in the Governmental League. If Hospital wins its game with each today and tomorrow, it will gain the championship, and the week-day championship series will begin on August 18, the originally scheduled starting date.

However, if it loses either game or both, bringing about a tie among the victims, a play-off will be necessitated between Hospital and the team or teams by which it is beaten.

In case a postponement of the beginning of the series is involved, thhe second scheduled game of the original pairing between the Industrial League champion and the Y. M. C. A. Morning League winner will be played as the series opener on August 21, the third scheduled game involving the Y. M. C. A. Evening League and Georgetown Church League champs being played on August 22, and the originally scheduled opener between the Government and Departmental League flag winners waiting until August 25 before being staged.

In addition to giving out these dates, the committee decided on the use of the Reach ball as the official ball of the series and the selection of the following umpires: P. Cox, C. Bussuls, J. Green, J. Y. Hughes, J. ones, C. R. McClure, E. G. Purdy, I. Shoemaker, G. Watt and W. Watt.

Bar Body Golf Title To Thomas.

Henry P. Thomas, prominent Alexandria attorney, won the championship of the Virginia Bar Association in the annual golf tournament held over the Chamberlin-Vanderbilt Links at Old Point Comfort, Va. Thomas shot a 91. He was presented with a handsome silver set. The winner is a member of the Belle Haven Country Club.

Charlie Corbett, manager of the St. Mary's Celtics, is trying to arrange a game Sunday with Mount St. Joseph's or the Mount Rainier Baseball Teams. Both are leaders in their respective leagues.

Alexandria's entry in the American Legion National Baseball Tournament, the American Legion Juniors, will leave Tuesday night at 10:42 o'clock via rail for Gastonia, N. C., to play in the quarter finals on August 14-15. The Alexandria youngsters won their way into this tournament when they copped the baseball title of the State of Virginia.

CUBS ON TOP BY BEATING BRAVES

Bunch 11 Safeties Off Cantwell to Gain 4-2 Victory.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The Cubs today made a sweep of their four-game series with Boston, 4 to 2, with Bud Teachout, young left-hander, giving the Braves six hits.

The Cubs pecked away at Ben Cantwell for eleven hits, well enough bunched to score the necessary runs. Wallie Berger got a gift home run in the ninth, when Hack Wilson misjudged his long, high fly.

Riggs Stephenson, Cub left-fielder, had a perfect day at bat with two doubles and a single in three times up. Woody English chased over two Chicago runs with timely singles.

NATS ROUT INDIANS, 9-2, BEHIND CROWDER

the Indians kindly helped empty them. On Kuhel's tap to Hodapp, which scored Rice, the Cleveland second sacker threw past Morgan. The latter then retrieved the ball and threw over J. Sewell's head at third.

When the excitement had died down, it was discovered that Manush and Cronin had registered and that Kuhel was perched on third. Following a walk to West, Bluege fouled to left and Jamieson foolishly caught the ball smack against the stands, turning it into a sacrifice fly, which left Kuhel register and West advance to second.

Harder managed to put on the brakes here, but granted another run in the next frame, the result of a walk, wild pitch, and Cronin's double. Following this latter clout, he filled the bases by walking two, but Bluege flied to Averill for the third out.

Miller Yields Run In Sixth.

Miller faced the Nats in the fifth and was scored on after two were out. Myer and Manush singled, with a pass separating these blows, to net this marker. A double by Bluege went for naught in the sixth, and the Nats added two more in their seventh before calling it a day. An error by Montague gave Crowder life as a starter and singles by Myer and Rice and Manush's infield out brought the runs home.

Following their second-frame effort, the Indians threatened but twice thereafter, except for Morgan's round-tripper. They had visions of a rally when Myatt singled and Porter walked in the fifth, while they managed to fill the sacks in the seventh when Miller singled between walks to J. Sewell and Porter.

Myer, Rice and Manush led the Nat offensivve with two hits each, while Johnny Hodapp's three safeties, including a double, represented almost half of the Indian attack.

JUDGE STILL IDLE WITH HURT THUMB

jured hand yesrterday, but the hurt thumb prevented him from gripping his bat properly. He probably will not be available for two or three more days.

Bill Werber, former Tech High star third-sacker, who was given a trial by the Yankees this season and farmed out to Albany, of the Eastern League, is now leading that circuit at bat with an average of .443 for 36 games.

Pitcher Fred Marberry, who fractured a small bone in his right wrist in New York on August 2, has been advised by the club physician that the plaster cast will be removed from the big pitcher's arm tomorrow. "I'll be pitching regularly again within three weeks," Marberry stated last night.

2 ERRORS IN NINTH COST ROBINS LEAD

Fisher's roller off Watkins' back in attempting a force-out at second and two runs scored. Bissonette muffed Gelbert's foul and threw Gelbert's tap late to third in another attempted force-out. High walked and Phelps came into the box to retire the next two men, but Frisch spanked a single to center to score the winning run.

Spengler Post Nine Leaves Today for Regional Games

Hagerstown Scene of Battles Starting Tomorrow; Drawings to Be Made Tonight for Legion Contests.

THE Spengler Post Team, representing the District of Columbia in the American Legion junior championship series, will leave today by bus from in front of The Washington Post Building at 1 o'clock for Hagerstown, Md., the scene of the Region No. 10 games, E. B. Lyon, department athletic officer, announced last night. Through a shift in the legion's plans, the drawings will be made at Hagerstown tonight and the Spenglers may face their first opponents tomorrow.

Both Lyon and Watson B. Miller, athletic officer of Spengler Post, were anxious that the District color bearers avoid the task of playing the same day on which they travel to Hagerstown. Hence they will sleep at the scene of action tonight.

Besides the District entry, representatives of Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Delaware will compete in this series. Two of the five teams will have played in three games if they survive. Teams drawing No. 1 and No. 2 will clash tomorrow, with the winner of this game meeting No. 3 Thursday in the first game of a double-header. Teams No. 4 and No. 5 will meet in the second game. On Friday the two surviving clubs will meet in the final.

Coach Jim Hayre has held two practice sessions for his Spenglers since they won the city title from the Sergt. Jasper team and reports that all hands are in top shape for the big test.

Allison Meiklejohn, star pitcher, has been thoroughly rested. Hayre intends to use Meiklejohn in two games if Spengler survives.

Joe Tinker Is Named Jersey City Manager

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Joe B. Tinker, shortstop of the famous Tinker to Evers to Chance infield combination of the Chicago Cubs 20 years ago, has been appointed manager of the Jersey City Club in the International League, George Perry, new contact man of the New York Yankees, announced today.

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Nick Allen, well known as a minor league manager and formerly major league player, has resigned as manager of the Jersey City Club of the International League. He could not get the club into the winning class.

Tinker succeeds Nick Allen, who resigned the leadership of the Jersey City team when the club failed to advance under his direction. The Yankees, regarded as the parent of the Jersey City club, are known to be interested in its direction.

Tinker served a short time earlier this season as assistant to Bill Clymer in the management of the Buffalo team in the International League. He was let go at the same time Clymer resigned.

HESS UPSETS NET DOPE AT RYE

Defeats Gilbert Hall; Five Women Seeded Stars Score.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 11 (A.P.).—With competition in the women's singles holding the center of play, the Eastern grass courts tennis championships progressed as predicted today, the majority of the favorites advancing with little difficulty. Thirty-six matches in the women's division and six on the men's section were placed at the Westchester Country Club.

Scoring an impressive victory over J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., Jake Hess, jr., of Fort Worth, Tex., turned in the only real upset of the day. The young Texan went into the second round defeating Hall, 5—7, 6—4, 6—4. Hess is a round behind the men's field, as are Gregory Mangin, Newark, N. J., and Berkeley Bell, of Austin, Tex., Davis Cup alternates. Bell defeated Armand L. Bruneau, 6—3, 6—4, while Mangin took the measure of Dr. Gerald Bartosh, of Los Angeles, in straight sets, 6—2, 6—4.

William Tilden, the national champion and Eastern courts defending title holder, is idle until Wednesday, when he meets Julius Seligson, of New York, in the third round. Later he will pair with Hunter as the No. 1 seeded team in the doubles.

Play in the women's singles today filled seven of the third-round brackets, with Miss Mary Greef, Kansas City; Mrs. J. D. Corbiere, East Stamford, Conn.; Miss Catherine Wolf, Chicago; Miss Alice Francis, Orange, N. J.; Miss Mercedes Marlowe, San Francisco, and two New Yorkers—Mrs. T. D. M. Johnson and Miss Clara Greenspan—ahead of the field. All but Mrs. Johnson and Miss Marlowe played two matches today.

Five of the eight seeded stars remained in the running, while the remaining three, Miss Betty Nuthall, of England; Miss Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Calif., and Miss Virginia Hilleary, of Philadelphia, withdrew.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

DO YOU know of a low-growing bush spoken of as the evergreen thorne? It is popular in European gardens. The shrub to which I refer has a wealth of berries at certain seasons of the year.

ANNA F. T.

The shrub you mention is, no doubt, the pyracantha lalandi, a most worth-while variety of hardy shrub. It is a pity we do not see more of this evergreen thorne in this country.

Please tell me why the buds of my peonies do not open. I give them plenty of water and they are in a sunny location in my garden.

MRS. M. E. MAC.

Your peonies may be affected with bud rot. In the future spray the plants when growth starts in the spring, again in late April or early May and in October. Bordeaux mixture is the spray to use for peony blight. In the future never use manure in any form about the roots of these plants; use only bonemeal as a fertilizer. Be sure the grass is not encroaching on the roots of these plants. Peonies are gross feeders and do not care to share their food.

Please examine the inclosed fern frond and tell me what the trouble is.

MRS. E. F.

There is no evidence of disease or scale on the frond you sent me. The backs of the leaves are covered with spores (seed cases), which is a natural condition in a healthy plant.

Please tell me about the inclosed leaves. No. 1 is a shrub of which I am anxious to learn the name. No. 2 I understand is a species of columbine. In this correct?

M. E. K.

I have a lilac bush that is covered with blight. What do you suggest to save the bush? Is there much danger of using too much bonemeal about roses?

R. H.

Better spray your lilac with lime-sulphur. There is little danger of using too much bonemeal. Use enough to whiten the soil at each application. As a rule, roses do better if at times they are fed with a pint of liquid manure to each plant.

Please tell me the name of the plant from which the inclosed leaves were taken. Will it harm roses to transplant them in the late fall? I now have them planted temporarily.

MRS. M. B. F.

Phlox. Roses may be moved in the late fall or early spring.

STOCKS MOVE AHEAD WITH NOMINAL GAINS

MONEY RATES FIRMER

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Stocks bobbed up and down erratically today, but closed higher on short covering stimulated by a more optimistic view of the crop situation.

Except in a comparatively few instances, net gains were nominal, for the rallying tendencies prevailed only after the market had gone through some highly erratic movements. It was again the old story of dullness on the declines and willingness to take profits on the advances, but the bears apparently sensed an oversold condition as the result of last week's declines and covered with some freedom, especially in the rails.

Lower temperatures and the prospect of showers in the grain belt, together with technical maneuvers in preparation for the Government crop report, brought about movements of a professional nature in wheat and corn. The former sold off more than 2 cents a bushel, while corn closed fractionally higher.

The failure of Saturday's rally to hold encouraged further selling in the morning hours when moderate declines developed in several sections of the list, notably in the farm implement shares, the rails and utilities.

Market's Resistance Surprises.

The market's resistance proved a surprise to the shorts, however, and after a series of small moves in either direction, covering began in earnest at midafternoon under the leadership of the investment rails. Atchison, for example, rose more than 7 points and Union Pacific nearly 6. Late profit-taking moderately reduced many of the extreme gains.

The firmness of money was somewhat of a surprise, for call loans advanced to 2½ per cent after renewing at 2. The rise was attributed to the withdrawal of about $50,000,000 by out-of-town banks, which are requiring funds for the movement of crops. This drift away from the New York market, bankers explained, might be expected to continue for several weeks. Part of the money being taken back into the interior doubtless reflects the reopening of the automobile plants. Despite these demands, however, prominent banking interests expressed the opinion that the firmer rate was temporary.

Prominent industrial shares generally maintained a firm undertone in the day's fluctuations. U. S. Steel, which closed Saturday at 159½, dipped to 158¼, but then moved 3 points above that figure, selling off to 160 at the close. General Motors was exceptionally firm, gaining a point net. Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, A. M. Byers, Auburn Auto, Auto Strop, American Tobacco B, Radio, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Vanadium and Westinghouse Electric rallied 1 to 6 points.

New York Central Gains.

Canadian Pacific was weak, breaking to the lowest price since 1927 on rumors that the directors might reduce the dividend, a fear that proved unfounded. The stock, which sold off 3¼, reduced its loss to 1½. Atchison encountered profit taking at the top and its extreme gain of 7½ was cut to 3, which was the extent of the advance in both New York Central and Louisville & Nashville.

Sears-Roebuck was sold at the close and broke to a new low for a net loss of more than 2 points. Other prominent issues touching new minimums were Gulf States Steel, Warner Bros. Pictures, Columbia Gas & Electric, U. S. Rubber first preferred and Missouri, Kansas and Texas preferred. The day's maximum losses in the utilities were generally reduced or eliminated. American Telephone closed fractionally higher.

European exchanges were firm, suggesting the possibility that gold exports might be resumed. Sterling cables rose 3-32 to $4.87 7-32.

Cotton was soft for a time, but closed only 4 to 8 points lower.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—After making new low records for the life of the active contracts during today's early trading on reports of rains in Alabama and Arkansas, cotton rallied partially on trade buying and covering. The new October contract declined to 12.15 during the morning, but later rallied to 12.31 and closed at a figure compared with 12.36 last Saturday. The general market closed steady at net declines of 4 to 8 points.

The opening was barely steady at declines of 11 to 15 points in response to reports of rains or showers in the South over Sunday and the relatively easy showing of Liverpool. The initial decline brought in some trade buying and covering, but it was readily supplied, with December selling off to 12.34 and March to 12.61 before the end of the morning, or about 18 to 22 points net lower.

Offerings then tapered off and the market turned steadier during the afternoon, probably on a belief that, except for rains at some points in Alabama, the precipitation shown by the detailed weather reports was hardly sufficient to materially help the drought situation. There seemed to be some trade buying orders in the market for execution around 12.15 for October and 12.35 for December, which helped to check the decline and steady the afternoon market. December rallied to 12.50 and March to 12.77 on covering, and closing quotations were within a point or two of the best on the active positions.

A good part of the selling was attributed to a renewal of the liquidation promoted by the crop report of last Friday, and scattering pressure inspired by the somewhat better average of the weather news or the relatively easy Liverpool cables. Very little Southern selling was reported after the first hour, while the detailed weather reports showed rather less rain than anticipated by some of the early sellers here, and there were reports of trade buying orders below the market which promoted covering after the break into new low ground.

Liverpool cables said there had been hedging with local and Bombay liquidation in that market on rain reports from the South. Exports today were 8,806, making 50,616 so far this season. Port receipts, 12,619. United States port stocks, 1,377,351.

Stay Away From Ogopogos!
The Ogopogo—mysterious giant fish of the Canadian lakes—has an unpleasant habit of tipping over a fisherman's boat, gobbling up the fisherman, and carrying him through subterranean passages to the Pacific Ocean—so goes the legend of the Canadian Indians.
The worried Indian who fishes in British Columbia waters, and risks being caught by the Ogopogo, is in exactly the same boat with the worried speculator who risks having his financial craft upset by a stock market flurry—and is gobbled up by the very stock he is fishing for.
It's a simple matter to keep away from these financial Ogopogos. Your surplus funds, invested in 6% First Mortgage Notes, will never be carried away by a downward plunge on Wall Street—for 61 years, during all the wild periods of fluctuation, these Notes HAVE NEVER VARIED a penny in value every investor has always received his unfailing interest return.

BOND SALES SLUMP; FEW RAILS ADVANCE

FOREIGN GROUP STEADY

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—Activity of the bond group in the New York Stock Exchange was at low ebb today. In one of the dullest sessions of the year, a mixed movement developed which extended to the best grade bonds. Total sales were only $5,923,000.

A few railroad and utility issues climbed to new highs for the year but the moderate selling which came into the market depressed some of the leaders to the extent of one-fourth or one-half point. The rally of Atchison 4½s, which soared 3 ponits, was outstanding among convertible bonds. Railroad bonds in this group were steady to firm, while other stock privilege issues were irregular. Warner Bros. convertible 6s dipped further to another new low for the year. Leaders in the foreign section were steady.

The turnover in United States Governments was very small, Liberty issues holding firm. In a thin market Treasury issues moved lower. Bankers expect that the Government will be able to market $120,000,000 in Treasury bills at a favorable rate.

The firming of call money, which advanced to 2½ per cent after renewing at 2, was ascribed to out-of-town withdrawals incident to seasonal demands of agriculture. Increased demands for currency in farming sections are expected to continue for about six weeks, with bankers anticipating no permanent firming effects on credit conditions.

Curb Review

New York, Aug. 11 (A.P.).—The curb market resisted a further bear drive against the utilities today, and closed irregularly higher. Trading was in moderate volume, with a total of 469,300 shares transferred.

Electric Bond and Share was heavily sold by the bear element, and got down nearly 3 points, but it closed at 75¼, off only about a point. American Gas & Electric dropped about 5, then rallied 2. United Light A was bid up 1⅛ but then lost its gain. U. S. Electric Power and Utilities Power & Light were firm.

The natural gas issues were uniformly steady to firm, with a wide assortment showing fractional advances. Appalachian, and its subsidiaries, Southwestern Gas Utilities and Memphis Natural Gas, all closed a little higher. Memphis' earnings doubled in the first half, facilitating retirement of its bonds. Houston Oil, also primarily a gas issue, was a firm feature, rising about a point.

Operations for the advance were resumed in Ford, Ltd., which shot up about 3 points to a new high at 23½. Industrials and specialties generally were dull. Deere and Technicolor mounted more than a point, and Ruberoid three in a small turnover. There were a few soft spots. Aluminum Co. dropped 13½ points to 227 in a few sales. Johnson Motor tumbled 9½ to a new low at 14½.

Investment and holding company issues were steady to firm. Cities Service and United Founders closed about steady, after throwing off early heaviness. The Goldman Sachs, Blue Ridge and Shenandoah issues moved up a little. Intercoast Trading, an affiliate of Transamerica, dropped more than a point to a new low at 11½.

Oils were quiet and irregular. Gulf gained 2 points and Humble a fraction. Cosden, a recent pool favorite, was neglected. Ohio Oil lost a point and Vacuum nearly 2.

BANKERS TO DISCUSS BETTER PROTECTION

New Measures May Result From Number of Late Holdups.

LIKELY SYSTEM GIVEN

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Prompted by recent holdups, members of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will meet tomorrow to discuss protective methods both within and without their institutions, decide whether they are adequate and if not, evolve a plan to make them so.

While details of such a plan and the subjects for discussion will probably not be made public for reasons of protection, it is understood particular attention will be devoted to the safeguarding of runners and vehicles engaged in the transportation of cash, valuables and securities.

While there are many institutions taking all possible precautionary measures with regard to this duty, it is the hope of the conferees to develop a thorough, workable plan applicable to all member banks for their general protection.

Details of Probable Plan.

Details of such a plan which may be discussed have to do with the arming of all runners as well as guards; increase in number of guards, according to amounts transported, advisability of display of bank insignia by employes engaged in such missions and whether runners should make more trips bearing smaller amounts.

John J. O'Connor, manager, finance department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will address the convention of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America to be held at Detroit, September 16 to 18, on "Mortgage Finance and General Business." He will describe steps which have been taken to stabilize business in recent months through the medium of the National business survey conference in which mortgage bankers have taken a part.

Financing of home ownership as a factor in the upturn of business prosperity will be a leading topic of the discussion at the convention. Five hundred delegates from here and 40 States are expected to attend the meeting, of which the keynote will be "Management: The Responsibility of the Mortgage Banker in the New Decade."

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 11 (A.P.)—Sensationally pessimistic unofficial field advices turned corn values upward late today despite good rains in drought territory and notwithstanding widespread relief from abnormal heat. Wheat values sympathized to some extent with the renewal of corn-price advances, but fell back again at the finish, dominated by general and correct belief that the Government crop report, due after the close, would make a bearish exhibit as to wheat. Besides, export demand today for wheat from North America appeared to be at a standstill and the United States visible supply total showed a fresh increase of 10,307,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on corn were firm, ⅛ cent to 1⅛ cents a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Wheat closed unsteady at 1⅛ to 2⅛ cents net loss, with oats ½ to 1 cent off, and provisions showing 5 to 25 cents sag.

Corn traders focused their attention most of the time today on comprehensive summaries issued by leading private experts who have just returned here from first-hand examination of crops and who have covered the corn belt from end to end. One of these experts furnished information about corn in Iowa and northern Illinois which temporarily tended to give an advantage to the selling side of the market. He said that the crop both in Iowa and in northern Illinois, two of the most important sources of the country's commercial supply, is still promising a yield of not far below normal as a result of the stand of corn in the region referred to being heavier than elsewhere.

Subsequently, however, the bearish effect of encouraging references to Iowa's probable corn crop and to that of northern Illinois was more than offset by general notice being taken that the same authority said the corn crop in other sections had suffered more from drought and heat than he had ever witnessed before in 42 years of traveling. Advances which ensued were greatly accelerated toward the last by assertions of another of the country's foremost unofficial crop experts that the corn crop as a whole is in a deplorable condition and that the yield will be lighter than has generally been expected. Under such circumstances, early price declines which had resulted from general lowering of temperatures and from moisture relief in various localities were more than overcome in the corn market as the day drew to an end.

It was generally anticipated also that, as shown after the close, the Government crop report about corn would prove even more radically bullish than Secretary Hyde's recent forecast of half a million bushels drought damage.

Wheat rallied with corn somewhat in the late dealings, but quickly resumed a downward swing which had begun at the opening of business. An estimate that the European carryover of wheat this season is 116,000,000 bushels less than last year had only a transient stimulating influence. Emphasizing slackness of European demand for North American wheat was a report that Russia has sold 3,500,000 bushels to other transatlantic countries at about 5 cents a bushel under quotations on Canadian wheat of equal grade. Oats went lower with wheat, but met good demand on declines.

Holders of provisions showed themselves disposed to realize profits and to ignore an upturn in hog values.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ARLINGTON-FAIRFAX FIRE CARNIVAL OPEN

Affair to Continue for Week With Many Special Features to Be Introduced.

BATHING POOLS CLOSED

ARLINGTON COUNTY, BUREAU OF THE POST, Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association opend its seventh annual convention and jubilee on the property adjoining the Woodrow Wilson School Building, fronting on Wilson boulevard, at Fort Myer Heights last night to continue the entire week. The affair is staged each year to raise funds to aid sick and injured firemen and, in the event of death, the family.

The exercises opened with a tug-of-war. Tomorrow night there will be a pie-eating contest; Thursday night, a race for fat men, and Friday night a slipper race for the ladies.

There will be two parades during the week, the first on Wednesday afternoon preceding the convention meeting and the second on Saturday, in which a number of visiting fire companies from nearby Maryland and Virginia will participate.

The jubilee is in the form of an old-time carnival. The grounds are lighted with two huge flood lights and hundreds of colored lights. The committee has provided much amusement and, having the children in mind, have provided a Ferris wheel, merry-go-round and flying horses. A number of attractive booths have been provided, a feature one of which is devoted to women only.

The ladies auxiliary of the association are playing a most important part in the affair. They have charge of the dining room, which will be open each evening. The women's committee is headed by Mrs. Louis C. Carl, who is acting in the absence of the president, Mrs. Crandal Mackey, who is at the bedside of her son, Robert, who is confined in St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore, suffering from injuries received in a recent automobile accident.

The convention will convene Wednesday evening immediately following the parade on the carnival grounds. A member representing each of the departments of the two counties will give a brief record of the history of their organization with General Chairman John R. Mossburg, presiding.

Dancing will be a feature each night on the spacious dance floor which has been provided. Music will be furnished by Jarboe's Orchestra from Washington.

The following companies will have charge of the various booths: Arlington, ladies garments and soft drinks; Ballston, candy; Cherrydale, ham bacon, sugar and automobiles; Clarendon, groceries and cigarettes; Falls Church, furniture; Fairfax, electrical and pennies; Herndon, household, and Jefferson, bingo.

G. Frank Allwine, chairman of contest committee, urges all business concerns desiring to enter their machine in the parade Saturday to communicate with him without delay.

Alert to any possible danger which may arise from the continued drought and the drying up of the many streams in the county, Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, announced yesterday that he has ordered two privately-owned bathing pools in the county closed, one at Bon Air and the other located at Barcroft.

"These pools have been inspected and I consider from a health standpoint it is necessary that they be closed," said Dr. Chichester.

With these two pools closed, Dr. Chichester also issued a warning to persons bathing in any stream that may be found in the county and also in the Potomac River.

This warninig has been issued each year, pointed out Dr. Chichester, but, with the present low water mark, it is all the more necessary that extra care should be used.

Charged with illegal possession in violation of the prohibition laws, H. B. Simson and Raymond Henderson were each held for the action of the grand jury yesterday by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas. Bond was fixed against each at $1,500. They were both released.

Brush fires in the rear of the Clarendon School building and at Franklin Park yesterday kept the firemen in the county busy. At the Franklin Park fire engines from Cherrydale and Ballston responded, while at the fire near the school building engines from Clarendon and Ballston responded.

No damage from loss of property was reported from either fire.

Pursuant to instructions from the County Board of Supervisors, Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth filed with the county clerk yesterday 219 suits for delinquent real estate taxes dating back from 1927. The suits, in accordance with the acts of the General Assembly, are drawn in the name of the Commonwealth. Following the filing of the suits the county clerk turned over to Sheriff Howard B. Fields summons for each of the 219 suits returnable in the clerk's office September 15.

Gloth states that he has several hundred more suits to file. Those filed yesterday represent more than $300,000 in delinquent taxes.

Through an error, it was announced yesterday that County Treasurer E. Wade Ball had received a check for $72,219.62 from the State treasurer as the county's share of the gasoline tax for the month of July. It should have read $7,219.62.

The Arlington Community Library Club will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the library rooms.

The Clarendon Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. Florence Cauffman, 441 Wilson Boulevard, at 8 o'clock, and not tonight as previously announced.

Wife Crazed by Pain Kills Self With Pistol

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 11.—Crazed with pain from an inward goiter, Mrs. Zella Lowther, 32, wife of Henderson Lowther, farmer, seized a pistol and shot herself dead this afternoon, two bullets piercing her heart.

Besides her husband four small children survive.

Mrs. Campbell, Of Easton, Dies

Special to The Washington Post.

Easton, Md., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Virginia Hollyday Campbell, 65 years old, wife of Levin H. Campbell, a retired lawyer of New York, died this morning at her home on South Harrison street, Easton, after a short illness.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Campbell are natives of Easton. Mrs. Campbell was the daughter of the late William Muarry Hollyday, who for a number of years was a member of the board of school commisioners for Talbot County and for several years was auditor of the Circuit Court for Talbot County.

Besides her husband, she is survived by three children, Mrs. Louise Sharp, wife of Commander Walter D. Sharp, of the United States Navy, stationed in Washington, D. C.; Maj. Levin H. Campbell, of the United States Army, stationed in Detroit, Mich., and Worthington Campbell, an attorney, of New York City. Several grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday from Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, Easton. Interment will take place in Spring Hill Cemetery here.

SCHOOL BUS LINES BIDS TO BE SOUGHT

Prince Georges Education Board Will Announce Scholarship Winner.

RITCHIE ROAD AID ASKED

Bids for thirteen school transportation lines in Prince Georges County, Md., for the coming year, will be asked by the board of education at a meeting at Marlboro today. The board also plans to announce the winner of a scholarship in St. John's College, for which twelve boys competed in an examination held at Marlboro last week.

Ascension Catholic Church, of Bowie, Md., will hold its thirty-sixth annual picnic on the town hall grounds Saturday. The event is noted especially for the excellence of its southern Maryland chicken dinners. The picnic committee includes Mrs. Guy Bell, Mrs. Barbara Daumann, Mrs. Lena Fladung, Mrs. John Mullikin, Mrs. Frances Baumann, Mrs. John Vermillion, John Mullikin, Frank Fladung, John Broderick, Frank Simon, Frank Deutsch, Joseph H. Baumann, Michael A. Steese and Stanley Hicks, while Dr. George A. Lancaster will be the physician in attendance.

Aid of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland was asked yesterday by the Cheverly Citizens Association to have LeBlond avenue taken over as a State road.

The citizens explain that the avenue is a concrete highway through Cheverly, built by the Washington Suburban Realty Co., during 1921 to 1924, when the 600-acre Cheverly subdivision was being developed. The thoroughfare has an 18-foot concrete roadway throughout its mile and a half of length, as well as a 40-foot right of way.

It is claimed in the letter to Gov. Ritchie that the avenue which runs from the Landover-Marlboro State road, a half mile east of the Defense Highway, south to the Tuxedo road, is an important link in the established highway system and constitutes the shortest route from the Marlboro-Landover road to Washington.

It is asserted further that although the State Roads Commission has used the thoroughfare frequenly to detour traffic, neither the State nor the county ever has contributed toward its maintenance. It is pointed out that practically all the lots facing on Le Blond avenue are owned by individual taxpayers and, the original developers having no further interest in its upkeep, it is the opinion of the citizens who now contribute to the tax fund on an assessed valuation of more than $500,000, that they should not be burdened further with maintenance of the road.

The letter adds that a petition signed by about 200 residents and taxpayers asking to have the road taken over by the State is in the hands of the Prince Georges County Commissioners, together with a letter from G. Clinton Uhl, chairman of the State Roads Commission, suggesting such a course.

Child Killed in Truck Accident Near Luray

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Aug. 11.—Harold Owens, 10-year-old son of Ward Owens, prominent farmer, of Marksville district, was instantly killed tonight when a truck in which he was riding with two brothers was overturned on the outskirts of Stanley, eight miles south of Luray.

The machine struck a rock, lurched to the side of the road and turned over down a steep embankment. Neither of the brothers was hurt. The boy was pinned under the heavy truck.

Forest Fire Burns Anew on Mountain

Blaze Imperils Source of Town's Water Supply in Purcellville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Aug. 11.—Forest fire which broke out yesterday morning at 11 o'clock on the Short Hill Mountain about 6 miles from Purcellville, was thought to have been brought under control this morning but fanned by high winds, it is again spreading its menacing flames a distance of 8 miles on the mountain side.

All the local men have been drafted to fight the fire and J. R. Linter, county farm agent, has wired Richmond asking for State troops to aid.

Places endangered by the fire are H. C. Potts, Thurston Potts, prominent farmers of the county, and the residence of J. Russell Smith, teacher in Columbia University, New York, who has a summer home on the mountain. Property belonging to the town of Purcellville on which is located the source of the newly installed water system, is also in the path of the fire.

FAIRFAX CHAMBER TO MEET TONIGHT

Groveton Club Will Be Host at August Assembly of County Groups.

FAIR PLANS PROGRESS

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST, P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va. Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The August meeting of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce will be held this evening in the schoolhouse at Groveton. The chamber will be the guests of the Groveton Community Club. The invitation was extended by Capt. George K. Pickett, president of the club, two nights before his death last month.

The new educational committee of the chamber plans to ask for a reasonable length of time at each meeting to be devoted to a discussion of school conditions in the county. Another question this committee plans to present tonight to the chamber concerns vocational education that has been widely discussed during the last few months. It plans to recommend that pending the establishment of a centrally located vocational high school in the county, the vocational work be given in some of the high schools already established, preferably at Herndon, Oakton and Lee-Jackson Schools, so as to bring this course of study within the reach of the greatest number of pupils.

The committee will present a report relative to the proposed bond issues in Mount Vernon and Lee magisterial districts. It admits that the present time is not favorable for carrying a bond issue anywhere in the county, but nevertheless it plans to recommend that at least one new school building be erected within the next year in Mount Vernon district at Franconia and another at Lorton in Lee district.

Fairfax County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr has called a meeting of the county farmers advisory council for tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the agricultural exhibit rooms at Fairfax. The council will consider ways and means of obtaining help to carry the farmers over the winter and into the spring, when the early crops begin to ripen.

With the springs, wells and streams drying up, the supply of water on most of the farms of the county is becoming short, and unless a heavy rain occurs within the next few days, the farmers face disaster. The dairymen are hard hit, their losses already run into thousands of dollars. The fields have dried up and they are having to feed as in the winter time. The quantity of milk is steadily decreasing. There is a movement on foot to have the governor suspend the claiming of farm lands for delinquent taxes, as many of them state that they will be unable to meet their tax bills this fall. Several farmers who obtained loans from the Federal Farm Loan Board are looking forward with anxious eyes to President Hoover's conference of governors Thursday, hoping that some arrangements might be made to make their burdens lighter.

Mrs. Manuel Leroy, State councilor of the Daughters of America, will make her official visit to the Providence Council at Fairfax tomorrow evening.

The customary stillness of the town of Fairfax was suddenly broken yesterday morning by the shrieking of the fire alarm. The volunteer firemen hastily donned their coats and rushed to the engine house, expecting an exceedingly large blaze because of the long dry spell.

James E. Nickell, hardware merchant and president of the Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department, responded to the alarm in his own car. Following the fire engine he was surprised to see the engine stop in front of his home.

A large pan of grease that his wife was cooking with caught fire, causing a great deal of smoke and excitement throughout the neighborhood. The firemen quickly extinguished the blaze before it did any damage to the house. Mrs. Nickell was slightly burned about the hands and the president of the fire company passed the rest of the morning soothing his nerves.

Preparations for the seventeenth annual Fairfax County Fair that is to be held next month are rapidly going ahead in spite of the discouraging weather conditions which threaten to curtail the agricultural exhibits. The new catalogues and premium lists are being mailed daily by Robert D. Graham, secretary of the Fair Association. For the first time in several years a horse show will not be a feature of the fair, but running races will be held daily. There are rumors prevalent that if the drought continues much longer, the board of directors of the association will consider postponement of the fair. A special meeting may take place in the near future to study the situation.

William Dorsey, 21, and Ed Silk, 35, giving their addresses as New York, were sentenced to 30 days in the Fairfax Jail and ordered to pay a fine of $15 and costs by Justice of the Peace Harry Shepherd at Accotink for stealing fifteen gallons of gasoline Sunday night from Phil Ward at Pohick, on the Washington-Richmond highway. The two were arrested by Traffic Policeman Lewis L. Finks and State Patrolman Clarke.

R. E. Ray, of Washington, was fined $10 and costs by Justice Shepherd at Accotink and ordered to pay for the damages to the car of Jay V. Prather, of Alexandria. According to Policeman Finks, who arrested Ray for reckless driving, his car was being driven in the middle of the road and he refused to pull over when meeting the car of Prather on the Richmond-Washington highway betwen Snake Hill and Hybla Valley, causing a collision between the two cars.

James Rivercomb, of McLean, was arrested at the McLean carnival and charged with being drunk and disorderly. He was lodged in the Fairfax Jail to await a hearing before Justice of the Peace Thomas P. Chapman, at Fairfax.

Newport News Pastor Going to Petersburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 11.—The Rev. J. Evan Balderson, pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist Church of Newport News, has accepted a call extended to him by Calvary Baptist Church of Petersburg. He will enter upon his post here on the third Sunday in September.

Mr. Balderson will succeed the Rev. John H. Binstead, who resigned his charge here some months ago to accept a call to a church on the Eastern Shore.

Hurts at Funeral Fatal to Woman

Cumberland Resident Falls Down Stairs Entering Private Chapel.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Mary A. Cordry Bowman, 69 years old, wife of George A. Bowman, contractor, died early today at Memorial Hospital from a fractured skull and spine injury received in a fall at the Stein Funeral Chapel yesterday, where she had gone with Mr. Bowman to attend the funeral of Orville R. Miller.

According to Mrs. Bowman's brother, R. D. Cordry, of Meyersdale, Pa., the front entrance to the chapel was crowded, and Mrs. Bowman was directed to a side entrance by a little girl. While entering the door she failed to see a basement stairway and plunged down eight steps. She never regained consciousness.

Mrs. Bowman was a native of Baltimore, but had lived in this city many years. She was married to Mr. Bowman in 1914. She was a member of Kingsley Methodist Episcopal Church. She is survived by J. M. Cordry, Philadelphia, and William A. Cordry, of this city, brothers, and Mrs. J. F. Linder, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Grace A. Van Horn, of Boston, Mass., sisters.

WORK ON COUNTY'S COURTHOUSE BEGUN

Montgomery Building Will Be Completed by 1931, Says Contractor.

$384,000 IS INVOLVED

Work on Montgomery County's new $384,000 courthouse and jail building was started when ground was broken on the site adjoining the old courthouse at Rockville, Md., yesterday.

Officials of the J. J. McDevitt Co., of Charlotte, N. C., which has the contract to erect the building, expect to have the structure ready for occupancy early in 1931.

Four persons, including two women, filed certificates of candidacy yesterday for election to various offices in Montgomery County. Miss Lavinia Engle, of Forest Glen, filed for election to the Maryland House of Delegates, and Mrs. Lucy M. Offutt announced her candidacy for membership in the Democratic State central committee. Both are candidates of the county Democratic organization.

Preston B. Ray, clerk of the court, filed for reelection to that post as the Democratic organization candidate, and Thomas L. Dawson, of Rockville, entered the race to become delegate to the State Republican convention.

E. C. Wilcox, president of the Montgomery Sycamore Island Club, pointed out yesterday that the raid Saturday night in which eight men and six women were arrested by police of the Bethesda, Md., substation, was not conducted on Sycamore Island.

It was explained by Montgomery County police that the raid was made on a bungalow "in the Sycamore Island section," on a bungalow located between Conduit road and the canal, but not on Sycamore Island, which is owned and occupied exclusively by the club.

Double nuptials were announced when two marines from Quantico, Va., took out licenses at Rockville, Md., to wed two girls from Fredericksburg, Va. The men were Earl E. Hollibaugh, 26, and Fred E. Bisonnette, 21, and their brides are Ruth F. Larkin, 19, and Mary Rohme, also 19.

The lengthy list of applicants for marriage licenses at the Montgomery County seat also included two couples from Haymarket, Va., although they were not together. They were Ralph P. Bell, 22, and Barbara L. Thomas, 21, and Bernard C. Smith, 32, and Bessie W. Owens, 21.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Grace Episcopal Church, in Woodside, for George Theodore Cashell, who died at his residence, 8706 Ward place, Silver Spring, Md., Sunday. Burial will be at Rockville.

Mr. Cashell, a lifelong resident of Montgomery County, was 73 years old. He was a rural mail carrier in the section until about eight years ago, when he was relieved of active duty with the Postoffice Department and became a watchman for the Treasury Department in Washington. He had been in failing health for the past four years.

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL ACCEPTS LOAN PLAN

$100,000 May Be Loaned to Aid City Until Taxes Are Collected.

PRAYERS FOR RAIN SET

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU, 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 523.

The last meeting of the city council as at present constituted was held yesterday, with Edmund F. Ticer, vice mayor, in the chair. The council, unless some unforeseen emergency arises, will not reconvene until noon September 1, when the two newly elected members will take their seas, and the council will be reorganized by the election of a mayor, or chairman of the council; a vice mayor and a clerk. The new members are Arthur Herbert and Clyde C. Lamond, who will succeed Councilmen J. E. W. Timberman and Robert S. Jones, neither of whom were candidates for reelection.

Two matters were handled by the council yesterday, the first being the adoption of a resolution approving a temporary loan of $100,000, or such part thereof as may be required, for general expenses of the city pending collection of taxes. City Manager Wallace Lawrence stated that the reason temporary loans were necessary is that the city had no surplus at the end of each fiscal year and was forced to borrow money to operate. He stated that for the present he thought it would be necessary to borrow only about $35,000 of the amount authorized. Vice Mayor Ticer called attention to the fact that unexpected expenses had arisen, among them being an indebtedness of $20,000 of the Town of Potomac, which the city was obliged to assume when annexation became effective, and which had not been provided for in the annual budget. Mr. Fannon stated that he has been a member of the council for eight years and he had hoped that by this time the city's finances would have been in better shape.

The other matter before the council was a resolution appropriating $1,000 for the purchase of a right of way through the property of the Sun Oil Co. for the Mount Vernon boulevard. John Barton Phillips, attorney for the company, stated that, based on the price paid by the company for the land in question, three acres of which will be acquired, the price should be $2,100, and he asked that the council appropriate that sum.

After considerable discussion, on motion of Councilman Pierce, the city's offer for the land was limited to $1,000, and a resolution appropriating that amount was approved.

A resolution was passed directing the city manager to transfer $12,000 from the gas fund surplus to the general fund.

Owing to the long continued drought, a joint prayer service for all denominations of the city will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Sunday school auditorium of the Southern Methodist Church, under the auspices of the Alexandria Ministerial Association. The purpose of the meeting, according to the Rev Ernest M. Delaney, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church and president of the ministerial association, is for confession, humiliation and intercession for rain. The service was arranged by the Rev. Mr. Delaney after a conference with the pastors of the various churches, or through representatives of the churches.

The sponsors of the service have extended an invitation to the general public to attend. In the event this section receives a rain before the meeting, it will be held in the nature of a thanksgiving service.

Owing to an unaccountable delay in receiving the "rain-making" powder ordered by Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the chamber of commerce, from Santa Fe, N. Mex., the experiment of spraying the powder on a convenient cloud in the hope of producing rain, which was scheduled for yesterday, has been postponed. According to advices received by Mr. Hollenga, the powder was shipped by express on Thursday, and was expected to arrive yesterday. As soon as it does arrive, an airplane from the Washington Airport will spray the powder on the first convenient cloud, and Alexandria citizens will anxiously await the result. It is rumored that some men of little faith are offering sizeable odds against the success of the experiment, with no takers.

P. C. McBride, 30 years old, of 610 Mount Vernon avenue, Potomac, is a patient at the Alexandria Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull and deep lacerations of the leg, received Saturday night when his automobile left the King street road near Seminary Cross Roads and crashed into a telephone pole. His condition was reported yesterday as improved, although he is not out of danger.

Dr. Llewellyn Powell, who was close behind Mr. McBride at the time of the accident, reported that Mr. McBride's car, for no apparent cause, suddenly shot to the side of the road and crashed into the pole, the machine catching fire from the ignition. Dr. Powell pulled Mr. McBride from under the car and had him taken to the hospital by a passing motorist. Later Dr. Powell assisted Dr. Samuel B. Moore in operating on the injured man.

Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims, Sergt. Lawrence Padgett and "Buck" Davis, custodian of the city hall, went on a fishing trip just off the Queen street wharf yesterday, and after a few minutes were rewarded by pulling up twelve burlap bags which, on being opened at police headquarters proved to contain 153 jars of corn whisky. The catch is the largest of its kind ever reported by the local police.

The city forces started yesterday the work of placing concrete curb and gutter and driveway entrances on Myrtle, Spring and Craik streets, and the 100 block of West Walnut street, this being in accordance with the city's policy of improving with curb and gutter any streets on which the property owners pay their proportion of the cost. Dr. James J. Garvey is in charge of obtaining the signatures of the property owners for the improvements.

The Scottish Rite Masons of the Valley of Alexandria will hold a get-together dinner at the George Mason Hotel at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. C. C. Wenrick, past venerable master of the lodge, will preside. All Scottish Rite Masons who expect to attend, have been requested to get in touch with Percy E. Clift, secretary.

Funeral services for Capt. Louis Nelson Duffey, World War veteran, who died August 2 at Tucson, Ariz., were conducted yesterday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs Charles W. Duffey, 203 South Fairfax street by the Rev. Edgar Carpenter, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, and the Rev. D. L. Snyder, pastor of the Southern Methodist Church.

Burial was in Arlington National Cemetery with full military honors, and with the Masonic service, conducted by officers of Alexandria-Washington Lodge, No. 22, of which Capt. Duffey was a member. Pallbearers were George Fretwell, George Fitzgerald, Daniel C. Pfeil, Nicholas Bufano, C. Owen Creegan and Rutledge Webster, all members of Capt Duffey's command in France. The service at the grave was conducted by the chaplain at Fort Myer.

Mrs. Samantha C. Robinson died yesterday at her home, 1121 Duke street. She is survived by 7 children, 36 grandchildren and 4 great grandchildren. Funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Christ Episcopal Church by the Rev. William J. Morton, rector. Burial will be in St. Paul's Cemetery.

CITIZENS HEAR PLAN FOR MARYLAND PARK

Hyattsville Holds Meeting on Project, Expected to Be Settled Thursday.

COMMISSION TO DECIDE

Adoption of plans prepared by the Maryland and National Capital Park and Planning Commission for establishment of a park area in Prince Georges County, Md., in the Anacostia-Northwest Branch region, from the Peace Cross, in Bladensburg, to Queen's Chapel road is expected to be completed at a meeting of the commission Thursday.

A large number of residents of the section, which includes Hyattsville, Bladensburg, Mount Rainier, Cottage City, and Brentwood, attended a public hearing on the project at Hyattsville last night and expressed general approval of the proposals presented by the commission, which was represented by its chairman, Irvin Owings, its chief engineer; Irving C Root and T. Howard Duckett.

The plan as outlined would provide for establishment of parkways in an area of about 200 acres, with preliminary arrangements already completed by the commission for acquisition of about 40 acres. Under an act of the Maryland Legislature in 1927, $50,000 was made available for purchase of park lands in Prince Georges County. The region designated for the park by the commission was selected because it is close to the center of the most thickly populated district in the county and would serve an estimated population of more than 25,000.

As the Prince Georges County commissioners have made no provision for a tax levy to provide for development of the parklands after their purchase, however, no immediate prospect is seen for completion of the parkway. The $50,000 can be spent only for land purchases, and all development and improvement must be paid for through a park tax levied by the county. Montgomery County has assessed a 7-cent park tax for such improvement of parklands.

Crops were badly damaged, among the losers being J. C. Womack, whose 15,000 hills of tobacco were destroyed. Nearest Yanceyville, where the hail was not so severe, a high wind and cloudburst did further damage, barns and other small buildings being unroofed and trees blown down. The storm was the second disastrous one within a week.

Burnt Mills Water Supply Exhausted

The Burnt Mills reservoir will be closed today, and residents of the Maryland suburban area hereafter will derive their entire water supply from the District of Columbia. This action is being taken, it is announced by J. Donald Claggett, of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, because the supply sources upon which the Burnt Mills reservoir draws have been virtually exhausted by the prolonged drought.

A new connection capable of supplying 1,000,000 gallons of water daily will be made in the main at Chevy Chase Circle. This new supply, making a total of about 3,000,000 gallons daily supplied to the Maryland area from four connections with the District system, is expected to be adequate in view of the conservation effected through strict enforcement of sprinkling regulations.

Preparations for drawing on the District's supply of water for the Maryland suburban area were started several weeks ago when it became apparent that the Burnt Mills supply was at the point of exhaustion.

Near-Panic Is Caused By Fire Near Gore

Capon Bridge, W. Va., Aug. 11.—This town had a fire thrill late Sunday when a blaze broke out in a building owned by Baxter A. Griffin, merchant and undertaker. Without fire fighting equipment, and with the memory of the $500,000 fire in Gore, Va., 10 miles distant, just one week ago, in mind, residents became panicky. To add to their fears the Winchester truck was unable to answer an emergency call because of a burned bearing.

The Romney, W. Va., department was called and by quick pumping from a hose thrown into Cacapon River beneath the bridge here managed to control the fire with little actual damage.
